Lewis Calls Out Miners For 2 Weeks to Protest Appointment of Boyd

'Memorial Period' In Eastern Pits Will Stress 'Ignorance' Of Bureau Chief

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis yesterday called out 400,000 miners to protest President Truman's appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of the United States Bureau of Mines.

The United Mine Workers leader ordered a 14-day "memorial period," beginning Monday, for all coal mines east of the Mississippi.

Western mines were exempted from the two weeks' stay-away protest "to avoid public hardship" in the areas hard hit by severe winter weather.

The call-out is the latest—and most vigorous—of John L.'s protests against the naming of 44-year-old Dr. Boyd, former dean of the Colorado School of Mines, as head of the Federal Bureau of Mines.

First Named 2 Years Ago

Boyd was first selected for the post by President Truman in March, 1947.

Strenuous opposition by Lewis and his miners has blocked Senate confirmation of the appointment. Dr. Boyd has been kept in office by a series of interim White House appointments, but except for five months, the tall Australian born administrator has been holding down his $10,000-a-year position without drawing any pay.

The United Mine Workers leader called the "memorial period" under a "safety practices" clause of the union's contract with the mines, which permits such action with proper notice.

In a statement to his miners, Lewis declared:

"This period of inaction will emphasize the mine workers' opposition to one Boyd, an incompetent, unqualified person who has usurped the office and functions of director of the Federal Bureau of Mines without Senate confirmation as required by statute.

Protest Expected to Backfire

"Concurrently the mine workers will mourn the unnecessary slaughter of 55,115 men killed and injured in the calendar year 1948, during Boyd's incumbency of his usurped office.

"Meanwhile the mine workers will pray for relief from the monstrous and grotesque injustice of an ignorant and incompetent Boyd having the power to decide whether they shall live or continue to die in the mines."

The Senate Committee on Interior Affairs is scheduled to vote Monday on the nomination of Boyd.

Chairman Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), a close friend of President Truman, said last night that the Lewis protest would backfire. "I believe . . . it will insure a favorable committee report," Senator O'Mahoney commented.

Senator Hugh Butler (R., Nebr.), ranking Republican member of the committee, told reporters he doubted that the UMW order

A Stubborn Man, Boyd, Who Holds Post But Gets No Pay

Yet there is a fellow who, perhaps, is just a little bit more stubborn than either Harry S. or John L.

He is James Boyd, director of the United States Bureau of Mines. Dr. Boyd was appointed to the post in March, 1947. That's 24 months ago, and except for five months, he has been serving without pay.

Furthermore, there's a chance that Boyd will never be paid at all for his services. Stubborn John L. is violently opposed to his appointment and has thus far managed to block Senate confirmation. Boyd can't get paid his $10,000-a-year without the Senate's okay.

But President Truman is stubbornly backing Boyd down the line, and Boyd is stubbornly holding the fort even though he's been offered non-Government jobs with higher pay and less abuse.

A youthful-appearing 44, James Boyd was born in Australia's mining frontier. His father was a gold miner. James went down a shaft for the first time of his life at the age of 3. That was when he fell in with his dog and landed 70 feet below with nary a hurt.

Boyd was 20 when his folks moved to California. Jim entered California Tech, came out with an engineering degree, dug for oil in Texas, tried his hand at "long-shot stuff" with a small corporation in Colorado. He earned his master's degree in geophysics at the Colorado School of Mines

California Probers Charge:

Slot Machine Racket Yields Costello Ring $2 Billion a Year

By Charles E. Davis, jr.
Post Reporter

Racketeer Frank Costello of New York is reputed boss of the national slot-machine racket which yields at least two billion dollars annually.

This claim was made yesterday in a report by California's Commission on Organized Crime, an investigative body headed by retired Admiral William H. Standley, former United States Ambassador to Russia.

The commission, reporting to Gov. Earl Warren, found that:

1. Nation-wide slot machine interests are organized in a grand scale "criminal conspiracy" to buy off Government officials—or purge them.

2. Washington is the headquarters for one national organization of slot machine operators.

3. Slot machine racketeers throughout the Nation are spending about 400 million dollars annually for bribery and corruption of public officials.

The investigation into organized crime in California has brought about a bitter feud between Governor Warren and Attorney General Fred Howser, the Governor openly accusing Howser of not doing everything possible to squelch the rackets.

Howser snapped back with a vigorous denial. Yesterday, he charged Warren with tolerating slot machines when he (Warren) was Attorney General of California from 1938 to 1942.

The California Commission bases its estimate of a two-billion-dollar gross by slot machine interests on a study made by the Chicago Crime Commission for the year 1939.

It cites, however, a recent article in Collier's Magazine by Norman and Madelyn Carlisle, in which the figure is placed at three billion dollars.

In the same article, it was claimed that in a single year Costello had collected 33 million dollars personally from the racket.

Who is Costello? In the words of the California commission he is "a former convict and a big-time racketeer."

"He is said to be," asserts the report, "the present head of the great underworld organization, with headquarters in New York, which is called by its own members 'The Combination.' The so-called 'Murder, Inc.,' is the enforcement branch of this organization.

"Costello also heads the Italian Black Hand organization known as 'The Unione Siciliana' or the 'Mafia.' He has been described by Virgil W. Peterson, operating director of the Chicago Crime Commission, and others, as 'the lord

Administration Beaten In Attempt at Cloture Under Barkley Ruling

23 Southerners Are Joined by 23 GOP Senators to Sustain Appeal

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate last night virtually underwrote continuation of present and future Southern filibusters by upsetting a ruling by Vice President Alben Barkley.

By two identical votes of 46 to 41 the Senate said Barkley was wrong when he said cloture can be invoked against a motion to call up a permanent reform in Senate rules.

Only 16 Republicans joined 25 Democrats in support of Barkley's decision. Twenty-three Republicans and 23 Democrats, mostly Southerners, voted "No."

Right Where It Started

As a result, the 11-day filibuster was right where it was when it started February 28, with no leadership weapon at hand, except a prolonged physical endurance contest, to break it.

Piling up bhind it were ECA, housing, rent control and other pressing Truman measures. Senate Administration Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) called a strategy conference of Northern and Western Democrats this morning to decide what to do.

The leadership was divided on whether to lay aside the two-thirds cloture change motion that started the filibuster, but indications were this may be done if necessary to continue rent control.

Session Lasts 10¾ Hours

The rules showdown ended after a 10¾-hour session in bitter partisan recriminations. Lucas, backed up by Senate Majority Whip Francis J. Myers (D., Pa.), charged Republicans, by failing to support the Barkley ruling, may have killed off any chance of civil rights legislation this session.

Republicans retaliated by challenging the "sincerity" of the filibuster-breaking effort unless continuous day and night sessions are held from here on out.

They even bucked Lucas' move to recess the Senate overnight, until noon today. Lucas won the recess only after a roll call, party line vote of 46 to 38.

Motion to Table Fails

The test of Barkley's ruling came on a motion by Lucas to table a Southern appeal from the Vice President's ruling. The Senate refused to table it on the first roll call. Then Senator Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), Southern floor manager, asked a vote on the appeal itself. The appeal, confirming Barkley's upset, was sustained by an identical vote.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) whose ruling as President pro tem last August that debate could not be closed on a motion to call up a bill was overturned by Barkley, in turn paved the way for reversing the Vice President's stand.

Vandenberg attacked Barkley's ruling as an "affront" to Senate procedures, and a majority of Senate Republicans rallied behind Vandenberg.

After 10 hours of argument, the leadership practically tossed in the sponge in a bitter speech by Lucas

Franco Recognition Protest

Man, 69, Shoots Self to Death 50 Feet From Senate Gallery

A 69-year-old retired apartment operator, who left a suicide note saying he wanted "to purify politics," shot himself to death within 50 feet of the Senate gallery yesterday.

He was identified by police as Thomas C. Williams, recently of Buffalo, N. Y.

Voluminous papers were found on his person, including a passport, a three-page typewritten account of his life and instructions for disposal of his body.

A signed letter said his "chief purpose" in committing suicide was "prevention of recognition of the Franco regime."

It said he was motivated by "shame, from a viewpoint personal and national."

The shot was heard in the nearby Senate Press Gallery shortly before 3 p. m., but Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), who was then making a speech on the floor, said he was not aware of the shooting.

Capitol attendants said Williams had been pacing the corridor silently for about an hour. He stepped into an alcove without being noticed and drew a .38 caliber automatic. Police said the weapon failed to fire first, he tried again and the shot pierced his heart.

He was pronounced dead half an hour later by Dr. Thomas L. Auth, of the Health Department Ambulance No. 6. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, issued a certificate of suicide.

A dramatic, carefully written note was found in his pocket. The envelope was addressed to The Washington Post, and the letter to "the Vice President of the

Rent Control Passes First Test in House

Move to Continue Law Only 90 Days Is Beaten, 178-163

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Administration forces won their first major test on rent control extension yesterday when they beat down by a 15-vote margin a Republican move to continue the present law for only 90 more days.

Final House action was put over until Tuesday at the request of Administration leaders. Many Democrats are out of town and the situation in the Senate side is such as to make speed on the other side of the Capitol unnecessary.

The Administration victory—178 to 163—was followed by the adoption of an amendment stipulating that rent ceilings must be fixed "as far as practicable" at a level guaranteeing landlords "reasonable return on a reasonable value" of their property.

The amendment, introduced by Representative Paul Brown (D., Ga.), was opposed by Republicans who charged that the "weasel words 'as far as practicable'" destroyed the effectiveness of the guarantee. An amendment offered by Representative Jesse Wolcott (R., Mich.) to remove the limiting phrase was narrowly defeated.

Eight Powers Reach Accord On Arms Pact

N. Atlantic Alliance Is Expected to Be Signed Here in April

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Eight-power agreement on the North Atlantic security pact, which marks a historic step in American foreign policy, was reached in negotiations here yesterday.

The text of the treaty is expected to be released to the public on Friday, and it is planned to have the treaty signed here during the first week of April.

That meeting will probably bring to Washington the largest delegation of foreign ministers to assemble here for such an event since the signing of the Washington 5-5-3 naval limitation treaty of 1921.

After a 2 hour and 15 minute meeting between Secretary of State Dean Acheson and representatives of Britain, Canada, France, Norway, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, Belgian Ambassador Baron Silvercruys told reporters:

"It's all fine, agreed and everything."

Yesterday's session, culminating eight months of negotiations on the regional security pact, was devoted to "polishing up the text—giving it sort of a beauty treatment," he said.

The ambassadors will meet again, probably Tuesday, he said. It is believed that this will be in the

PSC Approves 3d Phone Rate Hike Since '46

Increase in Maryland To Cost Subscribers $4,100,000 a Month

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Maryland telephone users will get higher bills beginning next month.

The Public Service Commission today authorized the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Baltimore to institute a temporary emergency rate increase that will cost subscribers about $4,100,000 a year.

The Maryland company serves the whole State except for a small corner of a far-west county.

It is one of the four Chesapeake & Potomac divisions of the Bell system that serve Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia.

The new temporary rates mean an increase of 25 to 50 cents a month on most residence telephone service. They go into effect with bills dated March 21.

The cost of an individual line business telephone goes from $6 to $7.50, with an increase in the number of calls allowed before extra charges start.

The company was granted a rate increase early in 1947, its first since 1921, and six months later this was supplemented with another. The two together were calculated to produce an increase of about $3,900,000 in net income.

The higher rates will be in effect until the PSC holds hearings and reaches a decision on the company's plea for permanent increases that would boost the charges about 6 million dollars yearly.

Police Ordered To Seek Data On 'Pyramids'

U. S. Attorney Wants Full Information: Clubs Cracking Up

Police yesterday received orders to collect for Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief, "information relative to the formation of or membership in any of the so-called Pyramid Clubs."

Blick said he wants to "get the facts so we can pass an opinion on the clubs"—decide if the get-rick-quick scheme violates gambling laws.

He said the order, signed by Police Chief Robert J. Barrett, followed a phone call to the United States attorney's office which has been investigating the clubs.

The order, directed to police commanding officers, stated that after he receives requested information "Lieutenant Blick will then conduct an investigation to the end that the operators and operations of these clubs may be presented to the United States Attorney for possible criminal action."

Meanwhile local Pyramid Club experts reported that pyramids here were collapsing like houses of cards in fear of the investigation.

Club members theoretically can make $2048 in 12 days after they spend $1 at a cocktail party.

The scheme of Pyramid Clubs follows the progression system of the chain letter fad, involving a series of parties with eight new guests each night at $1 a throw.

Ideally, one pyramid with eight new guests contributing $1 a head generates 256 pyramids with 2048 contributors of the $1 levy.

Russians Quiz Turks on Sea Pact Proposal

Soviet Reported Told Mediterranean Treaty Aim Is Defense, Peace

London, March 11 (AP).—Diplomatic sources today said Russia has asked the Turkish Foreign Office about Turkey's interest in a proposed Mediteranean regional defense treaty.

Turkey was reported to have told Russia the suggested pact would be defensive, would aim at peace and security in the Mediterranean and would not be directed against the Soviet Union.

British informants said Moscow could be expected to express strong disapproval of Turkish participation in any Mediterranean pact.

Turkey is urging Mediterranean powers to organize an alliance that later could be linked to the North Atlantic Treaty.

A spokesman for the Turkish Embassy here said Alexander Lavrichev, Soviet Ambassador to Ankara, had raised the matter "unofficially" in the course of a talk at th Turkish Foreign Office.

Turkey, like Greece, now receives United States aid to maintain and improve her armed forces. Russia would like to join Turkey in control of the Dardanelles.

U. S. Seeking To Avoid War, Royall Says

Army Secretary's Report Assails Reds For Action in Berlin

America will do everything "decently possible" to avoid war with Russia but not surrender our rights and principles, Army Secretary Kenneth Royall said yesterday.

In his annual report on the status of the Army, Royall accused Russia of "duplicity and falsification of facts" and said her blockade of Berlin is "a day-to-day threat to the peace of the world."

The Army's most serious problems arise in the former German capital, said Royall.

"It has been apparent that the Soviet authorities have had no intention either of respecting past agreements or of composing the growing differences," he added.

"On the contrary, it has been their manifest purpose to cause all possible confusion and conflict short of war, in an effort to drive us from Berlin and diminish American influence in Europe and in the world. . . .

"The future of the Berlin situation—just as the future of other situations involving the Soviet Union—is hard to prophesy. It is difficult to deal with a nation which has no compunction against the use of threats and force and oppression to attain its desire."

"We cannot and will not surrender our rights nor our principles. We will continue to do everything decently possible to avoid war."

Royall said the situation in Ber-

N. Y. Gravediggers End Strike On Cardinal Spellman's Terms

New York, March 11 (AP).—Catholic gravediggers settled with their church today an eight-week-old strike which had caused Francis Cardinal Spellman to use young priests and seminarians for burial tasks.

The settlement was on terms of the cardinal, who said "it brings to a close one of the most difficult, grievous and heartbreaking issues ever to come in my time as Archbishop of New York."

Cardinal Spellman had termed the strike "unjustified and immoral." More than 1000 bodies had lain unburied at two Catholic cemeteries.

David Sullivan, an international vice president of the AFL Building Service Employes Union, joined in the announcement that the strikers would go back to work.

The gravediggers went into the AFL union earlier this week after ending ties with the CIO-affiliated union which Spellman had termed Communist-controlled. Local officials denied any Communist ties.

The Catholic prelate said the settlement called for an 8 1-3 per cent increase in basic, six-day weekly pay. This brought it to $64.85. The union had demanded a five-day week at the current weekly pay of $59.40, plus overtime for Saturday.

Sullivan said: "This strike would not have resulted if there had been responsible union leadership."

McGrath Fears Truman, Congress Won't Get Along

By The Associated Press

Senator McGrath (D., R. I.) said last night it "doesn't appear" that President Truman will get along with this Congress any better than he did with the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress.

The Democratic national chairman made this statement in reply to a question on the Mutual "Meet the Press" radio program. He spoke after the Senate voting which administered a setback for the Truman Adminisration in its effort to choke off filibusters.

McGrath declared that both parties should be "ashamed" of those members who voted last night to overrule Vice President Barkley.

Hospital Association Assails Waste, Cost of VA Facilities

By The Associated Press

One hospital system for everybody—civilian and veteran alike—was advocated yesterday by the American Hospital Association.

Graham L. Davis, Battle Creek, Mich., chairman of the association's veterans' affairs committee, said such a plan would provide better service at less cost.

He told a Senate Welfare Subcommittee that Veterans Administration hospitals (a) cost about two times more to build than other hospitals, (b) cost about twice as much to operate, (c) cannot be efficiently managed because of their remoteness from Washington headquarters, and (d) waste the time of already scarce doctors and personnel.

He said a study has shown that a patient in a VA hospital "stays three or four times as long for the same disease or injury" as in other hospitals.

The committee is studying the Administration's plan to make a 16,000-bed cut in the VA hospital building program. It heard testimony Thursday from George E. Ijams, director of national rehabilitation for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, that the cut order is related "to the over-all plan of the selfish medical groups."

Davis said yesterday his association is not opposed to adequate medical facilities for anybody.

He added, however, that the association insists construction must be in accord with over-all plans in each State 'to prevent duplication and waste."

In reply to questions from Senator Pepper (D., Fla.), chairman of the subcommittee, Davis said a general coverage health insurance program of some sort—voluntary or involuntary—seems inevitable.

In an emergency, he said, there would be "no time to sort out veteran casualties and send them to VA hospitals."

N. Y. Expressmen To Picket Depot

New York, March 11 (U.P.).—The executive committee of Railway Express Workers in New York announced today they were asking their union president for permission to picket Grand Central Station, Pennsylvana Station and other depots in the city.

Daniel J. Sullivan, general chairman of the city local of the AFL Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, said he was certain the 20 operating and nonoperating brotherhoods would respect the picket lines, completely paralyzing passenger and freight traffic in New York.

Some 9000 railway express employers will be laid off tomorrow by the company, which placed an embargo on all shipments to, from and through New York on Thursday. The company blamed a slowdown by the workers. The union and the company are deadlocked on contract negotiations which led to a rank-and-file slowdown.

The union is seeking a 40-hour week, instead of 44 hours, two consecutive days off and a 25-cent hourly wage increase. Present wages range from $1.32 to $1.34 hourly.

The company has offered a 7-cent hourly hike retroactive to last October, and a staggered 40-hour work week at the same rate paid for 44 hours last year.

After Weekend

N.Y. Embargo May Bring Layoffs Here

Some layoffs are in prospect for employes of the Railway Express stations in this area if the New York traffic embargo continues over the weekend, it was learned yesterday.

Nine thousand Railway Express workers are being furloughed in and around New York City as the result of a dispute between the transfer company and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (AFL).

In this area—the District, Arlington, Alexandria, Hyattsville and Silver Spring—there are 780 Railway Express employes, most of whom are members of Lodge 2037 of the Railways Clerks.

Walter Hughes, the Railway Express agent here, said yesterday that 25 to 30 per cent of Washington's traffic was with New York. He said that if the New York traffic embargo, ordered two days ago were still in effect over the weekend, he probably would be forced to lay off some of his men in proportion with the decrease in business.

James A. Sisk, chairman of Lodge 2037, said yesterday his local was not directly involved in the New York dispute. The Railway Clerks in New York City undertook a slowdown demonstration to protest alleged stalling tactics on the part of the company in negotiating a new contract.

Negotiations between the railway clerks and Railway Express have been under way on a national basis since last April. The union seeks a five-day 40-hour week instead of the present 44-hour, 5½-day work week with no loss in pay, plus 25 cents an hour increase in wages, together with certain changes in working conditions. Railway Express employes now get $1.32 to $1.34 an hour.

Strike of 4000 Closes Ford Highland Plant

Detroit, March 11 (U.P.).—A strike by 4,000 CIO United Auto Workers closed the Highland Park plant of the Ford Motor Co. today.

Alton J. Hole, plant manager, said most of the hourly rated workers walked off their jobs in protest against the disciplining of two employes in the cutting room of the trim department.

The paint and trim departments for Ford, Lincoln and Mercury cars and trucks and tractor manufacturing lines are located in the struck plant.

would affect the action of the committee.

Some observers here speculated that neither the protest against Boyd nor the "memorial period" for the mine casualties was the real objective of the two-week stay-away order. These observers noted that there was a 45-day supply of coal above the ground—accumulated as a result of the mild winter in the industrial East—and that John L. would soon be starting his spring negotiations with the mine owners.

A two-week mine holiday, it was pointed out, would cut down the present stockpile of coal, largest in the past six years, and strengthen the UMW president's hand in renewing the contracts, which expire June 30.

Some coal producers said they'd welcome the temporary shutdown in view of the marketing slump, but John D. Battle, executive vice president of the National Coal Association, declared Lewis' action to be a strike "in keeping with his contempt for his contract."

Battle also charged that the protest demonstration was proof of John L.'s desire to "dictate Federal appointments to high office."

The steel mills reported the two weeks' halt in coal production would not affect their operations since there was sufficient coal on hand to proceed at top speed to meet the great demand for steel.

On Capitol Hill, some Congressmen expressed the fear that the stay-away order would hamper the Administration's move to repeal the Taft-Hartley Labor Management Relations Act.

Most controversial provision of the much disputed measure deals with the handling of national emergency strikes. The present provision, which backs up an 80-day cooling-off period with a court injunction, was admittedly aimed chiefly at John L. Lewis and his mine workers.

"It looks as if Mr. Lewis is trying to reduce the amount of coal above ground so that a strike will be more effective upon termination of the contract," commented Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), senior minority member of the Senate Labor Committee and co-author of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Although taken by surprise, rank and file members of the UMW—a spot check of the Pittsburgh area showed—prepared to suspend activities. There was no question but that most were ready to back John L. to the fullest extent.

There were some grumbles, though, such as:

"I just got out of debt from the strike last year."

"Who's Boyd, anyway?"

The two weeks work stoppage—estimated to cost the miners around 56 million dollars in wages—will be the second time that John L. has invoked the "memorial period" clause of the UMW contract since the provision was agreed upon eight years ago.

The "memorial period" was first called into effect from March 31 to April 6, 1947, five days after the disaster at Centralia, Ill., where 111 men were killed in an explosion.

In calling that period of prayer and commemoration, Lewis excoriated Secretary of Interior Julius A. Krug, who was running the mines for the Federal Government. The Government had seized the mines following collapse of negotiations between the ULMW and the mine operators.

Dr. Boyd's appointment troubles stem, at least in part, from clash and feuding between Lewis and Krug. Lewis charged Krug with "criminal negligence" in the Centralia disaster. He later told a congressional committee that the miners do not want to work in the mines "with only that protection that would come from a man appointed by J. A. Krug to safeguard their lives." Thereby, John L. indicated that any Krug-sponsored nomination would be opposed by the UMW.

Last Monday, at a Senate committee hearing on the latest appointment of Dr. Boyd, a UMW spokesman charged that Boyd has never seen the inside of a coal mine, is practically a stranger to the industry, and has never been employed in coal mines or worked directly in this industry.

"Mr. Boyd cannot even qualify as a coal mine inspector . . ." the UMW representative, John Owens, declared. In response to a query, he said:

"The miners are becoming impatient and angry over the delay in action on safety and there may soon come a day when they will refuse to go down in the mines until these things so long complained of are corrected."

Art Awards Given 100 in Area Schools

One hundred students in junior and senior high schools in the Washington area last night received awards for their entries in the Scholastic Art Awards Exhibit sponsored in this region by Frank R. Jelleff Inc.

Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of the District schools, presented the prizes, 100 gold keys and 100 honor certificates, to the youngsters, whose exhibits included practically every phase of pictorial, graphic and commercial art as well as the crafts.

Before making the awards at the Department of Interior auditorium, Dr. Corning told the young artists, "I was amazed at the great variety of talent, media and means of expression that has been shown in this exhibit.

"You have shown what is within you with your art and I hope you will continue to perfect your techniques."

Always remember, he added, that as artists you cannot ignore the public for which you work; a selfish artist cannot be a great artist. The world is now your audience and I hope these awards will challenge you to greater efforts.

Among the youngest exhibitors was 12-year-old Billy Hix, a student at Hine Junior High School. Billy, who lives at 624 North Carolina ave. se., entered a prize-winning mask. According to Billy the mask may look "just like anything" to the average observer, but to him—and he hopes to art critics—it means "a lot of important things."

The 100 winners were culled by a panel of judges from more than 1000 entries. Later in the month they will be sent to the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh to compete in national competition sponsored by the Scholastic magazine. Further prizes include thousands of dollars and 90 scholarships to leading art schools.

Pumpkin Film Revelations Reported

New York, March 11 (AP).—The Daily News says the FBI has found in California a photographer connected with the Whittaker Chambers "pumpkin" microfilms and the photographer is "singing his head off."

The News said in a story from Washington that the man had been sought ever since Chambers produced the microfilms, allegedly of filched Government documents, from a hollow pumpin on his farm at Westminster, Md.

The man's identity, the newspaper said, is being closely guarded, but he is one of two photographers who were suspected of helping Chambers make the films in a secret studio, probably in Baltimore.

The News said the photographer has given the FBI "startling new information" about Chambers' affairs.

The information, the News said, is expected to bring new action by the New York special grand jury on subversive activities.

Former NLRB Lawyer Backs T-H Labor Act

By The Associated Press

A former Government labor lawyer said yesterday there should be equality of treatment for labor and management and the Taft-Hartley law "approaches" it.

Charles M. Brooks, now an attorney for the Texas Co. in New York, said there should be some changes in the law, but not outright repeal as the Administration proposes.

Brooks said these were his personal views, not necessarily those of the oil company for which he works. He said he wanted to give a House Labor Subcommittee the benefit of his 10-year experience as a lawyer with the National Labor Relations Board.

Both labor and management should be required to bargain collectively, Brooks said, as the Taft-Hartley law now requires. He recommended keeping the ban on closed shops—in which only union members are hired. He favored requiring both management and union leaders, not just the latter, to swear they are not Communists.

The Communist-oath issue had touched off a lively debate earlier in the hearing.

Representative Nixon (R., Calif.) said that, in unions, "the Communist power is on the way down. I think the Communist affidavit has contributed to that."

Representative Perkins (D., Ky.) said the affidavit is "totally unfair on its face" because it applies to unions only and not to management.

Witnesses who said the oath ought to be kept were George J. Tichy of Spokane, Wash., and John G. Curren of New Orleans, La., representing the National Lumber Manufacturers Association and other organizations.

The Administration bill would knock out this requirement and many more Taft-Hartley provisions, such as injunctions to stop "national emergency" strikes.

Survey Shows Business Looks For Job Increase in 60 Days

A Government survey indicated yesterday that businessmen look for an upturn in employment in the next 60 days.

Robert C. Goodwin, director of United States Employment Service, said the survey covered employers in 92 major labor market areas and was the first made since unemployment began to rise in the last quarter of 1948.

"A majority of the employers expected a moderate employment recovery in late April and May but did not expect the recovery to raise employment this year to last year's record-breaking levels," Goodwin said in a statement.

'Relatively High' Level

"An employment recovery substantially more vigorous than indicated by the survey would be necessary to restore employment losses and bring employment to the levels of last fall," he said.

Nevertheless, Goodwin said, the employment outlook this spring and summer" is for relatively high employment."

He said the past three months have brought "an easing of the labor supply" on a Nation-wide basis.

"Employment declines in December and January were much more widespread, affected more industries and were in most instances deeper than a year ago," Goodwin said.

He said that initial and continued claims for unemployment insurance last week showed some further rise in unemployment.

Claims Up 163,000

The number of continued claims for the week ended March 5 jumped 163,000 to 1,971,000. Initial claims rose from 293,000 the preceding week to 317,000.

Some of the increase, Goodwin said, represented merely a carryover because many claims were unfiled on account of the Washington birthday holiday in some of the bigger States.

Goodwin said he interpreted the employer judgments favoring a seasonal pickup in employment this spring as "moderately optimistic." He said it will be May before the trend will be definitely known. In any event, he said unemployment probably will be higher throughout 1949 than any year since the war.

Lloyd's Ship Policies To End on Hostilities

London, March 11 (AP).—Lloyd's underwriters today gave notice that, effective March 28, war risk insurance on ships will end 48 hours after the outbreak of any war between any of the Big Four.

Leukemia Victim

ALBERT WYMAN
Each day may be his last

Woodland, Wash., March 11 (AP).—The Christmas tree still glows for Albert Wyman.

And every night his daddy brings home new gifts.

It's a wonderful life for a 5-year-old.

But Albert doesn't know that last December doctors said he had about 90 days to live.

Albert asked Santa Claus for a fire engine last Christmas. It came, but Albert felt awfully tired. It was fun, but not as much as if he'd felt real chipper.

Dr. S. H. Gorton, a close friend of Albert's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wyman, said Albert had acute lympathic leukemia.

A blood transfusion pepped up Albert. But Dr. Gorton warned the parents that more transfusions would be needed. Some night soon he will go to sleep and die.

His time is filled with feeding Bessie, his cow, and her twin calves; teaching his dog to shake hands, and feeding the chickens that fly to meet him. Then he plays wit' his brothers, one 19 months, the other a 3-year-old.

This is a small town and it's nothing out of the way that in each of the four churches prayers are said on Sunday for a laughing little boy who likes to go to sleep listening to Mother Goose rhymes on the phonograph.

Some night his mother will take the needle from the record and Albert's Christmas will be gone.

New York, March 11 (U.P.)—Pretty Judith Coplon pleaded innocent and was released on $20,000 bail at her arraignment on espionage charges today, but the Russian engineer accused with her defied the court and stuck to his claim of diplomatic immunity.

Balding, 32-year-old Valentin Gubitchev refused to have an attorney assigned to help him and, through an interpreter, told the court he wanted no part of American justice.

"I consider myself a foreigner and a member of the diplomatic profession," he said, "and I consider that the accusations leveled at me are a provocation pursuing a certain aim. Therefore, I will refuse to answer the questions of the court."

Judge Simon H. Rifkind, who had given Gubitchev permission to speak, then told the Russian he would assign him an attorney anyway and if he refuses his services that would be Gubitchev's responsibility. He adjourned pleading for the Russian to Monday.

Arrive in Same Van

The stocky, tight-lipped Gubitchev and the dark-haired, 27-year-old Miss Coplon, a native of Brooklyn and honor graduate of Barnard College, arrived at the Federal Courthouse together in a black prison van. It was their first time outside Federal detention stations since they were arrested a week ago by the FBI.

Embarrassed by the crowd of reporters and photographers on hand, Miss Coplon hurried between two U. S. marshals into the building. Then Gubitchev stepped out of the van, holding his handcuffed hands before his face to frustrate photographers.

Miss Coplon, speaking in a low voice, said "Not guilty" as the clerk read the three counts of the espionage indictment returned against her yesterday by a grand jury. Charged with wilfully attempting to turn over U. S. secrets to a foreign power which could use them to this country's injury, she faces a possible 35 years in prison and $20,000 fine if convicted.

Higher Bail Rejected

Raymond P. Whearty, special assistant to the Attorney General, asked the court to have Miss Coplon's bail increased to $50,000. Then Rifkind listened to Miss Coplon's attorney, Bertram J. Adams, tell of her fine family background and the belief of her friends in her innocence.

Rifkind turned to the girl, who wore a black beret, black coat and black suede shoes.

"I'm sure you won't get any silly notions about running away," he said.

"No, sir," Miss Coplon replied.

"Don't have any such ideas," continued the lecturing judge. "As far as this court is concerned you are innocent until you are found guilty. If you try to become a fugitive from justice your life will be ruined.

"Face the consequences and when they are over your life will not be ruined."

He then approved her release on $20,000 bail and she ran from the clerk's office, with her brother, Bertram, and another male relative, down a corridor, down six flights of steps to a waiting taxicab.

Her trial was set for April 1.

His bail continued at $100,000, Gubitcher, was led back to the van and returned to the detention home.

Later, at the girl's Brooklyn home, the brother told reporters she would not be interviewed but "she's happy to be home and of course we're happy to see her here."

He said the family were confident she will be "entirely exonerated."

Laughlin Cries Bias, Asks New Trial for 'Sally'

By Howard L. Dutkin

The demeanor of Federal Judge Edward M. Curran toward Miss Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars, convicted traitor, during her recent trial "was one of a prejudicial nature," Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin charged yesterday in a motion for a new trial.

"It was obvious from the demeanor and attitude and conduct of the trial judge that he wanted the defendant convicted, that he expected a conviction, and from the manner in which the charge was delivered it was apparent that he was going to do everything possible to bring about a conviction," Laughlin stated in his written motion filed in District Court.

"The charge of the trial judge was inflammatory, prejudicial and designed to prejudice the defendant," the motion asserted. "The tenor of the charge and the manner of delivery showed hostility toward the defendant and what appeared to be a concerted and well-thought-out plan to shatter various elements in the defense of the accused and to remedy defects in the prosecution's case."

Some 20 allegations of "error" on the part of Judge Curran were charged in the motion. Among them were charges that the judge "erred":

1. In refusing to permit evidence as to the results of the defendant's broadcasts.

2. In refusing to admit testimony as to the value of the Mark.

3. In permitting records of "certain broadcasts" to be placed in evidence "inasmuch as this was a violation of the rule against self-incrimination."

4. In attempting to silence the jurors after the jurors had been discharged.

5. In instructing the jury that the evidence as to Miss Gillars' alleged oath of allegiance to Germany did not constitute an oath, affirmation or other formal declaration.

6. In holding that the alleged taking up of Miss Gillars' passport by U. S. authorities in Berlin in 1940 did not constitute an act of expatriation.

7. In refusing to permit evidence as to the constitution of concentration camps in Germany during wartime.

The Government has five days to file answer to the motion. In the meantime, Judge Curran's office announced that sentencing of the former broadcaster for the Nazi radio would be withheld pending outcome of arguments on the move for a new trial.

Reds' Lawyer Assails Juror Examination

New York, March 11 (AP).—The long, tedious process of picking a jury to try 11 U. S. Communist leaders was sparked today by a defense lawyer's claim that the judge was forcing him to use his challenges "blindly."

This allegation came from Attorney Richard F. Gladstein.

He moved to dismiss 12 prospective jurors remaining in the jury box after Judge Harold R. Medina had completed his two-day examination of jury panel members willing to serve in the lengthy trial.

Motion Is Overruled

Gladstein declared "I am obliged to exercise peremptory challenges blindly" on the ground that Medina had not brought out sufficient information about the "state of mind" of the prospective jury members.

The judge overruled the motion.

As court adjourned later for the weekend, the defense had exercised three of its 15 peremptory challenges and the prosecution one of its six. Thus, four other members of the jury panel were brought in to take the place of the four challenged on the "tentative" jury.

The three persons challenged by the defense were a housewife, a salesman and a utility worker. The Government also challenged a housewife.

The four persons picked by lot from the jury wheel to replace those challenged included a retired insurance company clerk, a housewife, a woman house manager and a man who was immediately excused by Medina.

Rejects "Special Juror"

The judge took this action because the man said he once had played tennis with City Councilman Benjamin J. Davis, jr., one of the defendants.

Gladstein objected to this dismissal, but Medina said the defendant was "not entitled to" any special juror.

The man then was replaced by a woman department store employe.

There were six women and six men in the box as court adjourned. Mrs. Thelma Dial, Negro, who is the No. 1 juror at the moment, had not been challenged and will be foreman if she is permitted to remain.

The defendants are charged with conspiring to advocate the forcible overthrow of the United States Government.

'Sally' Witness Is Granted $5000 Bail

A German treason-case witness was granted bail yesterday after he shouted that he would rather go back to Europe than spend "another hour" in District Jail.

The United States Court of Appeals set $5000 surety bond for the witness, Emil W. K. Beckmann, former radio editor who testified in behalf of Mildred E. (Axis Sally) Gillars.

Beckmann was brought here from Germany specifically for Miss Gillars. Immigration bureau officials arrested him toward the end of that trial and planned to reship him to the occupied zone of Germany.

At that point, Beckmann sought his release on a writ of habeas corpus. He contends he is held for deportation illegally since he is under subpena in behalf of another treason defendant, Herbert J. Burgman, former Berlin embassy clerk accused of broadcasting Nazi propaganda.

Miss Gillars, Burgman and Beckmann are all represented by Attorney James J. Laughlin.

The Appeals Court granted bail pending a review of the dismissal of the habeas corpus writ by the District Court.

Chief Judge Harold M. Stephens said he was insisting on a high bond because Beckmann might have no legal status to remain in this country and yet apparently was making determined efforts to stay here—but not in jail.

Victor A. Woerheide, special assistant to the Attorney General opposed bail, stating that he believed Beckmann to be untrustworthy and might flee the jurisdiction of the court.

Anti-Red Bill Advanced by House Vote

Annapolis, Md., March 11 (AP).—The House of Delegates today adopted a committee report favoring the Ober Commission's anti-Communist bill.

The Judiciary Committee report was promptly approved by a voice vote. There was no debate.

The Senate already has passed the measure, aimed at uprooting subversive activity in Maryland.

Final House approval was predicted for early next week. The bill would then have to go back to the Senate for concurrence in an amendment tightening the definition of a subversive to one who wants to overthrow the Government by force and violence.

Pipe Line Urged

Paris, March 11 (NYHT).—The French Government has asked the National Assembly to approve the construction of a pipe line between Havre and Paris that would carry 1,500,000 tons of gasoline and fuel oil annually and reduce their retail cost.

Economic Union For 3 Benelux Countries Put Off

The Hague, Netherlands, March 11 (U.P.).—Economic union between Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg, scheduled to become operative January 1, 1950, will be delayed six months, authoritative sources said today.

The premiers and foreign ministers of the three Benelux countries, here for a three-day meeting, reportedly reached this decision.

Reliable sources said complete agreement was reached on the following points:

1. Gradual elimination of state subsidies.

2. Elimination of remaining controls, such as rationing, in Holland.

3. Pooling of all available monetary resources to be invested in such a way as to avoid overproduction.

Parley Slated On Resources

Lake Success, March 11 (NYHT).—The United Nations announced today that more than 700 scientists and experts from at least 50 countries are expected to attend a conference here on August 17 to exchange knowledge on how to make the resources of the earth last longer and go farther and create more happiness and comfort for more people.

The 15-day meeting—the U. N. Scientific Conference on the Conservation and Utilization of Resources—was first suggested to the U. N. by President Truman on September 4, 1946, and its agenda will include discussion of virtually all of the resources of the world—excepting the politically controversial one of atomic energy. The U. N. Atomic Energy Commission is already working on that.

Red Spending On Arms May Top All West

By J. M. Roberts, Jr.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Study of the new Russian budget indicates that Soviet military expenditures this year will equal and possibly exceed those of the entire Western powers.

American sources of available information cannot be identified lest their pipelines to Russia be uncovered, but their authority is unquestionable.

Exact comparison between Russian and Western military budgets are almost impossible.

A vast proportion of all Russian military expenditure goes into new plants and machinery either directly designed for or easily convertible to war purposes. This is also true in the West, but in a smaller ratio.

The United States and other countries also have hidden budgets for war purposes, such as the atomic energy program and espionage.

U. S, Figures More Realistic

But the U. S. military budget is incomparably more open and realistic than the Russian.

The 15 billion dollars allocated to the U. S. armed forces this year covers almost all direct military items, including everything from adding machines and chairs in the Pentagon to planes, tanks, roads and strictly military research. It includes 525 million dollars for stockpiling.

On the other hand, if Russia still follows her standard budgetary practices (and there is evidence she does), her 15 billion dollars for the armed forces in 1949 represents little more than a salary, housing, food and upkeep fund for the army.

Planes, tanks and atomic plants come from the 30-billion-dollar item in her budget "for the national economy." Research comes under "education."

The "national economy" item also covers plants producing purely consumer goods.

American sources say, however, that while expenditures under this item have been jumping upward in the past three years, consumer goods production has not increased comparably despite Russian propaganda.

Plants Ready to Convert

They say that allocations under the "national economy" item give a definite "Hitlerian form" to Russian industry. Plants, for instance, are primarily designed to produce tanks, and then put to immediate use making farm tractors. Or tanks and tractors may be made side by side in the same plant.

Here are the expenditures under the "national economy" and "arme the "national economy" and "armed forces" items of the Russian budget since 1923, with figures in billions of rubles:

	National Economy	Armed Forces
Five-year period 1923-27	7.4	2.8
1928-32	53.9	4.9
1933-37	181	47
1938-40	170.4	118.2
(Figures for early war years unavailable.)
1945 (last war year)	74	128
1946	103.9	72.6
1947	132.7	56.4
1948	149	66

It is interesting to note the 1928-32 peacetime figures as compared with the 1938-40 prewar period and the "cold war" years.

The 1928-32 "national economy" figure, when all was peaceful, was seven times larger than for the 1923-27 period, and the armed forces figure only twice as large. In the 1938-40 triennium, with preparedness out in the open, the "national economy" figure was smaller than for the preceding five-year period, and the "armed forces" figure more than twice as large. In the "cold war" period, both are jumping.

Although exact figures are not available, except for the United States 15 billion dollars and Britain's three billion dollars, there are indications that the military expenditures of the Western powers in 1949 will run about 21 billion dollars.

The 25-year survey indicates to its compilers that more than half of the Russian "national economy" fund actually goes for military purposes. Half would be 15 billion dollars. Add that to the announced 15 billion dollars for the armed forces and you get what may be the true figure.

The Gallup Poll

7 American Voters Out of 10 Feel Friendly Toward French

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., March 11.—France, deeply involved in the diplomatic struggle between east and west, has a staunch ally in the American people.

Approximately 7 our of every 10 voters questioned in a coast-to-coast survey express friendly attitudes toward the people of France. Only 1 in every 20 say his feelings toward the French are unfriendly.

The survey was started shortly after the arrival of the French "Thank You Train," which undoubtedly had an effect on the public's attitude toward France.

A cross-section of voters was asked the following question by interviewers who conducted the survey:

"I'd like to get your attitude toward the people of France. In general would you say your feelings today toward the French people are friendly or unfriendly?"

The vote:

Friendly	69%
Unfriendly	5
No opinion	26

Each person was then asked what he admires or likes most in the French people, and what he likes least.

The qualities singled out for praise were stamina and courage on the part of the French people.

Americans with the greatest amount of education were found to be the most friendly toward France. The vote according to degree of education follows:

	Friendly	Unfriendly	No Opin.
College	82%	5%	13%
High School	70	5	25
Grade School	65	5	30

Plot Aimed At Van Fleet, Greeks Say

Athens, Greece, March 11 (AP).—A Communist plot to assassinate Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet has failed and the conspirators arrested, the Greek Government said today. General Van Fleet is head of the American Military Mission to Greece.

Minister of Public Order Constantine Rentis said the plan to murder Van Fleet collapsed when the plotters were unable to think of a means of escape after the crime.

"God has protected us, "Rentis said, and touched wood.

"The reports that Communists were planning Van Fleet's assassination originated from the arrest of a member of the 'Democratic Army of Athens,' which has replaced OPLA, the Communist Party's execution squad," he said. "The aim of this group is to assassinate public figures and recalcitrant Communists in Athens."

Rentis said American security police were notified immediately and security measures were increased.

Communists arrested here have confessed knowledge of the plot, he added. A cache of weapons was reported seized.

Rentis said the Communists planned to blame the assassination of Van Fleet on the government, as they did in the case of George Polk. Polk, a Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent, was slain at Salonika May 8, 1948.

It was reported today that investigation of Polk's death has been completed and trial of the four accused Communists will begin soon.

Fake Czech Revolt Plan Is Reported

London, March 11 (AP).—The British radio broadcast a report tonight that Czechoslovak Communists plan a "fake revolution" as an excuse to wipe out political foes.

The Free Czech Information Service said last night a bloody purge will occur soon under the guise of suppressing an uprising and that a service split exists among Czech Communists, who seized power 13 months ago.

"The breach has widened beyond repair," the Czech Information Service said, "at the same time the falling standard of living, the lack of freedom and the intolerable adjustment of public and private life to Soviet standards is causing widespread dissatisfaction which has created an atmosphere of constant tension and alarm for Communists."

The BBC program was beamed to Czechoslovakia and prepared by Bruce Lockhart, former British diplomat. He said the revolt being planned is a "counter revolution to destroy the soul of the nation." He said his information came from "thoroughly reliable sources in Czechoslovakia."

The Free Czechoslovakia movement here said steps are being taken to warn "democratic partisans" against traps. A spokesman said the Communists plan to make the "revolution" look like the real thing, lively enough to bring opponents into the open but of proportions easily managed by police and troops. The spectacle was reported planned for early spring, possibly when the Atlantic Charter is signed.

The Free Czech spokesman said it may be a step by Russia to take absolute control of the land as an answer to the Atlantic Treaty.

Italy Decides to Join Pact

Rome, March 11 (AP).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi announced today his government has approved Italy's participation in the projected North Atlantic Alliance.

His statement, made in a tense session of the Chamber of Deputies, was followed by a sweeping attack on the proposed treaty by Communist and pro-Communist Socialist leaders. But the House defeated, 311 to 165, a motion to turn pact discussions over to a committee.

Italy's decision was reached earlier in the day at a cabinet meeting Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza outlined the main conditions of the planned alliance. Then, De Gasperi said, the cabinet unanimously accepted an invitation for Italy to join.

[The United Press quoted De Gasperi as saying: "We are in a position to assure you that the pact itself is conceived to be part of the United Nations organization. The pact provides that a country which is not directly attacked need not be automatically involved in military operations."] nature of a routine session, to receive last-minute comments from the foreign governments, arrange for release of the text, etc.

Basic agreement on all major points of the final treaty draft was reported to have been reached last week, but final approval was withheld pending review by the various governments.

After yesterday's meeting, the State Department announced, on behalf of the negotiators:

"We cleared up several minor drafting points. We expect the text of the treaty will be released for publication next Friday and that the treaty will be signed during the first week in April in Washington. There will be one or more meetings next week."

Once signed, the treaty will formally be submitted to the various governments for approval, although open debate on the pact actually will be under way once the text is released publicly.

Denmark and Italy are soon expected to join in the treaty, with Portugal and Iceland also likely to participate.

Before the conference with the pact negotiators, Secretary Acheson met for 35 minutes with Danish Foreign Minister Gustav Rasmussen, who arrived Thursday for explanatory talks about the pact.

Rasmussen said there was nothing said yet about Greenland, where the United States has maintained air bases since 1941, but there was a brief discussion of military aid to Denmark.

"We touched on more of the general points," he said. "I also tried to explain the political situation in Denmark." He said he will have further talks with Acheson, and hopes to leave here the middle of next week to report his findings to the Danish Parliament.

In Rome yesterday, Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi told Parliament that the Italian cabinet has unanimously accepted an invitation to join in the treaty talks.

There was no formal confirmation of that here, although it has been assumed that Italy will enter the negotiations momentarily.

Pietro Nenni, leader of the the Italian Socialist Party's left wing, declared the pact is "not defensive," as De Gasperi stated, "but offensive." Comparing it to Mussolini's pact with Hitler, he said, "The decision of the government today is as grave as the Fascist government's decision of 1939."

Premier de Gasperi told Parliament that the treaty provides for mutual assistance if a member-nation is attacked, and provides contributions and collective measures for defense, but does not automatically bind signatories to active warfare.

It has been understood here that the pact declares an attack on one member will be regarded as an attack on all, with armed force to be used if determined necessary by individual nations.

Army Secretary Scores Russians

KENNETH C. ROYALL
Sums up Soviet attitude

Later, Vinson told The Washington Post, the committee would call Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, selective service chief, to "get the entire picture."

"We want to know how many men they have, how they intend to spend the 16 million dollars budgeted for 1950 and what's ahead," he added.

The Armed Services chairman said the inquiry was not aimed at repeal or general revision of the Draft act. Changes undoubtedly, however, will be proposed during the hearings, Vinson added.

Merchant Marine veterans of the war have been petitioning Congress to include them with veterans of the armed forces as deferred from call during peacetime.

War Avoidance Seen Policy

[Berlin] lin continues "tense" with the Russians resorting to "constant threats against the airlift and against the people of Berlin."

He lauded the "practically flawless" manner in which Gen. Lucius Clay, U. S. military commander in Germany, has carried out policy decisions made jointly in Washington by the Army and State Department.

Reports on AA Research

Royall's 356-page report may be his last since he reportedly is ready to resign.

It covered in detail all the civil and military functions of the Army from July 1, 1947, to November 30, 1948.

Among other things, the report said the Army has an extensive research project for the development of antiaircraft guns to shoot down supersonic planes.

It also set forth the Army's wholehearted support for unification of the armed services, but Royall said the law should be broadened to provide for appointment of a military man as head of the joint chiefs of staff.

On September 1, 1948, the Army had 557,633 enlisted men and women, 68,185 commissioned officers and 3313 warrant officers. (On February 1 the Army totalled 702,000 and is cutting back to 677,000).

Royall said there still is a serious shortage of doctors, dentists and nurses and the Army is pushing its program to obtain more through enlistments. (He said recently that a doctors' draft might be necessary if enough do not enlist.)

During the past year Royall considered 42 recommendations for removal of civil employes under the President's loyalty program. He ordered removal of 31 persons, two of whom were rehired after appealing through the review board.

Referring to Clay's efforts to carry out Army-State Department decisions, he said "the effort has been to stand firmly for American rights without being truculent."

"Often the decisions have been close ones where an error on either side was entirely possible. Fortunately, up to this time war has been avoided and America's position has been maintained."

Royall pointed to the present divided currency situation in Germany as the best illustration "of Russian duplicity and falsification of facts."

The Russians, he said, turned down every opportunity offered them to join in a single currency for Germany and then made "continual charges" against the western powers.

Canada Urges U. N. to Act On Indonesia

Lake Success, March 11 (AP).—Canada urged today that the United Nations make a new effort to bring the Dutch and the exiled Indonesian Republic leaders together for round-table talks.

The Canadian move was made here in the Security Council as the Dutch in Holland acknowledged their efforts to start Indonesian talks at The Hague Saturday had failed.

The Council adjourned until 3 p. m. (EST) Monday without taking action.

Republican leaders have refused to go to the proposed Hague talks under Netherlands auspices.

Hearst to Appeal WBAL's Fine for Illegal Broadcast

Baltimore, March 11 (AP).—Hearst Radio, Inc., today filed notice of appeal from its conviction on contempt of court charges for broadcasting prohibited information about a murder suspect.

The corporation's local station, WBAL, was convicted last week and fined $200 for violating Baltimore's unique judicial code on the publication of crime news.

Three other stations and a news commentator who previously were fined also have taken their cases to the Maryland Court of Appeals. There are prospects the controversy may ultimately go to the United States Supreme Court.

The contempt charges grew out of stories about the arrest of Eugene James, 31-year-old Negro [la]ndyman subsequently sentenced to death on the gallows for slaying an 11-year-old girl last summer.

Defiant Eyebrows

It is just two years since President Truman appointed Dr. James Boyd to be director of the Bureau of Mines in the Interior Department. Since December, 1947, he has served without pay pending confirmation by the Senate. The Senate's Interior and Insular Affairs Committee is again considering confirmation of the appointment, which the President has again strongly urged. Again the opposition to Dr. Boyd has raised its leonine head and shaggy eyebrows and yesterday John L. Lewis called a two-weeks strike in an effort to bulldoze the Senate.

Mr. Lewis doesn't want Boyd because Boyd comes with Secretary Krug's approval, and John L. hates Krug. The issue has been plastered over with arguments about whether the appointee ever worked in a mine and whether the Bureau of Mines has been active enough in promoting mine safety to suit the big boss of the United Mine Workers. The real issue is simpler. It is whether the Senate will let the President pick the men he thinks best qualified for the job or whether it will let John L. Lewis do the picking.

Dr. Boyd comes from Colorado and last year the Senate declined to confirm his appointment because Senator Millikin of that State objected. This use of a one-man veto is called "senatorial courtesy." It might have been called an abdication of the Senate's duty of advice and consent in acquiescence to the dictate of John L. Lewis. At the time we said, "Continued failure to confirm this nomination could only aid Lewis in his defiance of all government." We repeat it now. Mr. Lewis has called a strike to serve the ends of his feud with Secretary Krug and the President—a use of the strike weapon that cannot be rationally defended on any ground.

Doing The Impossible

Still in displaced persons camps in Italy and the western zones of Germany and Austria are about half a million people dislocated by war and its aftermath. Another 268,000 DPs are living outside the camps and supporting themselves. These people cannot or dare not return to their previous homes, and the United States has promised them that they will not be forced to go back. We have, furthermore, given our pledge that we, along with other countries, would help them find new homes.

But the job of putting promise into practice has, so far, lagged grievously. The DP Act of last June provided for the entry over two years of 205,000 persons, but under very restrictive provisions. At the end of 1948, according to the first report of the DP Commission, only 2500 had arrived. This was about 1¼ per cent of the total permissible number in one quarter of the available time. An additional 1000 DPs arrived in January, and as many as 4000 are expected this month. But the arrival rate is still far below what it needs to be to fill the total quota.

A number of reasons account for the great lag. The program did not get under way until October. It is a "pipe line" operation; that is, people must start in at the European end of the processing pipe line before they can arrive at this end. It takes about three months to carry through all the details of clearing an individual before he can start for this country. In part this prolonged period can be attributed to the fact that seven or eight different agencies are involved in the procedure: the DP Commission, the Immigration Service, the Army, the IRO, the Public Health Service, the State Department, the FBI, and often a private aid organization in this country with representatives abroad.

The best cooperation among so many agencies—and the cooperation has been good—cannot but slow the process down. This is one of the hindrances that the McGrath and Celler bills to amend the DP Act will not directly remove. But those bills, which are identical and which parallel the recommendations of the DP Commission, would remove the basic obstructions to an effective DP immigration program. They extend the entry period to four years, increase the total number permitted entry to 400,000, move the "cut-off date" up to April 21, 1947, and, most important, eradicate the highly restrictive and discriminatory provisions which have made the present law almost unworkable. Finally, they authorize funds for the operation of the program somewhere near commensurate with the size of the job.

The Displaced Persons Commission was handed a large and pressing task and at the same time saddled with a law that makes successful achievement of the task impossible. Administrative logic as well as good faith demands that the DP Act be amended along the lines of the McGrath and Celler bills. Indeed, as we have already said, the "cut-off date" could well be moved still further up to December 31, 1948. This would extend to recent political refugees from eastern Europe the same privileges of finding a haven now offered to those who suffered persecution at Hitler's hands. Just as appropriate now as then are the words of George Washington that the United States should be "more and more a safe and propitious asylum for the unfortunate of other countries."

Help Without Handouts

All the Latin-American republics, and all other countries that hope to build up their undeveloped areas, would do well to study and ponder a report just published by the Joint Brazil-United States Technical Commission. The commission was a truly cooperative project, on a 50-50 basis. President Truman and President Dutra created it last summer after Brazil had asked for the help of American technicians in surveying her economic resources. Each government appointed technical, industrial and financial experts who then worked as a team, determining where and how Brazil could expand her production and raise her standards of living.

Some of the commission's findings have only a narrow interest, but at least one of them points a moral that can be applied far outside Brazil and outside the Western Hemisphere. After conceding that "a substantial inflow of foreign capital" for development projects must be attracted to Brazil, the report says: "The greater part of the programs must be carried out with Brazilian labor and domestic materials, and should, in the main, be financed with domestic [Brazilian] funds."

This will come as rank heresy to the hemisphere pleaders for a "Marshall Plan for Latin America"—as if the Marshall Plan were nothing but a gigantic hand-out. In Latin America, as in parts of Asia, the Marshall Plan has never been seen clearly as a cooperative effort in which self-help is as important as American aid. The dreary theme of many Latin-American speeches on the subject at meetings of the United Nations, and at Bogota and other inter-American conferences, has been that the United States somehow has an obligation to pour out billions south of the Rio Grande, regardless of whether the would-be recipients have put their own houses in order. The same note has been struck in many comments on Point IV of President Truman's inaugural address, which proposed using American skills rather than vast public funds for developing backward areas.

It is almost breath-taking to find any group of Latin-Americans, like the Brazilians on the joint commission, agreeing that their own country should and could bear the lion's share of the cost of the needed development. Many time-honored methods of finding the money are suggested in place of appeals to the United States Congress: higher taxes, domestic borrowing, the investment of savings in productive enterprises, and, in general, a redoubled effort to produce internal financial stability and thus to attract private capital from abroad.

Not every country with undeveloped areas can boast of the political stability or of the energy Brazil has shown in recent years in developing its vast and largely untapped resources. Yet many countries such as Chile and Colombia in this hemisphere, India and Pakistan in Asia, can profit by learning the lessons of this joint Brazilian-United States undertaking. Mr. Willard Thorp, the Assistant Secretary of State for economic affairs, stated the same truth the other day when he said: "Many a country which thinks itself poor in resources may find that by taking stock of what it has it will discover capacities now unknown. Every country needs not only resources but resourcefulness, and in many an instance it is the resourcefulness of a people that creates a new resource."

Military Puzzle

President Truman proposes to raise military pay and at the same time provide full taxation of such pay, including allowances for quarters and food, hitherto tax exempt. He also suggests that the military system be put on a contributory basis similar to that in effect for classified civil service employes. In principle, these changes appear to be justified. There is no reason why military men in the Government service should enjoy special tax exemptions not accorded to civilians. Certainly they are no less able than civilian employes of the Government to help pay for pensions.

But as matters stand, sizable proportions of the pay adjustments that the President urges would be taken away by the same Government that handed out the increases. If there are to be changes in methods of computing tax liabilities and financing military pensions, justice requires that account be taken of the effect on the earnings of servicemen. In no case should such reforms be made a condition of the pay increases presently required. Separate legislation is called for authorizing the proposed changes and providing for salary adjustments made necessary by them.

Another puzzler is the President's statement that some way must be found to bring down the cost of the proposed pay increases to meet budget requirements. He has allowed 400 million dollars for this purpose in the budget, but "preliminary studies," he says, indicate that the cost would be 590 million dollars. The only conceivable way to bridge the gap, assuming the correctness of the cost estimates, would be to reduce the amount of the pay increases which the President recommends or else reduce the size of the military establishment, which is certainly not in contemplation.

Periled Rent Control

The favorable House action on rent control is encouraging, but it does not mean that the hardest battle in continuing this vital protection for tenants has been won. The legislative mechanism of the Senate has ground to a stop during the filibuster, and another week of talk appears inevitable. Both the national and the District rent control laws expire on March 31. But so far the Senate extension bills have not even been reported out of committee. What has come about is in effect an alliance between Republicans trying to kill rent control and Southern Democrats seeking any lever to use against civil rights.

It is plain from the experience of OPA, as several legislators have indicated, that controls could not be reimposed successfully if they were once allowed to lapse. To allow this protection to end abruptly, not by deliberate vote but by parliamentary shenanigans, would be to play a shabby trick on millions of tenants. The result would be chaos, especially for low-rent tenants in cities where no other protection exists.

The House measure itself is a reasonable compromise of interests. Undoubtedly it was speeded by the Administration's move to decontrol ceilings in some 100 rural and small city areas where the need is not pressing. Proponents also had to yield in accepting the amendment calling for the establishment of a "reasonable return" for landlords. This phrase is vague, and the determination of fair rents will be difficult. But if Housing Expediter Woods is given an adequate staff, more equitable individual adjustments ought to be possible. Likewise in defeating the Wolcott amendment to limit the extension to 90 days, the House showed a realistic understanding that it would be impossible to obtain prompt State action on rent control when many Legislatures are not in session.

All the work of the House will go for naught, however, if rent control is allowed to become a victim of the Senate talkfest. The Senate could save time, we believe, by combining the District bill with the national bill; there is utterly no reason why Washington should operate under a different rent control law from the rest of the country. In any event Senators, Northern and Southern alike, ought to do some serious thinking about the effects of a rent control lapse, OPA-style. The excuse of "filibuster" would look pretty flimsy to the voters.

75-Cent Minimum

The lifting of the minimum wage rate from the present level of 40 cents to 75 cents per hour, as provided in the bill just approved by the House Labor Committee, is an adjustment made necessary by the great increase in living costs since enactment of the Fair Labor Standards Act. Representative Bailey estimates that about five million workers would benefit from the proposed increase in minimum pay, of whom a million and a half earn less than 40 cents an hour. If these estimates can be relied on, it is obvious that some employers will find it difficult, if not impossible, to meet the new scale of rates. In any case, the bill is defective in not providing for a succession of increases in pay that would allow time for essential adjustments, as was permitted under the original Fair Labor Standards Act.

The committee bill has been improved by discarding a plan incorporated in the original Administration bill that would have permitted industry committees to raise the minimum rate of pay to the dollar level. That proposal would have opened the door to haggling over rates of pay and was not calculated to further the purpose of minimum wage legislation. But in our opinion there should be some arrangement for administrative adjustment of minimum wage rates to allow for future changes in living costs without an appeal to Congress for amending legislation.

While coverage is extended under the House bill to embrace two million additional workers, a proposal to extend the Wage-Hour law to activities "affecting commerce" fortunately has been dropped, and exemptions applying to retail establishments have been clearly defined. The bill also provides that overtime payments must be calculated on the basis of regular rates of pay, so defined as to avoid overtime on overtime payments. Most important of all, of course, is the proposed change in the minimum rate. This ought to be approved, though it is to be hoped provision will be made for a step-by-step approach.

TO ONE WHO FELL IN LOVE IN THE SPRING

You who were weather-wise, did you not see the thin line
Darkening the curve of the skies? Did you not hear the sound
The wind made, moving over the grass, over the shadowed ground?
You who could explain the changing complexion of the seas,
Who knew the prelude to rain, why did you turn your face
To the trembling first star lost in the wave of space?

You who were weather-wise, saw only the April light
There in the night-skies . . . while the clouds in the hidden West
Moved to hide the coming moon, and your heart spoke in your breast.
But you could not hear, you could not see,
Though the wind gave its warning . . .
Making a sound like autumn in the branches of the tree.

"Subversive Dragnet"

As a Marylander I agree with your editorial of March 9, "Subversive Dragnet." All true-hearted Americans should frown upon communism that advocates the overthrow of all governments but its own through intrigue and violence. Yet when our State Legislatures resort to the same methods of dealing with Communists as Communists employ in dealing with their opponents, we become just as vicious and devilish as they are.

Our Federal Government has laid the burden upon the FBI and the Department of Justice to deal with our domestic foes, and foreign foes within our borders, and they are doing an effective job. As long as the Federal Government is on the alert and active in curbing these subversive elements in positions of public trust and responsibility, the State governments have a stronger ally in the Federal Government than in their own local government.

There is altogether too much diverse legislation enacted by the different State Legislatures in matters for which the Federal Government should enact uniform standards of legislation. Let us not be controlled by the spirit of hysteria that punishes people for their opinions and convicts them on hearsay before they are proved guilty of overt acts.

The old Alien and Sedition Acts ought not to be revived either by the Federal or State governments. Liberty-loving people with a powerful Government behind them can afford to wait until overt acts are committed as acts of treason before denying the right to hold opinions, even if we disagree with those opinions.

Voting Qualifications

In his March 5 discussion of the antipoll tax bill, Mark Sullivan expresses concern that States' rights would be undermined if "Congress has power to take away from the States their right to fix their own qualifications for voting . . ."

When States' rights conflict with the development of an entire national program, does Mr. Sullivan still contend that they must be protected? Surely he knows that this poll tax is an instrument to retain the status quo. Poor white and colored are equally second class citizens, deprived of voting privilege—surely an un-American penalty for poverty! The vested interests in the States are thus able repeatedly to reelect the same candidate, necessarily sympathetic to them. By virtue of seniority these Southern Congressmen acquire a number of key congressional chairmanships, giving them power and influence way beyond their numerical strength.

MRS. LESTER NEUMAN.
Washington.

The Washington Post is to be congratulated on the publication of so wise an article as that on "Centralization," by Mark Sullivan.

It is entirely natural that in the North and West parts of our country, where a large proportion of the population are immigrants or children of immigrants from Europe, they should regard the States of our Union as mere geographical divisions like the provinces in France and the counties in England and have a small regard for States' rights.

One of these rights, as Mr. Sullivan points out, is that of determining who shall have the right to vote in the respective States. All of the States had at the time of adoption of the Constitution a limitation of the ballot to persons who had property or paid a poll tax in one shape or another. There is no race discrimination in the poll tax, as Mr. Sullivan points out.

If any citizen cares to pay for the privilege of voting as much as the price of a bottle of whisky, or to take his family to the movies, he can do so in Virginia which has a poll tax that goes to the support of the schools. The invasion of the rights of the States is an important step in the centralization of our Government. General Eisenhower wisely calls this movement a "crippling paralysis" which threatens our Government.

House Recesses

It seems a shame and a waste of valuable time for the House of Representatives to recess because of the death of one of its members. It is fine to show proper respect and sorrow when an associate dies, but how much better it would be if instead of stopping work for a day, the House of Representatives would redouble its efforts to properly execute its responsibilities.

Collective Security

Collective security is undoubtedly the first business of the Nation. Is an alliance the form that such security should take? In the long run it will probably be true that the real measure of our security as it is reinforced by other nations will be measured by the degree of good faith that we evince to the world.

Alliances, pacts, or treaties are not truly practical proposals, for none of these contains the instruments of government.

The correct action of a leader nation is to propose a government of the world preferably through modification of the United Nations. Any possible minority obstruction on an international scale should be met by a majority's determination to proceed on a governmental basis with a perpetual invitation to all people on earth. These would be declarations of good faith beyond all suspicion.

It is no use to say that it is not feasible for practical men of government now to assume this approach to international affairs—for men to say we must wait for the world to mature. A society without law does not mature that way.

Nor should we say that an international rule of law must await favorable public opinion while we sit and wait. Rather, public opinion must be rationally but rapidly brought to the realization of the immediacy of the demand.

A Butter Maker Looks At Oleo

This oleo-butter fight now going on in Congress is surcharged with emotion. I happen to be both a butter maker and a cotton grower so I ought to take a balanced view of the controversy.

My rich black soil grows the cotton, and they say the oil from the seed is made into margarine. My lovely Guernsey cows give rich creamy milk, and I make the butter. I do it all myself to be sure it's done just so.

I am in Washington for other reasons, but I'm interested in the oleo-butter fight. The other day I edged into the packed committee room when Louis Bromfield was telling it to the Congressmen. Louis is always sure he is right about anything to do with agriculture. He told me I ought to quit growing cotton and make more butter. He was testifying for butter and against oleo, and he made out that social and moral values were deeply involved.

I think Louis Bromfield may be sentimental about butter. I know that I am. I think that hot crumbly cornbread spread thick with good butter is the best eating there is. But the butter must be really good or its defects show up when it melts on hot bread. To make it just right you must have skill and solicitude at every moment from the cow to the churn, and it can go bad right in the churn if the cream is a wee bit too warm.

It must be much easier to make good oleo than it is to make good butter. Probably my taste for butter has become oversensitive or professional, because I don't often like what I get when I'm away from home. When I'm away I much prefer oleo, because it seems to be uniformly good. I won't admit it has the superb flavor of my own hand-made butter, but I find less to regret in oleo than in store-bought butter. I want it yellow, though.

I heard Louis Bromfield and others say that if Congress allows oleo to be colored and sold untaxed, then oleo would drive cow butter off the market and put us butter makers out of business, and that would be a social crime.

I agree that colored, untaxed, uniformly good oleo would compete strongly. But people's buying habits don't change overnight, and I don't see the social crime in any event. I'm not sure either that the value and consumption of cow butter would decline much. Because people love cream, and hardly anybody now gets all the cream he'd like to have, and would buy, if quality, price and distribution methods were adapted to people's wants.

I know how well people like cream. I've made many tests to find out. When I have guests at the table I put on a fresh pound of butter and two good big pitchers of thick cream. Almost always the cream disappears promptly and I have to bring on more, while at the end of the meal the pound of butter remains pretty well intact. So I know if you'll give people half a chance and feed them something that cream goes with they'll go all out for the cream and neglect the butter.

So I say, if untaxed yellow oleo competes with my cow butter—that is okay. I'll compete back with cow cream. I don't think the city distributors have tried out the market for real cream. They thin it down so much that the only important difference between their cream and their milk is the difference in price.

Cow butter is almost always sold at a loss to the guy that feeds and milks the cows. Butter is a "loss leader" for the farmer dairyman. It is made from the surplus butterfat that the distributors won't or don't or can't sell in with the milk or as cream, and they usually don't pay much for the surplus.

I don't agree with Mr. Bromfield at all—he wants to keep the tax on oleo and keep the color out. I want to take tax off and put the color in.

Hoover Commission Boomerang

BEHIND the hydroelectric dams that have been built on several of America's great rivers since 1933 is a concept of the general good. Specifically, they were intended to provide flood control and navigation for all the people of the region.

Childs

For that reason part of the cost was charged up by instruction of Congress to benefits which would not directly return any revenue to the Treasury. This is a fact that private utility propagandists either refuse to recognize or deliberately distort. Utility propagandists are constantly holding up the cost accounting of TVA alongside that of private utilities, although in the broader sense they are not comparable at all.

This same implication runs through the task force reports of the Hoover Commission on public power. As was told in this space, those reports, not yet released, have stirred deep differences among commission members.

That is unfortunate since the detailed and lengthy studies contain many suggestions for improving the operation of these vast Federal enterprises. The danger is that the good will be lost sight of in the heat of argument over what are essentially political issues. Some commission members have expressed the fear that the controversy may cut across all the valuable work that the Hoover group has done in trying to prune and pare down the luxuriant jungle growth of Government.

IN A report prepared for the commission by A. B. Roberts, consulting engineer of Cleveland, Ohio, it is estimated that multiple-purpose river valley projects will cost 40 billion dollars in the next 20 years. The report suggests that the total cost may be even larger because of "extensive shipments of steel, power-plant equipment and supplies for aid to Europe." Then the author of the report says:

"In view of the continuing burden of taxation indicated by the trends shown above, it is believed that now is the time to reappraise the accomplishments to be anticipated from multiple-purpose projects. Once under way, they are almost impossible to eliminate. Unless the Congress and the taxpayers consider carefully the implications of these trends of Federal expenditures, they may, without even realizing it, throw upon themselves and their children a continuing and perhaps an ever-mounting burden . . ."

Millions of Americans paying their income tax this week feel strongly about the volume of Government spending. But it is doubtful that the place to begin cutting is on projects that are in considerable part self-liquidating and that contribute so largely to the wealth and welfare of the Nation.

Only in an economy that is expanding and growing can the burden of taxation for European aid and to maintain a strong America be sustained. Once you stop expansion, you run the risk of mounting unemployment and further curtailment in a downward spiral.

THIS IS a lesson some people never seem to learn. As was shown in the controversy between TVA and the private utilities, private operators would never have built TVA's dams and power projects. Equally clear is the fact that without TVA power the country could never have produced the aluminum for 50,000 planes a year in the war.

The great new projects in the Pacific Northwest are providing employment for thousands of newcomers who were attracted by jobs in war plants. Without this resource of power, there might be serious unemployment.

As the specialists for the Hoover Commission point out, there is much overlapping and duplication in the Government approach to flood control, navigation and power. The Army Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, the various power administrations, the Department of Agriculture, all have a hand in it.

Senator James Murray of Montana has now introduced a bill to create a Missouri Valley Authority which would have as its province the great basin of the Missouri and its tributaries. That river valley is now being developed on a sort of share-the-work basis by the Army Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation.

Perhaps the valley authority is the correct way to get the most out of every Government dollar spent. But the argument should be primarily one of method and means. We are too rich, or, if you will, too poor, to let our assets or soil and water go wasting to the sea.

Israel Takes Coastal Area After Clash

Tel Aviv, Israel, March 11 (U.P.).—Israel has occupied the disputed five-mile Elath coastal area at the southern tip of Palestine after a minor clash with Trans-Jordanian troops based at Aqaba, the government announced today.

Foreign Minister Moshe Sharet (Shertok) said the "incident" occurred five days ago, and "Elath is in our hands." He added that "only a few shots were exchanged and no one was hurt."

The Israeli disclosure coincided with the signing of a cease-fire between Israel and Trans-Jordan at Rhodes. Representatives of the two nations, meeting with acting United Nations mediator Ralph J. Bunche, agreed their troops would advance no farther.

The Elath area is a tiny coastal strip bordering on Egypt and Trans-Jordan on the Gulf of Aqaba, an arm of the Red Sea. Israel hopes to turn it into a port. The area has been claimed by both the Jews and the Arabs.

Sharet said the clash resulted from "an Arab Legion patrol roaming into our territory."

Sharet said the legionnaires returned almost immediately to Trans-Jordan and, as far as Israel authorities are concerned, "the incident is closed."

Cairo dispatches, however, said Israel had concentrated 1600 tank-supported troops in the southeastern Negev area, near Aqaba, which is garrisoned by British forces under an agreement with Trans-Jordan. British sources in Cairo said Britain will block any Israeli attempt to enter Aqaba.

Sharet explained that Britain had asked for assurances that no "hostile action" was planned against the Trans-Jordan port and that the Israeli foreign ministry had replied that British fears were groundless.

Sharet warned of possible new outbreaks in central Palestine, where Iraqi irregulars were making repeated raids outside the Tulkarm - Jenin - Nablus triangle, and "we may be forced to take action to bring things back to normal."

Roscoe Martin Elected Head Of Civic Group

Roscoe Martin of the University of Alabama was elected president of the American Society for Public Administration last night.

Martin, who is chairman of the university's political science department, succeeds John J. Corson, circulation manager of The Washington Post.

About 500 specialists in public administration from Federal, State and local governments and universities attended opening sessions yesterday of the three-day meeting in the Hotel Statler.

James Rowe, jr., member of the Hoover Commission, spoke at a luncheon in place of Secretary of Defense James Forrestal, also a member of the commission, who was unable to attend. Corson presided.

Rowe recalled the work of the President's Committee on Administrative Management in 1937, and said proposals it made, which seemed radical at the time, are now generally accepted. If after ten years the work of the Hoover Commission is as widely accepted, he said, there will be reason for satisfaction.

Rensis Likert, head of the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan, and chairman of a panel on "research on human relations in administration," warned against too autocratic supervisory policies and said "a democratic society is a more mature society than an autocratic one."

Nathan Maccoby, a study director at the institute, reported on three separate studies dealing with employe morale and group productivity.

Among factors affecting morale, it was found, were:

1. Type of work: The less monotonous the task, the more varied and the more skill required, the higher the morale.

2. Size of work group: The smaller the group the higher the morale, possibly because of more varied tasks found in smaller groups.

3. Supervision: Supervisors of high morale more often treat their employes as human beings instead of "so many bodies to get the work out." Maccoby pointed out that this factor probably affects the morale of workers who are regarded as interchangeable and shifted about indiscriminately, as Government typists often are shifted.

"Finally," said Maccoby, "employes in high morale groups more often report having a chance to do the things the yare best at in their the things they are best at in their the chance to complete tasks."

John Burton, New York State budget director, was elected vice president, succeeding Emery E. Olson.

Elected members of the society's council were: Byron Price, assistant secretary general of the United Nations; Arthur S. Flemming, president of Ohio Wesleyan University; Fred K. Hoehler, welfare director of Illinois; G. Homer Durham, director of the University of Utah institute of government; John W. Lederle, director of the University of Michigan institute of public administration.

Also, J. W. Rupley, San Francisco regional representative of the Bureau of the Budget; Eldon L. Johnson, University of Oregon, professor of political science; M. L. Wilson, director of Agricultural Extension Service, Department of Agriculutre, and Betty Lou Bidwell, University of Michigan graduate student.

Flight Pioneering

By Mark Sullivan

A Study In Contrasts

I FOLLOWED the news that attended a new record in aviation this week, the nonstop flight of a small one-engine plane from Hawaii to New Jersey. I observed the excited emphasis that radio broadcasters put upon it, the first page headlines in newspapers; I noticed a mention of the size of the crowd of newsmen, photographers, officials, and spectators awaiting Mr. Odom at the airport.

Sullivan

Yet, I reflected, this was a comparatively minor event in the development of aviation; and I recalled the lack of news, the in fact almost utter absence of it, at the flight that was the parent of all future ones—that of the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk, N. C., December 17, 1903. At that first flight, no reporter was present. No newspaper gave thought to covering it. With exceptions so slight as to be negligible, it could be said that after it took place the press of the country did not describe it the following day, nor ever. It was not until five years later that the press grasped the invention of the airplane, the first flight that became a major news event and to which New York papers sent correspondents was one the Wrights made in May, 1908.

The evening following the Kitty Hawk flight in 1903, an employe of the Virginian-Pilot, at Norfolk, Va., 68 miles away, learned from the Norfolk telegraph office that a message had passed through from the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk to their father at Dayton, Ohio. The message said: "Success, four flights today, longest 852 feet, 59 seconds."

To this information, the newsman added previous knowledge, including the fact that during some years before two men named Wright had made experiments at Kitty Hawk, with what was sometimes described locally as a "box-kite," and was in fact, in the earlier experiments a glider. Based on all this, the Virginian-Pilot printed a story adequate to the event. It had a seven-column headline and stands today as the only full-dress contemporary account of man's first flight in an airplane.

Condensed versions of the story were sent from the Virginian-Pilot office to newspapers in New York and some other cities. Excepting the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot such part of the country's press as printed anything about the Kitty Hawk flight gave it brief space and inconspicuous position.

For the long hesitancy of the press to report the invention of the airplane there were several reasons, including confusion of the new device with the long-familiar balloon. The principal reason, however, was unbelief that man could fly. The unbelief was almost literally universal. In 1925 Orville Wright wrote me:

"You ask why it was that the public took so little notice of our 1903 flight, and not until 1908 awoke to the fact that human flight had actually been accomplished. I think this was mainly due to the fact that human flight was generally looked upon as an impossibility, and that scarcely anyone believed in it until he actually saw it with his own eyes . . . I have come to the conclusion that almost no one ever really believed who had not himself actually seen a flight. It amuses me . . . that many think that before 1903 they had predicted its early accomplishment. At the time, we could not find a half dozen such."

FOR MYSELF, I came to think that man's race-long unbelief in human flight, coupled with the shock of awareness of its actuality, was a milestone in the history of the human mind. I condense something I wrote in 1925, in a volume of Our Times.

"Early in the race's history, man placed flight in the category of the permanently impossible, almost the only impossibility ranking with it was eternal youth. He made it a figure of speech to picture the utterly unattainable. 'Oh, had I the wings of a dove!' He wove fairy stories about it, made it the basis of a myth about a magic carpet. The physical characteristic of angels distinguishing them from humans was wings. Now, in the early years of the twentieth century, man was asked to uproot flight from his oldest stock of immutabilities, to believe that flight is."

I came to another thought—that, due to a special characteristic of the Wright brothers, the art of flying came to the world before its time, and that this partly explained the world's incredulity. The association of the Wright brothers with each other had been so continuous—at home, in school, and in their work—that the minds of the two came to synchronize to an extraordinary degree. This was noticed by the brothers themselves. The associative thinking of both came to be identical, their automatic mental and physical reflexes the same. In any situation each knew intuitively what the other would do. They were not two at all, they were parts of one. This was important in pioneering the art of flight.

British Set All-Time Mark In Production

London, March 11 (AP).—The government told The Commons today that Marshall Plan aid has helped Britain set its highest production record in history and nearly balance its exports against imports.

Britain still has a "serious" dollar shortage, according to a report submitted jointly by the Foreign Office and Treasury.

The report said it was "reasonable" to assume Britain would become independent of "exceptional outside assistance" by 1952.

The report showed Britain received $229,250,000 worth of goods that Marshall Plan funds were expected to cover. Actual payments totaled $130,065,000.

Meanwhile, the Board of Trade announced that British exports in February dropped nearly 19 million pounds sterling (about $76 million) from the "high" established in January.

Imports showed an even heavier reduction, hitting the lowest figure since the end of the war, the announcement said.

February exports were quoted as totaling about 140,500,000 pounds sterling or about $562 million, and February imports as 161,700,000 sterling, or about $646 million.

The report said industrial production was 5 per cent above the previous quarter, and was "the highest ever recorded."

Britain's dollar and gold holdings at the end of the year were said to be 380 million dollars less than when Marshall Plan aid started nine months earlier. Her dollar and gold holdings in the final quarter of 1948, however, increased by 80 million dollars.

A breakdown of goods confirmed that Britain has stopped buying American tobacco and, temporarily at least, American cotton. It continued to get metals from the United States.

The largest single item was $72,200,000 worth of wheat and $13,500,000 worth of flour from Canada. Other goods were six million dollars worth of bacon and ham from Canada, and $3,600,000 worth of cheese from the United States.

Sabotage Laid To Disgruntled U. S. Workers

By The Associated Press

A witness told Senators yesterday that "disgruntled" Federal workers facing discharge in an economy wave threw away records useful in collecting 26 million dollars in back debts owed the Maritime Commission.

K. E. Harris, acting chief of the commission's internal control branch, said that the loss from the destroyed papers would be very small, however, since "we were able to secure duplicate copies."

Senator Mundt (R., S. Dak.) said the workers had committed a serious crime. Asked what action was taken against them, Harris replied: "None that I know of."

Harris appeared before a Senate Expenditures Subcommittee, present-day counterpart of the old War Investigation Committee which President Harry Truman headed. It is digging into the commission's backlog of unbilled accounts, some said to date back to wartime 1942, in an inquiry into its methods.

Yale Students Invite Negroes

New Haven, Conn., March 11 (AP).—An experiment in racial relations which involves no "forums" or other discussions about racial relations is being undertaken by a group of Yale undergraduates.

The Yale men will entertain as their personal guests about 30 students from Howard University at Washington, D. C., an institution for Negroes.

The Howard group will come here next Friday for the week-end, and at the same time a group of Howard co-eds will go to Smith College at Northampton, Mass. Saturday afternoon there will be a cocktail party for the Yale and Smith visitors at a Yale fraternity house.

Spokesmen for the Yale undergraduates emphasized the weekend would be "entirely an informal social affair."

Policeman Found Guilty

A Thirteenth Precinct policeman accused of blackjacking a civilian was found guilty on two charges and recommended for dismissal from the force, the Police Trial Board announced yesterday.

Pvt. Gregory A. O'Connor, 29, the accused policeman, had pleaded not guilty to three charges in hearings before the Trial Board on February 25 and March 4 and emphatically denied ever knowing or speaking to the civilian, who accused him. He has appealed the Trial Board's action to the Commissioners.

The charges arose from a complaint by Robert L. Simms, 30, of 7-S Research rd., Greenbelt, Md., that he was assaulted by O'Connor in Berwyn, Md., early on the morning of Feb. 15.

While a cab driver, Ralph Kline, testified Private O'Connor had black-jacked Simms while he was in his cab, O'Connor and three other witnesses said the policeman was driven home from a tavern that night in a private auto.

He was found guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and of using unnecessary violence toward a prisoner or other persons. An untruthful statement charge was dismissed.

The Commissioners yesterday rejected a recommendation for dismissal of Pvt. Charles V. Harvey, 35, of the Ninth Precinct, while they confirmed a Trial Board finding that he was guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and making an untruthful statement to a superior officer.

The penalty was changed to a fine of $250 at the rate of $10 a day, beginnng on or before April 1.

Pvt. Lewis D. Crooke, 31, of the Fourth Precinct, was given a warning yesterday by a Trial Board after being found guilty of failing to report for duty at 8 p. m. on February 28. He said he had been on duty all the previous night and had been in court until 5:15 p. m. that day.

Bishop Dun Heads Medical Center Group

The Rt. Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, has been elected chairman pro tem of a steering committee for the proposed 25 million dollar medical center on the site of the Naval Observatory, Massachusetts ave. and 34th st. nw.

The cleric's selection was announced yesterday, after a meeting of the full steering committee at the Columbia Country Club Thursday night.

J. G. Capossella, secretary of the board of Emergency Hospital and hospital administrator, was elected secretary pro tem.

Also elected was an executive committee of six persons—two representatives from each of three hospitals—Episcopal, Emergency and Garfield. These hospitals will be contained in the new center.

Truman Again Asks for Bill To Aid Indians

President Truman said yesterday that "Christian principles" call for a broad Government effort to help the Navajo and Hopi Indian tribes of the Southwest.

He asked Congress for the second time to enact a 90-million-dollar 10-year rehabilitation program for the 65,000 Indians living in New Mexico and Arizona.

A similar bill was submitted to the Eightieth Congress last year, but Congress passed an emergency relief appropriation for the Indians instead.

In a letter instructing Secretary of Interior J. A. Krug to submit the program again, Mr. Truman said the terrible winter storms in the West have aggravated the already "serious economic position" of the tribes.

"The United States, which would live on Christian principles with all the peoples of the world, cannot omit a fair deal for its own Indian citizens," he said.

The Administration program calls for improving schools, health and community facilities on the tribal reservations, and for developing small businesses which would provide employment opportunities for Indians both on and off the reservation.

Churches Evade World Parley Vote

Cleveland, March 11 (AP).—Delegates at a conference representing 35 milion American Protestants today passed the issue of holding an unprecedented meeting between top world Protestant leaders and the Vatican on religious freedom.

They referred the question to the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. One of the Federal Council's sections sponsored a four-day meeting here on Christian Influences in International Affairs. The executive committee meets in New York next week.

The conference referred the idea to the committee without recommendation because of "insufficient time" to study the proposal. The subject of Catholicism touched off hot debate on the floor.

Just before the final session closed, the subject was reopened and the conference indorsed the statement of the World Council of Churches on religious freedom, previously made public, and added:

"When threatened by autocratic or tyrannical power, Protestants will therefore take their stand according to the dictates of conscience, and will protest against any earthly coersion, political or ecclesiastical, that assumes the prerogatives of God and attempts to prescribe the individual conscience.

"We thank God for all brothers of the faith everywhere who by their supreme loyalty to God and in his strength are bearing witness against totalitarianism, reminding the nations of the world of the divine basis of all human rights and freedoms and the grounds of all sound world order and peace."

Dr. O. Frederick Nolde of Lutheran Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, introduced the resolution on a Protestant-Vatican meeting.

Many delegated argued after introduction of an amendment to the statement. It asked the recall of Myron C. Taylor, President Truman's personal emissary to the Vatican, and said "ecclesiastical policies of the Roman Catholic Church do not accord with religious freedom."

The amendment, defeated, was introduced by Dr. J. M. Dawson of Washington, D. C., executive director of public relations for all Baptist denominations in the Nation.

Before adjourning, the conference went on record as opposed to all filibustering in Congress.

'Book of Esther'

The Washington Post

HEBREW STUDENTS ACT—A scene from the "Book of Esther" is enacted by three students of the Hebrew Academy, 3235 O st. nw., in preparation for the Feast of Purim, which will be celebrated Monday and Tuesday evenings, March 14 and 15. Gail Jablonsky (Queen Esther), 7, of 1501 Delmont lane., Takoma Park, Md., accuses Allen Mensh (right) (Haman, 7, of 5802 7th st. nw., of planning to exterminate the Jewish people. Her charges are made before Michael Taff (King Ahashveros) 7, of 1734 Poplar lane nw.

Jews Begin Purim Rites On Monday

Purim, the most joyous of all Jewish festivals, will be observed in Jewish homes and synagogues from sundown Monday until sundown Tuesday. The Hebrew date is the fourteenth of Adar.

Unlike most Jewish holidays, Purim is not a time of great religious solemnity, but rather one of celebration and gaiety. Children exchange gifts and present plays and masquerades, charity is given to the poor and special delicacies are eaten.

In the temples, the scroll of Esther is read to commemorate the deliverance of the Jews from their enemy Haman during the reign of the Persian King Ahasuerus.

According to the Biblical story, Haman, the King's prime minister, ordered all the Jews massacred. At a series of banquets, Esther, the King's beautiful Jewish queen, told Ahasuerus of the plot against her people, and begged him to prevent it.

As a result of Esther's efforts, the slaughter of the Jews was prevented and Hama was hanged on a scaffold which had been prepared for Mordecai, one of the King's Jewish aides. Mordecai then becam prime minister.

Purim, according to the Commission on Information About Judaism, "raises the hopes and hearts of all persecuted peoples. It tells of the miracle of deliverance from evil, and gives promise of the coming of the day when all men will walk in dignity and concord"

The scroll of Queen Esther will be read by Rabbi Ira Sud at 7 p. m. Monday at the Arlington Jewish Center, 2920 Lee blvd.

The Washington Armed Service Committee of the Jewish Welfare Board nas arranged Purim events for hospital patients and military personnel stationed in Greater Washington.

Chaplain Morris A. Sandhaus will conduct services at the Soldiers Home Monday at 6 p. m. The Hebrew Sisters Aid Circle and JWB have planned parties at 2 p. m. Tuesday at St. Elizabeths Hospital and at 5:15 p. m. at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda.

Members of the armed services will be entertained at the JWB building, 1637 Massachusetts ave. nw. at 8 p. m. Wednesday.

St. Luke's Communion To Be Held March 20

Three hundred Negro laymen of the Washington Episcopal Diocese have invited laymen of the church to attend a mid-Lenten corporate Communion March 20 at 8 a.m. at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 1514 15th st. nw.

The Rev. Theodore O. Wedel, canon of the Washington Cathedral, will be the celebrant and the speaker will be the Rev. Arnold M. Lewis, executive director of the presiding bishop's committee on laymen's work of the National Council of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Hymn Sing Listed At St. Thomas Church

An old-fashioned hymn sing will be conducted at 8 p. m. Sunday at St. Thomas Episcopal Church, 1772 Chuch st. nw. The Rev. Harold Bend Sedgwick, rector of the church, will make brief comments on each of the hymns.

An open house will follow the service.

Church Buys Cabin, Land in Virginia

A cabin and several acres of land at Jackson Lake, near Manassas, Va., have been purchased by the Church of the Saviour, 1707 19th st. nw., the Rev. Newton Gordon Cosby has announced.

The cabin will be used as a retreat for church members and as a part of the church program for children.

British Preacher To Be at Pilgrims

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Adult leaders at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., will step down from their accustomed positions Sunday when youth week begins at the church.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, will sit in a pew with his family while Stephen Edmunds, youth week minister, preaches at 9 and 11:15 a. m. At 8 p. m. Horace McManus, associate minister for the week, will be the preacher.

An Orthodox Presbyterian missionary home from Eritrea, Africa, the Rev. Francis E. Mahaffy, will speak at 11 a. m. at Knox Orthodox Presbyterian Church, Granville dr. and Sutherland rd., Silver Spring. At 7:30 p. m. Mr. Mahaffy will show pictures of his work in Africa.

The Right Rev. Dom Augustine Morris, abbot of Nashdom Abby, England, and Superior of all Benedictine communities for men in the Church of England, will preach at 11 a. m. at Ascension and St. Agnes Church, 12th and Massachusetts ave. nw., at 11 a. m.

New hymals will be dedicated at 11 a. m. at Concordia Lutheran Evangelical Church. The hymnals were given by the Ladies Aid Society and will be accepted by the president of the church. Dr. Charles Enders, pastor, will conduct the dedication services.

The third in a series of Lenten sermons will be given by Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood, the minister, at John Wesley A.M.E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw., at 11 a. m. His subject is "The Good Shepherd."

Dr. G. Paul Butler, religious and book editor of the New York Mirror and editor of an annual collection of sermons, will preach on "Religion and the New Books" at 11 a. m. at Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University.

A group of choirs from the Cooperating Concert Choir Association of Washington will sing a concert of sacred music at 7:45 p. m. at the Second Baptist Church, 17th and East Capitol sts. Choirs from First Baptist, 16th and O sts. nw., National City Christian, Thomas Circle, and Second Baptist churches will participate in the concert.

Area Churches To Have Week Of Dedication

A Week of Dedication launching the quadrennial program of "Advance for Christ and His Church" in the Methodist Church will be observed by three churches in Greater Washington this week.

Three events for the week have been planned by Christ Methodist Church, Arlington. On Sunday at 11 a. m., Bishop James H. Straughn, retired resident bishop of the Pittsburgh area, will tell of the four-year denominational program of advance.

Dr. George Raemy of Richmond, editor of the Virginia Methodist Advocate, will speak at a service at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Final event of the week-long program will be a sacrificial offering and choir concert next Sunday.

At Asbury Methodist Church, 11th and K sts. nw., Dr. G. Paul Butler, religious editor of the New York Mirror, will speak at 8 p. m. Sunday as the church begins its Week of Dedication.

A "Week of Great Preaching" will be conducted at the Arlington Methodist Church, Glebe rd. and South 8th st., Arlington, as the main feature of the week of dedication.

The Rev. Harry Wardell Backus 3d, pastor of the church, has announced that the following speakers will appear at the church at 8 p. m. each night: Sunday, Dr. Manning Potts of Nashville, Tenn., editor of the Upper Room; Monday, Bishop Straughn; Tuesday, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes; Wednesday, Bishop Costen J. Harrell of Charlotte, N. C.; Thursday, Bishop William Walter Peele of Richmond, Va.; Friday, Dr. Ralph Diffendorfer of New York.

Dr. Norman G. Dunning, British clergyman, will speak Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:45 p. m. at the Church of the Pilgrims, 22d and P sts. nw.

In addition, he will speak Monday through Friday at 8 p. m. at the church. Dr. Dunning, a graduate of Cambridge University, has served churches in Australia and South Africa and has preached in the United States during the past two summers. During World War II he was a chaplain in the RAF.

Dr. Andrew R. Bird, pastor of the Church of the Pilgrims, will participate in the morning service Sunday, and Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, will assist in the evening service.

At the week night services the following pastors will assist Dr. Dunning: Monday, Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden, First Baptist Church; Tuesday, Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, Lutheran Church of the Reformation; Wednesday, Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, National Presbyterian Church; Thursday, Dr. C. Leslie Glenn, St. John's Episcopal Church, Lafayette sq.; and Friday, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the United States Senate and pastor of Foundry Methodist Church.

Mrs. Anderson to Talk At 2 Services Sunday

Mrs. Howard Stone Anderson will preach at 11 a. m. Sunday at Plymouth Congregational Church, 17th and P sts nw.

At 8 p. m she will preach at First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw. Mrs. Anderson, an ordained minister, is the wife of the former pastor of First Congregational Church. She recently visited England as a representative of the Congregational Christian Churches.

Mount Vernon to Hear Rep. Miller, Judge Laws

Two laymen will preach at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church Sunday on annual Laymen's Day. Representative Arthur L. Miller (R., Nebr.) will speak at 9 a. m. and Judge Bolitha J. Laws, chief judge of the District Court, will speak at 11:15 a. m. General theme of both talks is "I Am a Methodist."

St. Patrick's Church To Observe Fete

St. Patrick's Day will be observed Thursday with a solemn pontifical mass at 10:30 a. m. at St. Patrick's Church, 10th and G sts. nw., celebrated by the Most Rev. Patrick O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington. The Most Rev. James J. Sheehan, Auxiliary Bishop of Baltimore, will deliver the sermon.

Lenten Vesper Service

The Youth Fellowship of the Greater Lane C. M. E. Church, 14th and C sts. ne., will sponsor a Lenten vesper service at 6 p. m. Sunday. The junior choir of Mount Horeb Baptist Church, 217 16th st. ne., will sing at the vespers.

"Jesus' Final Will"

The Rev. John H. Renshaw, pastor, will speak on "Jesus' Final Will and Testament" at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Arlington Church of Christ, 20 North Irving st. At 7:45 p. m. his topic will be "Is the Bible Inspired?"

Vote on Barkley's Ruling

By The Associated Press

Here is the vote by which the Senate tonight overuled Vice President Barkley's ruling that two-thirds of the Senators voting can shut off a filibuster under present Senate rules, if they want to:

The same 46 Senators who voted to overrule Barkley also voted a short time before to defeat a motion by Majority Leader Lucas to kill an appeal by Southern Senators from Barkley's ruling. This vote set the stage for the final direct vote on Barkley's decision. The same 41 who upheld Barkley voted to uphold Lucas.

The following pairs were announced:
WAGNER (N. Y.) (yes) and GILLETTE (Iowa) (no); MURRAY (Mont.) (yes) and McCLELLAND (Ark.) (no); ANDERSON (N. Mex.) (yes) and MARTIN (Pa.) (no); TOBEY (N. H.) (yes) and WILLIAMS (Del.) (no).

Rent Control Wins Test

control program failed after a heated floor exchange over an exclusive story in The Washington Post disclosing that Rent Control Administrator Tighe E. Woods had given some members of Congress a list of 100 rural areas which could be decontrolled, provided he were given the power to recontrol if rents rose again too sharply.

House Minority Whip Charles Halleck (R., Ind.) charged that circulation of the list was "bait" being offered in exchange for votes of members from rural areas.

He said the story was "written flat" and he did not believe any reputable newspaper would publish it if it were not true.

Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking and Currency Committee disclaimed any knowledge of such a list.

But Representative Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.) a member of the committee, pointed out that in the majority report on the bill itself it was said that Woods had agreed that 100 rural areas would be decontrolled provided he were given recontrol powers. The list, Buchanan said, was obtained from Woods at the insistence of members and if anyone were to be held responsible for circulating it he would take that responsibility himself.

(After publication of The Washington Post story Woods gave out the list of the 100 areas in question himself. Included were those areas in Maryland: Allegany, except City of Cumberland; Anne Arundel, Election Districts 1, 7, and 8; St. Marys, except Leonardtown, Township No. 3 and Calvert.

(Only Virginia area included was Northampton. All areas near the Washington metropolitan area would remain under control.)

Halleck said that without the decontrol promise and without the Brown amendment, also outlined in The Washington Post, the GOP would have succeeded in its drive to limit rent control extension to a 90-day period.

Laughter rose from the successful Democratic side.

Republican members succeeded in putting one crimp in the Administration's rent control measure. They persuaded the House to knock out a provision which would have restored ceilings on hotel accommodations. The vote was 174 to 98.

Because the House was sitting as a committee of the whole to consider the bill, roll calls were not in order. It was noticeable, however, that on every teller vote a large number of Southern Democrats lined up to vote with Republican forces, a move which reflected the growing cleavage between the Administration and Southerners.

All action taken yesterday remains tentative, pending final action in the House itself after the committee of the whole reports back on the bill.

After the debate started, Democratic Leader John McCormack (Mass.) called on party members from the rural sections "to fight shoulder to shoulder" with city representatives for the continued controls.

He pointedly reminded them that the metropolitan delegates had helped put farm price support and TVA legislation on the statute books.

But the ultimate fate of the rent program remained in doubt as a result of the Senate filibuster.

With less than three weeks left before the March 31 expiration date, the Senate Banking Committee has not agreed on extension legislation. A subcommittee has been holding hearings on a bill by Senator Myers (D., Pa.) to continue the controls for 27 months and to revive wartime enforcement powers.

South Wins Filibuster Test

before he moved to table the appeal.

Virtually conceding defeat in advance, Lucas challenged Republicans to redeem their Philadelphia civil rights platform.

"For the first time you have an opportunity to say whether you meant what you said," shouted the Democratic leader.

He told the Senate the voters wouldn't be interested in their support of a "parliamentary technicality." Lucas said the only question voters will ask is:

"Did you vote to stop the filibuster or did you vote to continue the filibuster."

Then he told the Senate: "They (the majority of Republicans) are not going to break the filibuster. They are going to let it go on."

Lucas angrily ripped into arguments made against the Barkley ruling by Vandenberg and one of the Southern leaders, Senator Walter F. George (D., Ga.).

He tossed back at Vandenberg the Michigan Republican's criticism of the Vice President's decision and said his own decision last August was vulnerable.

He said Vandenberg couldn't find a single precedent to back up his own ruling and said Barkley's only "affront" was his disagreement with Vandenberg. He accused Vandenberg of "changing a lot" of Republican votes on the rules issue. He taunted Vandenberg about his "world" fame and said he had handed down a ruling from "Mount Olympus."

Senator George, who earlier told the Senate he was "shocked" because Lucas brought civil rights into the rules appeal debate, was also singled out by the leader as a target.

"It's good to shock great men once in a while," said Lucas sarcastically. "He (George) had better turn to some of his own brothers engaged in this fillibuster, who were the first here to raise the issue of civil rights . . .

"I'll discuss civil rights all right. That's the issue, whether you like it or not. Everybody knows it. Why all this filibuster if civil rights is not the issue."

Despite protestations by both to the contrary, the debate became a contest between Vandenberg and Barkley when the Michigan Republican early in the day claimed the floor and swung with all he had at the ruling.

Barkley had dismissed as "no precedent" a finding by Vandenberg last August that the Senate couldn't close debate on a motion to call up a bill. Vandenberg held then, and again yesterday, that a "motion" wasn't a "measure." Under its rules, the Senate can close debate only on a "pending measure."

Vandenberg called Barkley's ruling an "ingenious thesis" developed to "rationalize" the Vice President's departure from the rules, and said the Vice President had employed a "curious device."

He said the rules are as important to the Senate as the Constitution is to the life of the Republic and "should never be changed except by the Senate itself in the direct fashion prescribed by the rules themselves."

The Michigan Republican told the Senate that regardless of what Barkley said there is "no pending question" before the Senate.

"There is only a motion to create one," he said. "Yet the rule says that cloture must attach to a pending question. This petition seeks to apply cloture to something that does not exist."

Vandenberg told colleagues they were not voting on whether they wanted a more effective cloture rule, or on the issue of civil rights, but on one question only: "What does the present rule of the Senate say and mean."

If they upheld Barkley, he argued, they would be saying that Senate rules were whatever "the transient, unregulated wishes of a majority of whatever quorum is temporarily in control of the Senate" said they were.

"That is not my idea of the greatest deliberative body in the world."

Vandenberg's position was challenged by Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.). If Vandenberg was right, Knowland said the original Senate must have acted "tongue in cheek" when it adopted the cloture rule.

The California Republican called the Vandenberg contention "a narrow interpretation of the rule," enabling a minority to talk any bill to death. Knowland said:

"If cloture cannot be applied to a motion, then the Senate is helpless and is deprived of its power under the Constitution to determine its own rules."

Another Republican, Senator Raymond E. Baldwin (Conn.), said he didn't like to see the rules changed by the chair but would "feel quite differently about it" if he knew the Senate would follow through and adopt the Hayden-Wherry resolution for a permanent, holeproof two-thirds rule.

Senate Majority Leader Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) assured Baldwin that he intends to drive for the permanent rules change if Barkley was sustained.

Baldwin told Lucas that if Barkley were overridden he hoped the leadership would hold the Senate in continuous day and night session in one last drive to break the filibuster.

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), Senate president pro tem, and a leader of the Southern opposition, then supported the Vandenberg position. McKellar said he thought Barkley was "entirely wrong" and the Senate would be taking "a fatal step" to uphold him.

The Tennessean said he couldn't understand why all new Senators wanted to change the Senate rules.

"It is remarkable they have such a poor opinion of a body they worked so hard to get into," he said.

But Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), one of the two Southern Senators supporting the rules reform, backed up Barkley's position. Kefauver quoted from press accounts of the original 1917 Senate rule in support of his contention that the Senate intended no loopholes in the two-thirds rule. He read among others an editorial from The Washington Post, dated March 8, 1917, supporting this position.

McKellar's Tennessee colleague said he is a Southerner, who "loves the South" and has his doubts about some of the civil rights measures "but we cannot forever prevent consideration of measures by filibuster tactics."

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.), one of the cloture petition signers, who had been reported "in doubt" said he had "reluctantly" concluded he could not go along with the Vandenberg view. Smith said Barkley was on "sound ground" when he said the 1917 Senate intended to write a tight cloture rule.

But Senator Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.) lined up behind Vandenberg.

Capital Store Sales Off 5% During Week

By S. Oliver Goodman

Dollar volume of Washington department stores in the week ended March 5 was 5 per cent below the comparable period in 1948, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

For the four weeks ended March 5, however, sales showed a 4 per cent advance over the like 1948 period.

Local retail volume for the past five weeks had been trending upward in spite of a steady decline elsewhere in the country. Last week's dip, it was believed, might stem in part from the fact that seasonal Easter buying was already under way during the 1948 period. Easter fell on March 28 last year. This year it comes on April 17.

In Baltimore, store sales were down 21 per cent for the March 5 week while other cities in the Fifth Federal Reserve District averaged 14 per cent lower.

Nationally, department store sales showed a 9 per cent decline for the week.

Dun & Bradstreet in its weekly retail survey commented: "Consumer response was moderate to early offerings of Easter merchandise . . . While Easter promotions became more numerous during the week, the response remained moderate."

WHO'S WHO TODAY—Robert A. Lovett, former Undersecretary of State, plans to rejoin Brown Brothers, Harriman & Co. on April 1. A partner in the firm for many years prior to the war, Lovett has spent the greater part of the last eight years in Government service . . . A. W. Koehler of Washington has been elected chairman of the administrative committee of the National Highway Users Conference . . . H. H. Goodman, Washington systems manager of Remington Rand, Inc., has won a vacation trip to Bermuda as a result of this city placing first in a national branch office sales contest . . . David Resnick has been retained as a public relations consultant by the American Hearing Aid Society, whose headquarters are in Washington.

POWER SALES: Potomac Electric Power Co. reports February sales of electricity increased 2.31 per cent over the same 1948 month. Kilowatt hours totaled 139,354,565 against 136,207,405 last year. Including the suburban Maryland area, Pepco sales for the month aggregated 173,805,638, up 4.25 per cent.

ODD LOTS: Rail freight loadings in week ended March 5 totaled 705,552 cars, an increase of 2.5 per cent above the previous week but down 10.9 per cent from the same 1948 week . . . Auto output this week is estimated at 108,646 cars, compared with last week's 113,626 . . . Scrap steel prices softened in Pittsburgh area with some dealers dropping prices $2 to $35 for No. 2 melting grade. Eastman Kodak Co. will distribute a 13-million-dollar wage dividend on Monday to 50,000 employes . . . Ford Motor Co.'s Lincoln-Mercury division has negotiated an agreement with General Motors for the use of hydramatic transmission on Lincoln and Mercury cars, according to trade reports . . . Smith, Kline & French Laboratories yesterday opened a new seven-million-dollar building in Philadelphia devoted entirely to pharmaceutical and medical research.

QUOTABLE QUOTES: Says the trade publication Steel: "Almost everything that has been brought out since the war has been dramatized as 'de luxe.' . . . It is time that manufacturers realize that many consumers want real values rather than show-off stuff. Where is the 1949 counterpart of the 1929 Chevrolet or the Model T Ford? Opportunity is knocking at the door of the manufacturer who will sell a practicable, presentable product without fancy doodads at a realistic price."

EARNINGS: National Cash Register Co. reported net income of $14,015,549 or $7.82 a common share for 1949, compared with $11,311,091 or $6.95 a share in 1947. Other earnings statements follow:

Philco Plans Price Cuts

Philadelphia, March 11 (AP).—Philco Corp. today announced a March promotion program that will permit dealers to reduce the price on some radios and radio-phonographs 6 to 15 per cent. A company spokesman said the "very unusual" reduction of 55 per cent is possible on one model. He declined to elaborate.

Crude Oil Price Cut

Bradford, Pa., March 11 (AP).—South Penn Oil Co. cut prices it pays for Pennsylvania grade crude oil up to 32 cents a barrel today. It was the third cut in three months. A South Penn spokesman blamed overproduction and a drop in the domestic and export demand for refined products.

School Board Bill Due to Be Defeated

Demurrer Denied

Edmonston Wins Damage Suit Round

A $50,000 damage suit filed by the town of Edmonston, Md., against a Hyattsville construction firm won its first round yesterday in Prince Georges County Circuit Court.

The suit, filed January 24, alleges that Master Builders, Inc., of 4805 Rhode Island ave., Hyattsville, damaged town sidewalks and drains while constructing 41 dwellings for veterans early in 1947.

In Circuit Court yesterday, Judges Charles C. Marbury and John B. Gray denied a demurrer action brought by counsel for Nathan and Max Zipkin, heads of the firm. The action contended that the town had insufficient cause for the suit.

Filed by the Mayor and Town Council of Edmonston, the $50,000 suit alleges that sidewalks, sewers and sewer connections were damaged by the construction firm's heavy equipment.

The damage occurred, according to J. Frank Lillard, jr., town attorney, on 46th, 47th and 49th sts. between Decatur st. and 49th place.

Counsel for the Hyattsville firm, Walter Green and Associates, contended yesterday that just cause for the suit had not been shown.

The firm's attorneys must now enter a pleading within 15 days.

Two Guests to Attend Tall Cedars Meeting

John H. Speers, jr., Supreme Preceptor, of West Chester, Pa., and C. Maurice Delauder, Fourteenth District Representative, of Hagerstown, will be guests at the meeting of the Capital Forest 104, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, at 8 p. m. tonight at Northeast Masonic Temple, 523 8th st. ne.

On the business agenda are discussions of plans for All Masonic Night at Constitution Hall, April 7; the annual convention at Atlantic City, May 19 to 21, and the forest's council, June 13 to 25. A large class of candidates will be initiated, according to Grand Tall Cedar Lawrence L. Wedding.

By Phillip J. Austensen
Post Reporter

Annapolis, Md., March 11.—Defeat of the Montgomery County elected school board bill was foreseen today as the House Judiciary Committe voted an unfavorable report, 13 to 2.

The measure was not reported on the floor of the House today because a floor fight on amending the Ober subversive bill had been expected. The unfavorable report is expected to be presented to the House Monday night.

Delegate Dewitt S. Hyde (R., Montgomery) told the committee the bill is not a political one and is not sponsored by the Republican Party. He said it was introduced by request of the Council of Parent-Teacher Associations after a study by that group which resulted in five of six educators urging election as the best method. The bill provides for a referendum so that the voters of the county can decide for themselves, he said.

Lack of Uniformity Feared

Chairman Bernard S. Melnicove (D., 4th Baltimore) said that it would disrupt the operations of the State school system to have a lack of uniformity throughout the State.

Several delegates expressed disapproval of the present method of selecting members of the school board but said they did not believe an elected school board is the answer, even if it is Statewide.

It was learned that a movement has been started for a commission to make a study of the methods of naming the school boards with a view to recommendations for possible betterment. A resolution urging such action is expected to be presented early next week.

Morningside Bill Filed

The all-Republican delegation from Montgomery County is expected to exert a strong effort to secure overriding of the report and passage of the bill, but House leaders forecast a decisive defeat of the motion when it comes to the floor.

Other legislative action yesterday:

1. The Prince Georges County delegation introduced a bill providing for incorporation of the town of Morningside, with a referendum provision.

2. The Senate passed a House bill making it a misdemeanor to abandon intentionally any dog, cat or other domestic animal.

KID CARSON: Marion Hutton, Jack Carson and Robert Alda as they took over the Warner Stage yesterday for a week's stay

Carson's Casualness Clicks; So Does His Choice of Larks

SLAPHAPPY JACK CARSON doesn't claim his vaudeville show at the Warner is either the worst or the best you've ever seen. "It's just a pack of corn, all in fun," says Jack, and you couldn't put it more clearly.

The advantage of this Carson guy as an entertainer is that he's a forceful but likable chap who's thoroughly at home with an audience. He doesn't try too hard to make an impression, he lets his gags flip where they may and he works hard to entertain you. You can't ask for much more.

He's been pretty smart, too, about his little revue. He's got a honey of a gal in Marion Hutton, blonde and cheerful. You'll enjoy her a lot when she sings "Mama Wants to Know," from a picture she recently made with the Brothers Marx, and you'll laugh when she tells Jack: "Take your stinkin' hands offa me."

Yes, it's a lowdown show. The gags are blue, even burnt, and some are more sly than funny. Robert Alda, the screen hero, also is in the act, working on his own and in a movie set sketch with Carson. George Mann, Sweeney and March are the secondary comedians and the Emerald Sisters have a rowdy tumbling act. June Carroll, a Baltimore girl who scored with Art Godfrey's radio show, seems to have that wan sort of voice people like, though she's too listless for me.

Carson, though, is the funmaster for the Warner's brief revival of vaudevillle, and he's got broad enough style and shoulders to bear the weight. I'm delighted that he's brought Marion along and I'm glad, too, to find Jo Lombardi back on the old Earle stage.

"FLAXY MARTIN," Warner release produced by Saul Elkins. Screen play by David Lang. Photographed by Carl Guthie. Directed by Richard Rare. At the Warner.

THE CAST

Flaxy Martin	Virginia Mayo
Walter Colby	Zachary Scott
Nora Carson	Dorothy Malone
Sam Malko	Tom D'Andrea
Peggy	Helen Westcott
Hap Richie	Douglas Kennedy
1st Detective	Douglas Fowley
2nd Detective	Monte Blue
Caesar	Jack Overman

The picture attraction is "Flaxy Martin," with Virginia Mayo, Zachary Scott and Dorothy Malone. It's a melodrama about a girl who stops at nothing, including a murder plot, to lay her mitts on cash. It's routine stuff, though Douglas Kennedy makes a more likable racketeer than most.

By a quirk in bookings, the plot of the Warner's "Flaxy Martin" isn't unlike the Capitol's "Force of Evil." Both concern the plight of agreeable young lawyers who've fallen into evil company, Zachary Scott and John Garfield. Fundamentally I think this is pretty flimsy stuff; certainly it doesn't arouse my sympathy, for I couldn't care less what happens to either weak-kneed, self-pitying hero. I'm darn fedup with movie lawyers who earn posh livings by acting as frontmen for racketeers and then weep about their fates.

Yes, Carson and Miss Hutton are the reasons for the Warner bill this week, and if you like the familiar, pleasantly delivered, you'll have a relaxed, carefree time.

One on the Aisle—

'Saraband' Only A Visual Delight

By Richard L. Coe

ROYAL ROMANCES seem to have a way of being a mistake for all concerned, and I'm afraid J. Arthur Rank is no exception.

Britain's dispenser of cinematic largesse has unleashed a vast sum for "Saraband," now having its American premiere at the Playhouse, but for all its splendid settings it served only to remind me of an undertaker's streetcar advertisements. Impressive, but oh my.

The story concerns—and I assume it's historically exact—the hapless life of Sophie-Dorothea, who had the misfortune to be married to George-Louis of Hanover, who was to become George I of England. George-Louis was a vile brute, and after some years of courtly boredom Sophie-Dorothea met Count Philip von Konigsmark, a handsome Swedish soldier of fortune who'd been around and around and around.

The intrigue of the Hanoverian court capped anything found in a government agency. Top spider seems to have been Countess Platen, female friend of George-Louis' father, the Elector Ernest Augustus. The Countess had a face that might have launched a leaky rowboat, but her position was so secure she could take on Count Philip von Konigsmark, who, as I said, was a soldier of fortune and game for anything. But after the Countess slapped him in the neck with a hot curling iron, their relationship cooled.

"SARABAND," a J. Arthur Rank presentation of Eagle Lion release, produced by Michael Balcon, directed and designed by Basil Dearden and Michael Relph, screenplay by John Dighton and Alexander Mackendrick, from the novel by Helen Simpson. At the Playhouse.

THE CAST

Konigsmark	Stewart Granger
Sophie-Dorothea	Joan Greenwood
Countess Platen	Flora Robson
The Electress Sophie	Francoise Rosay
The Elector Ernest Augustus	Frederick Valk
Prince George Louis	Peter Bull
Durer	Anthony Quayle
Prince Charles	Michael Gough
Frau Busche	Meg-Jenkins
Kreybeck	Jill Balcon
Duke George William	David Horne
Countess Eleanor	Marcia Swinsburne
Major Eck	Cecil Trouncer
Count Platen	Noel Howlett

Which leaves us with the Countess knowing all too well what went with Count Philip von Konigsmark, who'd been around and around and around, and Her Highness the Princess Sophie-Dorothea, who'd only been in Hanover. Certainly it was little enough, a few kisses and one of those deathless notes we all used to pass across the aisle in school, an intelligence I insert to clear up any nasty thoughts you've been thinking about the Hanoverian dynasty. But it was enough to push a blade into the back of Count Philip von Konigsmark and to lock Her Highness the Princess Sophie-Dorothea in a moated house till the day she died, by which time her husband had been on the English throne for some years.

Recalls "Mayerling," "Antoinette"

I have an idea that what Ealing Studios wanted to make of "Saraband" was another "Mayerling." But as Metro did in "Marie Antoinette," which also had one of those fascinatin' Swedes making dewy eyes at royalty, Ealing has spent too much effort on gorgeous settings, beautiful costumes. It takes more than a lavish spread of Technicolor to make a good movie.

The settings, by the way, are interesting. Much of the film was made at Blenheim, Winston Churchill's birthplace, while the scenes of Hanover were reproduced in the streets of Prague. Visually, "Saraband" is invariably pleasurable.

There is, too, a bizarre air about "Saraband," for though you're supposed to be watching a German court, the speech and emotions are distinctly as British as the Hanover family never became. As usual, too, the character reactions are completely twentieth century morality, despite the furbelows, handsome costumes and a really gorgeous officers' mess.

What little acting is required comes from Flora Robson, who manages to make the female companion of the Elector Ernest Augustus deliciously repulsive. Since the screen delights not in repulsive females, when Flora shoots the works the result is mildly devastating. Although she's one of the fine actresses of our day, Francoise Rosay exhibits her frustration as the wife of the Elector Ernest Augustus (I just love those names) by never once changing her expression.

Joan Greenwood and Stewart Granger are the thwarted lovers and they're a mighty handsome couple, though during the fateful duel I couldn't help thinking that had Errol Flynn been Count Philip von Konigsmark, history would have been different.

Poor Philip. Poor Sophie-Dorothea. May they rest in livelier peace.

Man, 69, Kills Self in Capitol

United States, the Speaker of the House and the American people."

Similar letters were addressed to other newspapers.

In the letter, he said, "For years we (he and his wife) had been disgusted with the stupidity, ignorance, greed and corruption of many politicians.

"We resolved that as soon as we had saved enough to feel independent we would try to purify politics. We were nearing our financial goal when Anne (his wife) died."

Williams' note said he had traveled extensively in Germany, France, England and Spain. Papers showed he had been a Quartermaster Corps clerk in World War I and secretary to the chief disbursing officer of the American Expeditionary Force.

He asked The Washington Post not to omit mention of his visit with a Spanish family that "had such great dread of a renewal of the terrible civil war that they would not speak of politics."

The note continued, "I determined that I would let the American public know that freedom and liberty are utterly crushed by the falange and their tool, Francisco Franco.

"Despite these facts, there are at Washington politicians who, from the base motive of expediency, would have us recognize the Franco regime."

Cites Veteran Measures

Besides his personal shame, the note continued, Williams was ashamed "that we have so many in Congress whose chief aim is to be reelected.

"For instance, men who do not really believe that soldiers who never left the United States and those who were not actual combatants abroad deserve a pension; and who nevertheless vote a pension . . . to win the veterans' vote.

"If my death will lead only half a dozen Washington politicians to repent their deceitful ways and to sincerely resolve to be honest, I shall not have died in vain."

The note asked that "some clergyman" meet his brother, Arthur, 73, at Union Station today when he "arrives to identify my corpse."

It asked that his body be turned over to "the nearest college of surgeons or physicians, or hospital, that can use it for dissection."

Heart, Brain to Be Burned

"My heart and brain are to be cut out, reduced to ashes, and later buried in the grave of my wife . . . in Townhope Churchyard, Haverford, England."

Records at the Continental Hotel show Williams stayed there from February 22 until the 28th. The night manager said he was with his brother. The typewritten letter's date had been changed from Frebruary 24 to March 10. Williams had checked into the Pennsylvania Hotel Thursday and had paid his bill through today.

His brother in Buffalo told The Washington Post that Williams was "despondent and worried about everything—the conditions in Europe and all over the world."

Arthur Williams, a retired railroad clerk, said his brother had made a tour of Europe in the last six months and returned to stay with him for a month. When Thomas left Buffalo, he said he was going to York, Pa., to open a business.

Williams' note said he was born in Wales and came to the United States in 1906 with his wife, "to live in a country of great democratic ideals and opportunities."

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

WINTER GARDEN, FLA., MARCH 11.—Joe Engel cares not who writes the Nation's songs, and says he's got a better racket. "Just let me stay on Clark Griffith's swindle sheet," he orates happily.

In the light of the well-known frugality of the Washington club president, that appeared to be a mildly surprising ambition by Engel, and called for explanation.

POVICH

"Look at the results," said Engel. "In 39 years with Griffith, I have parlayed my expense accounts into a radio station, a nice farm, the presidency of the Chattanooga club and a chauffeured car. I've heard how Griff cracks down on the rest of the organization, but I'm his blind spot."

Griffith, however, hasn't lost any money on Engel. He scouted and produced more good ball players for Griffith's teams than any other scout ever turned up in a lifetime—Bucky Harris, Ossie Bluege, Joe Judge, Fred Marberry, Earl McNeely, Joe Kuhel, Cecil Travis, Buddy Lewis and Ray Scarborough.

AND IN 19 YEARS as boss of the Griffith-owned Chattanooga farm team, Engel has promoted the biggest opening-day crowds in the Southern Association in 18 different seasons. His stunts earned him the label of Barnum of the Bushes, and he vows that Bill Veeck, the current promotional genius of the majors, has merely plagiarized his stuff.

"Veeck staged a big night for a fan in Cleveland and flew orchids in from Hawaii, but I still hold the record, and in a small town like Chattanooga," relates Engel. "I put 24,688 fans in a ball park that seats 16,000 one night. Of course, I had to give away a furnished house and garage to do it, but we made money.

A furnished house and a furnished garage, too?

"That's right. The garage was also furnished. With a Lincoln Zephyr. We had a drawing and the whole shebang was won by a $12-a-week grocery clerk who took a price for all of it, and bought out his boss. We gave away a second house and lot. It was won by a plasterer who was out of a job for six months."

HE NEVER HAD MUCH desire to work for any other club owner except Griffith, he said. "He never blinked at any expense account I turned in, and I know that when he asked me to take a salary cut back around 1920, he was cutting his own salary a lot more. Those were the days when it was tough meeting the payroll, and we shared the same bed on road trips to cut down expenses."

After his success at producing ball players for the Nats in 1925, Engel relates he received an offer from the late Col. Ruppert, of the Yankees, to head up their coaching staff. "He offered me $7500 to take the job, but he had me all wrong and he underrated Mr. Griffith, too. By that time, Griff was paying me $12,500."

In 1924, he spent $50,000 of Griffith's money to buy outfielder Earl McNeely from Sacramento, and in 1930 he went as high as $65,000 to get Joe Kuhel from Kansas City, but between-times he was under a tight reign by Griffith. "Every once in a while I would need his approval before I could spend his money," says Engel. "I didn't have it when I bought Joe Cronin."

HE BOUGHT CRONIN for $7500 from George Muehlebach, Kansas City owner, in the course of a party at Muehlebach's brewery and other scouts suspected Engel's beer was doing the bidding. Cronin was hitting only .221. "When I called Griffith to tell him I'd bought Cronin for $7500 he screamed, 'You paid $7500 for that bum? Well, you didn't buy him for me. You bought him for yourself.'"

That deal didn't exactly hurt Engel's standing with his boss, however. Five years later, Griffith unloaded Cronin to the Red Sox for $250,000, thus showing a neat profit of $242,500, plus the revenue from the 1933 pennant and World Series Cronin brought to Washington.

Engel boasts also of another achievement. "I'm the only scout who ever sent a radio broadcaster up to the big leagues," he said. "I had Arch McDonald in Chattanooga, and he began demanding so much money for broadcasting I couldn't pay him. So I sold him to Griffith in 1934. McDonald was hurting my payroll.

"We gave a farewell party for Arch, and bought him a car and were sending him off to Washington. After the party was over, McDonald sat outside in his car, pretty touched emotionally, I guess. He said he didn't want to leave Chattanooga and all his good friends. 'I don't believe I'll go, Joe,' he said. 'The hell you won't go,' I said. 'Step on that starter.'"

Against Pistons Here Tonight

McKinney Back to Help Caps Try to Snap Losing Streak

Bones McKinney, who has missed the last two games due to the death of his sister, returns to the lineup tonight as his Washington Caps try to crack a four-game losing streak at the expense of the Fort Wayne Pistons at Uline Arena.

Ineffective most of the season, the Pistons have managed to come up with two of their best performances against Washington's Eastern Division BAA champs. They've held the locals to a draw in their four-game series and if they win tonight they'll join the Chicago Stags as the only clubs to hold a season's edge over the Caps.

In an effort to prevent this and also to get his club in a winning frame of mind for the approaching playoffs, Coach Red Auerbach will use his strongest line-up against the Indianians.

Teaming with McKinney in the starting array will be Jack Nichols, the hot-scoring rookie from Washington, Kleggie Hermsen, Bob Feerick and either Sonny Hertzberg or Johnny Norlander.

The Pistons recently put over a stunning 74-50 upset of the Minneapolis Lakers in Fort Wayne.

Two of the invaders' best are 6 foot 10 inch Bill Henry, youthful center, and 6-8 John Mahnken, former Georgetown University and Washington Caps' center and forward, who combined to stop big George Mikan recently with only two goals and 10 fouls.

Mahnken has played great basketball against his old teammates all season, being credited with 20 points in his last appearance here.

Charlie Black and Bruce Hale, formerly of the Indianapolis Jets, are Fort Wayne's top scorers with averages of 10.9 and 10.4 points. Bob Tough, Jack Smiley, Coach Paul Armstrong, Leo Klier, Richie Niemiera, Dick Triptow and Ward Williams complete the squad.

A Uline Industrial League game opening tonight's action at 7:15 o'clock brings together Census Bureau and Washington Gas Co.

Lions in Form, Beaten, 8 to 3

The Washington Lions, playing their usual game of hockey, were defeated by the Buffalo Bisons, 8-3, last night at Uline Arena.

After a good first period in which they held the Bisons to only two goals they slipped in the second period and the Bisons tallied four times to Washington's two.

The last period somewhat varied the script when Lou Crowdis, Lion goalie, reecived a cut over his eye and skated off the length of the ice to the evident surprise of both officials, neither of whom professed to have seen anything.

Belloise Stops Ross in Fifth

New York, March 11 (AP).—Steve Belloise, hard-hitting Bronx Middleweight contender, stopped J. T. Ross, lanky San Jose, Calif., youngster in 1:13 of the fifth round of the featured ten-rounder in Madison Square Garden tonight. Each weighed 157¼.

Playoff Tickets on Sale

Tickets for the opening game of the championship playoffs involving the Eastern Division champion Washington Capitols and fourth place team to be decided will be placed on sale tonight at the Uline box office between halves of the Washington-Fort Wayne fracas.

The playoffs are scheduled to open Tuesday, March 22. Baltimore and Philadelphia are fighting it out for third and fourth places.

Nats Served Papers in Jumpers' Suit On Baseball

The Nats yesterday were served papers in connection with the $2,500,000 damage suit filed against organized baseball by former St. Louis Cardinal pitchers Max Lanier and Fred Martin.

However, the action didn't excite Nats Secretary Edward Eynon. His club was 1 of 13 in the majors to be served with papers yesterday. The other three clubs are expected to get theirs today.

The major league club owners have until Tuesday, according to the papers, to show cause why Lanier and Martin, both of whom were suspended five years ago for "jumping" to the Mexican League in 1946, should not be reinstated by organized baseball.

"Routine" Eynon Says

Eyon said serving of the papers "was merely routine," and he dispatched them immediately to the American League attorneys in Cleveland. "They'll do all the answering for us," said the Nat official.

In addition to Washington, papers were served on the New York Giants, St. Louis Browns and Cardinals, Pittsburgh Pirates, Boston Braves and Red Sox, Chicago Cubs and White Sox, Philadelphia Athletics and Phillies and Detroit Tigers.

The only teams which had not been served, at a late hour last night, were Cincinnati, Cleveland and the New York Yankees.

Pirates Complain

However, in New York, Irving Saypol, assistant United States marshal, said club officials could be contacted at their spring training camps even though the show cause order is anwerable in New York Federal District Court.

In Pittsburgh, Pirate Secretary Tom Johnston said he would check New York Federal Court rules to determine whether the summons presented at noon today was "properly served." Johnston said most courts allow "a reasonable length of time" before a defendant must answer a show cause order.

"I don't think four days a reasonable length of time," he said.

President Bill De Witt of the Browns said he would forward his papers to the American League's attorney while Cardinal Owner Fred M. Saigh, jr., kept his.

Dodgers Have Answer

In Chicago it was believed that General Manager Jimmy Gallagher accepted service for the Cubs and General Manager Frank Lane for the White Sox. Both men left later for their clubs' West Coast training camps.

In New York, a Giant spokesman said papers had been served the club two days ago but that he did not know what action would be taken. A Yankee spokesman said no papers had been served the club in New York.

Walter O'Malley, Dodger vice president and secretary, said Brooklyn would be ready to answer the summons next Tuesday.

G. W. High Rolls Over Granby, 49-26

Norfolk, March 11.—The undefeated George Washington Presidents of Alexandria routed Granby of Norfolk, 49-26, here tonight, and advanced to the finals of the Virginia Group I High School Basketball Tournament.

G. W.'s foe in tomorrow night's championship game is top-seeded Glass of Lynchburg, which scored a 54-29 victory over Newport News High in tonight's other semifinals contest.

Both finalists have undefeated records. Second-seeded G. W. has 25 straight wins. Glass has 22 in a row.

The Presidents' tight zone defense held Granby to only three field goals in the first half. GW led, 9-3, at the end of the first quarter, and 21-8 at halftime. The Alexandrians broke a tournament scoring record by netting 21 points in the third quarter. With eight minutes to go, GW was on top, 42-16, and inserted its reserves.

Six foot, 5 inch Tony Daukas, easily the tallest player on the court, controlled both backboards for GW. He and Billy Smith, who usually do all of the Presidents' scoring, passed off to Jim Gahagan, whose 17 points were high for the game.

Houtteman Conscious, Promises Tigers He'll Pitch 'Sooner Than You Expect'

Auto Crash Victim Has Skull Injury

Lakeland, Fla., March 11 (AP).—Young Art Houtteman, his skull fractured in an auto-truck collision, smiled from behind his bandages today and bravely promised his Detroit Tiger teammates:

"I'll be able to pitch sooner than you expect."

He was carried unconscious to a hospital, suffering a fracture at the base of his skull.

The 6-foot 1-inch Houtteman gained his "Hard Luck" nickname last season when he lost 16 of 18 games by close scores on errors and flukes beyond his control.

Feels "Not Bad"

But while the baseball world feared for his life, young Art rallied remrakably toward midday at Morrell Memorial Hospital, regained consciousness and spoke a few words with anxious Tiger officials.

One of them was General Manager Billy Evans, who had kept vigil at Art's bedside through the night with Manager Red Rolfe, Coach Ted Lyons and Trainer Jack Homel.

"Do you know me?" Evans asked, as Houtteman opened his eyes.

"Yes, Billy," Art responded.

"How do you feel?"

"Well, not bad."

"Do you think you will be able to pitch tomorrow?"

"No, but I'll be able to pitch sooner than you expect."

Dr. Edgar T. Watson, Lakeland physician for the Detroit baseball club, said the promising young hurler still was in a "very serious condition."

Picture Changed

Dr. Watson said that X-ray pictures made last night after the accident indicated a fracture of a vertebra at the base of the skull. After the pictures were fully dried, however, they clearly showed that the only fracture was a semicircular one across the base of Houtteman's skull, extending upward on either side behind his ears.

Besides the skull fracture, there were no serious injuries apparent, the physician reported. He added, however, there was a possibility of internal injuries. In addition, Houtteman suffered two deep cuts on the head and one over his left eye.

Because of the seriousness of Houtteman's injury, a Catholic priest admnistered rites of the church in the early hours of the morning.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Houtteman, Sr., flew down by plane from Detroit.

Asked if the young Detroiter's life hung in the balance, Dr. Watson replied, "No, not that." Then he added: "But it is a very, very serious fracture." He would not guess when Houtteman might be able to pitch again.

The driver of the truck, Arvil B. Muse, 31, of Zephyr Hills, Fla., was not held. The crash occurred a few minutes after midnight.

Berra Meets Tree

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 11 (AP).—Catcher Yogi Berra of the New York Yankees, wrapped his automobile around a palm tree today while hurrying to the club workout from his home on the outskirts of town.

Although the car was badly damaged, Berra suffered only bruises and scratches on his right leg, near the knee.

He worked out later, but said his knee bothered him considerably.

Klieman Gets Off Relief, Faces Macks

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., March 11.—There may be an upcurve in unemployment over the Nation, but Ed Klieman offers a contrast. He's coming off relief, after three years, and is headed for a starting job with the Nats.

On the Washington club the doors of a regular starting job have swung open for Klieman after three years service as a relief man in Cleveland. Manager Joe Kuhel is giving him a square shot at it.

It is not a great act of generosity. The pitching situation being what it is on the Washington club, he is ready to embrace, if not kiss, any guy who can start a ball game with some prospects of finishing i

Will Pitch Today

Klieman was making holdout gestures after being traded off a pennant-winner to a seventh-place club but the promise that he would not be considered a relief pitcher helped to melt him. The glasses-wearing righthander is one of the three pitchers who will face the Athletics tomorrow at Palm Beach in the Nats' initial exhibition game.

On the record, Klieman isn't making any outrageous demand in his desire to start ball games. His earned-run average of 2.59 at Cleveland last season was far superior to any figure on the Washington pitching staff. Ray Scarborough, the Nats' top man with 15 wins and 8 defeats last year, had an earned-run record of 3.85 per game.

The pitching picture of the Nats is not too wholesome anyway, and Kuhel is in no mood to turn down help from any quarter. He hopes for Klieman, and is aware that in other spots on the staff he is gambling on a series of "ifs."

Sid Hudson must shake off the effects of last year's sore arm. Mickey Haefner, now 36, underwent an operation during the winter. Joe Haynes ditto. Walter Masterson can't locate the plate or the fast curve with which he used to win games. There is nothing about the rookies to rave about.

Paul Calvert, the free agent who pitched in the Havana Winter League, may also slip into a starting job if he is impressive in the exhibition games. . . He will work with Klieman and Dick Welteroth against the A's tomorrow . . . Al Evans, a renowned spring hitter, will get the call to do the bulk of the club's catching until the calendar catches up with his batting swing . . . At the first sign of a batting slump by any of his all-left-handed outfield of Lewis, Stewart and Coan, Manager Kuhel will inject right-handed Clyde Vollmer into the line-up. . . . Vollmer has put John Simsons, also up from the International League, in the shade during the workouts to date . . . Simmons' greenness is obvious.

Check From Bowling Event Puts Fund Drive Over Top

A check for $2445 from The Washington Post Bowling Tournament yesterday put the Metropolitan Police Boys Club $250,000 fund-raising campaign over the top.

Charges Violation of Agreement

Ahearn Peeved Over Kirsch Deal, Pulls Out of Uline's

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Goldie Ahearn, the only professional boxing promoter to stage shows in Uline Arena for the last seven years, pulled out last night.

Sizzling with indignation, the promoter of the Liberty Athletic Club charged the arena had violated verbal agreement with him when it announced its facilities were available to Fred Kirsch, applicant for a fight promoter's license.

Ahearn claims M. J. Uline, owner of the arena, had given the Liberty Club exclusive rights to promote professional fights in the 3d and M sts. ne., ice palace.

Promoter Ahearn's first action, after announcing he "was through with Uline Arena for good," was to cancel his March 24 lightweight match, set for Uline's, between Sonny Boy West and Buster Tyler. "I may put it on later at a different place, but certainly not at Uline's," Ahearn ranted.

He said he was dickering for the use of a new site to stage two more indoor shows, but was not at liberty to divulge the name of the place.

Paul Rothgeb, general manager of Uline Arena, said Ahearn and Uline may have an agreement, "but I don't know anything about it." Rothgeb appeared before the Boxing Commission last Monday when Kirsch made application for his promoter's license. Rothgeb told the commission that Uline Arena was available to anyone who wanted to promote boxing there.

"My agreement with Uline," Ahearn added, "was that I was to have exclusive rights to promote boxing if I staged at least five shows during the winter season there. The West-Tyler fight would have been the sixth. I lost $10,000 on the first five fights.

"Not only did Uline violate his agreement with me, but I wasn't even consulted when Kirsch asked for permission to promote there. I've stuck with Uline for seven years, battling boycotts and excessive rents. I think I was entitled to at least a telephone call."

All of Ahearn's promotions at Uline haven't been flops. He drew a $37,000 house last winter with Rocky Graziano and Sonny Horne and five other Ahearn promoted attractions topped the $30,000 mark in the last four years.

5 Virginians Qualify; C. U. Boxers Fade

State College, Pa., March 11.—Syracuse was top qualifier in the twenty-sixth Intercollegiate Boxing Association's tourney here tonight as Virginia made a strong title defense and Catholic University faded.

Syracuse placed six men in the semifinals, scheduled for tomorrow, and Heavyweight Marty Crandell moved right into the finals. Penn State and Army each qualified six for the second-day action and demained strong threats for the Edward J. Neil Trophy.

Three of Virginia's individual champs won their first-round matches and Abe Levine was the only Cavalier loser, being outpointed by Syracuse's Jim Rollier. In all, Virginia will have five representatives.

On the other hand, Catholic U., toute das the dark-horse entry for team honors, lost three of its four fights. Little Tom Cronin, 125-pounder, was he Cardinal's only winner. He floored Fred Smith in the first round and easily outpointed the favored Penn Stater.

Catholic U. will have two boxers going with Cronin who now has a streak of eight straight. Drawing byes for semifinal spots were Billy Maher, 165-pounder, and Joe Incaranato, 135.

FIRST ROUND

125 POUNDS—Tom Cronin (Catholic U.) outpointed Fred Smith (Penn State).

Lew Worsham, Demaret Win Match, 4 and 3

Miami, Fla., March 11 (U.P.).—Lew Worsham of Washington and his frolicking partner, Jimmy Demaret, continuing their winning ways in the Miami four-ball tournament today, defeating Claude Harmon, 1948 Masters Champion, and Ellsworth Vines, 4-3.

While Worsham and Demaret were winning, another highly twosome, Sammy Snead and Lloyd Mangrum, were beaten in the second round of the $10,000 tournament, losing to Skip Alexander of Southern Pines, N. C., and Pete Cooper of Ponte Vedra, Fla., 2 and 1.

Alexander and Cooper scored the upset when Mangrum's 10-foot putt on the thirty-fifth green rimmed the cup in spite of Snead's hollering for it to get in.

Demaret and Worsham carded a 62 on the morning 18. It gave them the necessary lead for an easy victory.

The other favorite teams advanced to the semifinals, Dr. Cary Middlecoff, Memphis, and Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, coasted to a 2 and 1 victory over Tony Penna, Cincinnati, and Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C.

Unspectacular but subpar golf was turned in for the second day running by Herman Keiser, Akron, Ohio, and Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C. They beat Henry Ransom, St. Andrews, Ill., and Dave Douglas, Wilmington, Del., 5 and 4.

The Keiser-Palmer duo turned in a best ball 62 for the first 18 and shot the next nine holes in 31, which is four under par for each nine played.

In tomorrow's 63-hole semifinals, Middlecoff and Ferrier meet Demaret and Worsham, while Alexander and Cooper are matched against Keiser and Palmer.

Lacy Gets Legislative Laurels

Annapolis, Md., March 11 (AP). The basketball skill of Baltimore Loyola's Jim Lacy had legislative approval today.

The Maryland House passed a resolution congradulating Lacy, highest scoring collegiate basketball player still active, upon "his contribution to the field of intercollegiate sport in bringing fame to Loyola College and the State of Maryland."

Lacy has scored a total of 2121 points in his four years of college ball, just 40 points short of the all-time record set by Brooms Abramovic at Salem (W. Va.) College.

He still has a chance to break the record, since Loyola will play in the National Catholic Intercollegiate Tournament in Denver opening March 20.

Tropical Skiier Wins

Aurora, Ontario, March 11 (AP). Students at St. Andrew's College, 20 miles north of Toronto, are just a bit embarrassed now when you mention skiing.

Richard Vaughan, a 12-year-old student from Bogota in tropical Colombia, South America, won a cross-country ski race here yesterday. Vaughan, only recently introduced to skis, marked up a time of 35 minutes and 5 seconds for the 22¾ miles.

Panting for Pants

London, March 11 (AP).—The National Cyclists Union, 60,000 strong, is short of shorts.

Pays Fine in Golf Balls

Suffolk, Va., March 11 (AP).—Charged with speeding 70 miles an hour, Leo R. Mallory, a golf pro from Bridgeport, Conn., found he hadn't enough money to pay his $50 fine plus $4.25 costs.

Mallory did have some golf balls, though — two dozen of them. So he proposed a deal to Associate Trial Justice Marshall Bowden. He would pay $32.25 and leave the golf balls, valued at $1.10 each, with the judge. Bowden accepted.

Pitchers Improve

McCarthy Hints Flag For Red Sox

(This is another in a series of stories on the prospects of major league baseball teams.)

Sarasota, Fla., March 9 (AP).—Joe McCarthy thinks Boston's pitching will be improved. That's another way of saying the Red Sox are going to be tough this year.

Whether they'll be strong enough to win the American League pennant, the veteran pilot would not say. But he conceded nothing to the other clubs.

"I think we were as good as any ball club in the league at the close of last season," Joe explained. "And with Tex Hughson showing signs of making a comeback, together with the addition of a good crop of rookie hurlers coming along, we should be better this year."

McCarthy pointed out that with all the poor pitching he had in 1948, the Red Sox still managed to force the Cleveland Indians into a playoff game to win the flag. He blamed a dismal start for the loss of the championship.

While it still is too early to tell, McCarthy said he was pleased with the showing of Hughson, a 20-game winner in 1946 who skidded to only three triumphs last year following two arm operations.

"Tex has been out three times, and appeared to be throwing with his old free and easy motion," Joe said. "He has had no after effects either. Last year, he couldn't put anything on the ball, and his arm tightened up after each workout."

McCarthy said he also liked the looks of southpaw newcomers John McCall of Louisville, Maurice McDermott of Scranton, and three good right-handed prospects, Frank Quinn, former Yale star; Bill Nixon and Mike Palm. He also is counting heavily on veterans Joe Dobson, Mickey Harris, Boo Ferriss, Jack Kramer, Ellis Kinder and Mel Parnell.

Marse Joe feels he is set in the outfield with the power-hitting Ted Williams, the sharp-fielding Dom DiMaggio, Sam Mele and Stan Spence. He also likes the looks of rookies Tom O'Brien, George Wilson and Tom Wright. Each hit well over .300 in Class AAA and AA last year.

"The infield should be better if only that Johnny Pesky is now a real big league third baseman," McCarthy said. "He was new at the position last year and it took him a while to learn the ropes. By the end of the season, he was as good as George Kell, Ken Keltner and the others."

A bright feature in the camp has been the long distance swatting of Walter Dropo, a big rawboned 6-5 first base candidate from Moosup, Conn. Dropo hit .359 for Birmingham last year and hammered 14 home runs, not including nine in the playoffs.

The big "if" is the mound corps. If the pitching comes through, the Red Sox definitely will be the team to beat for the American League pennant.

Top Clubs Remain Idle Until Monday

By Austin Bealmear

New York, March 11 (AP).—The twelfth annual National Invitation Basketball tournament opens at Madison Square Garden tomorrow with two double-headers designed to cut the unprecedented field of a dozen teams down to its normal ration of eight.

The inclusion of four New York clubs, greatest quantity of home talent ever entered in this post-season dribble derby, swelled the entry list to unusual proportions and made four extra games necessary.

Tournament officials who threw open the gates to the Gotham quartet spotted all four local entries on the opening program with no guarantee that any would be left after the first day's firing ceases.

In the opening game at 3:30 p. m., San Francisco University, with a record of 21 victories and 5 defeats, takes on Manhattan College (18-7). The second half of the matinee card pits Bradley University (25-6) against New York University (12-7).

Two Night Games

Bowling Green (21-6) meets St. John's (15-8) in the first game at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, followed by Loyola of Chicago (22-5) against City College of New York (17-7).

The four seeded teams make their first appearance Monday, when another day-night program is slated. In order, they are Kentucky (29-1), St. Louis (22-3), Utah (24-7) and Western Kentucky (25-3). All were handed first-round byes.

Kentucky meets the Loyola-CCNY winner and Western Kentucky the Bradley-NYU winner Monday afternoon. St. Louis will play the survivor of the Bowling Green-St. John's contest and Utah the San Francisco-Manhattan victor Monday night.

Monday's play will reduce the field to four teams for the semi-finals March 17. The finals are scheduled Saturday night March 19, with the semifinal losers meeting for third place.

St. Louis University is the defending champion. The Billikens are expected to reach the finals along with top-seeded Kentucky, the NCAA titleholder.

4 Area Colleges In Baltimore Track Tonight

Baltimore, March 11.—Maryland, Georgetown, Catholic and Howard Universities are represented in tomorrow night's Fifth Regiment Armory Games, which end the Eastern indoor track season.

The 14 events of the South Atlantic Association meet are expected to attract a field of 200. Drawing the most attention are the mile relays, the 600, hurdles, high jump and mile.

The mile relays are divided into three sections. Maryland will have a team in two of the sections. The Terps A team will be up against Villanova and Morgan State of Baltimore. The B team will compete with Catholic U. and the Baltimore Olympic Club.

Ed Matthews, the Terps' Southern Conference mile king, goes after the 600-yard "special," but he'll be bucking up against defending champion George Guida of Villanova.

Billy Mitchell, Georgetown's giant hurdler, is in the 70-yard steeplechase, and meets up with Maryland's Karl Rubach and Mortie Cohen in that event.

Russ Johnson of Catholic U. and George Butler, Dick Lentz and Lyn Frasier of Maryland are among the high jumping contenders.

Davis Wants To Play Baseball

Fort Dix, N. J., March 11 (U.P.) Former Army football hero Glenn Davis today indicated he will seek his discharge from the Army in 1951 and probably will take a try at a professional baseball career.

Davis, now a lieutenant, did not admit flatly that he will ask for the discharge. But, in an interview, he did reveal that his penchant for a professional athletic career is just as strong now as it was last year when he sought, unsuccessfully, a discharge from the Army.

He pointed out that in 1951 he will have served out the minimum four years required of a West Point graduate officer before he can apply for inactive duty.

D. C. Prep, High Stars Play Today

The Big Brothers Club of Georgetown stages its third annual All-High vs. All-Prep basketball game at 2:30 today at Uline Arena.

A crowd of 2000 is expected to swell the Boys Club of Washington Work Fund, which receives all profits of the game.

The two teams were selected by the local high school coaches and newspapermen. The teams split in their two previous games and are rated a tossup today.

In 1947, the All-Highs earned a last minute 29-28 victory on two free throws by Al Giuffreda, then at Eastern High, and now of Wilson Teachers College.

Last year, Jack George of St. John's dropped in two field goals in the last 30 seconds to give the All-Preps a 50-46 win. George is now at Notre Dame.

Spearheading the All-High team today are Bucky Poston of Western and Jimmy Pantos of Central, who ranked one-two in the Interhigh League scoring race.

The Preps have a height advantage and are led by 6-foot 4-inch Roger Kingsbury of St. Albans, who has a 27-points per game average this season.

Rounding out the High squad are: Bob Curtis and Tony Sgro of McKinley Tech, Bob Zamsky of Rosevelt, Leo Speros and Jim Young of Wilson, Jack Stringer of Central, Ken Luxenberg of Coolidge and Franny Dyer of Eastern. Coaches are Gabe Ferazzi of Central and Hank Bristor of Wilson.

Completing the Prep squad are: John O'Donnell and Tom Crowley of Georgetown Prep, Bob MacDonald, Bob McLandon and Don Kokes of St. John's, Jack Duchesne of Priory, Tippy Lankins of Gonzaga and Lou Penniní of St. Anthony's. Coaches are Joe Gallagher of St. John's and Joe Kozik of Gonzaga.

At 1 p. m. preliminary is slated between Crescent Cafe and Cavalier Liquors. At halftime of the feature game, Jody Miller, Miss Washington of 1948, and Ralph Hawkins and his orchestra will provide entertainment.

St. Mary's, Priory Win In Tourney

St. Mary's of Annapolis nosed out St. Paul's, 33-31, host Priory romped over St. John's of Frederick, 48-25, and top-seeded St. Anthony's edged Woodward, 34-32, and Georgetown Prep routed Hagerstown, 68-35, last night in the first round of the invitational basketball tournament at Priory gym.

Two games are slated at 7:30 tonight in the second round at Priory.

After Hours Clubs Regulation Planned

Drafting of regulations for licensing of after hours clubs is high on the list of chores District Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West plans to tackle after Capitol Hill completes action on revenue measures.

West said yesterday that he will prepare rules covering those clubs which cater to the public, rather than to bona fide members only, for consideration by the Commissioners. Such regulations will bring clubs under Police Department, Health Department and Alcoholic Beverage Board surveillance.

Meanwhile, two restaurant groups have adopted resolutions favoring a curb on the clubs. The Restaurant Beverage Association favors creation of new types of licenses so that downtown restaurants willing to pay a higher fee may be permitted to remain open additional hours.

The Washington Restaurant Association favors licensing of the after hours clubs; a 2 a. m. closing on Sundays; no license fee increase on Class C and D liquor licenses and stand-up bars in restaurants. These positions were taken after a survey by the association of its membership, Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary, said.

U. S. Challenges Russia On Austrian Treaty

London, March 11 (U.P.).—The United States challenged Russia today to offer a way out of the East-West stalemate on an Austrian peace treaty.

Slot Machine Racket Yields Costello Ring $2 Billion a Year, California Probers Charge of the underworld of the entire United States.'

"He is one of the big political powers in Tammany Hall and does not hesitate to take a personal part in municipal, State and even national politics."

The California Commission says the slot machine played a major part in Costello's rise to eminence in the rackets. He was a lieutenant of Arnold Rothstein, the gambler and internationally known trafficker in narcotics and prostitution who was murdered by gangsters in New York on November 4, 1927.

Worked for Rothstein

Costello was handling the slot machine racket for Rothstein when the latter was slain. He took it over for himself. Later, plagued by attacks by the late Mayor LaGuardia of New York, Costello transferred his activities to Louisiana.

According to the Chicago Crime Commission, Costello, an "intimate friend of Al Capone, Arnold Rothstein, 'Dutch' Schultz and similar gangsters," was imported from New York by the late Huey Long to take over the slot machines in New Orleans.

While a grand jury was in the process of indicting some of Huey's henchmen on income-tax evasion charges, Costello told the grand jury that Huey had picked him to be the "lucky one" to install and operate slot machines in New Orleans.

"Benjamin 'Bugsy' Siegel, who was shot to death in Beverly Hills, Calif., on June 20, 1947, was a Costello associate," according to the California commission, "and at the time of his death the West Coast representative of 'The Combination' and 'Murder, Inc.'"

In New York, Costello was not available but his lawyer, George Wolf, said the California Commission's report doesn't interest me in the slightest."

The lawyer said he wouldn't contact Costello for comment because the matter "has no bearing on our relationship."

Called "Capone Syndicate"

"The Combination" is also often referred to as the "Capone Syndicate."

The commission says the true relationship between these gangsters and the slot machine manufacturers, distributors, operators and their trade associations is not known, but it does appear certain that the distribution and operation of slot machines is wholly in the hands of racketeers in all parts of the country.

New Unit Operates Here

However, the slot-machine people are well organized, the California investigative body found. The report says a national organization with headquarters in Chicago does practically all of the organizational work in the slot-machine racket."

The report also says that an organization of machine operators, a comparatively new organization, is now operating here in Washington.

FRANK COSTELLO
Slot machine czar

The commission reports the Chicago organization held its annual convention and show in Chicago in January, and the convention was attended by "undercover investigators" for the commission.

In advertising its convention to the trade, says the report, the organization laid great stress on the fact that the staff of its legal department would be available for personal conferences during the three days of the convention.

"These legal conferences," the commission asserts, "proved to be real seminars in the corruption of public officers. Matters discussed included the best way of paying graft to law-enforcement officers.

Alternatives Argued

"Several alternative methods were seriously argued, such as (1) the payment of a flat sum periodically; (2) 'cutting in' public officers for a percentage of the operation, and (3) heavy 'campaign contributions' both before and after election.

"Ways and means were considered of removing various State and local officers who are considered stumbling blocks in the way of the 'industry.'

"From these extraordinarily frank discussions of corruption, the commission's investigators ascertained that it is the common practice of slot-machine operators throughout the country to pay 10 to 20 per cent of their gross profit for protection and graft, although the method of payment varies according to local circumstance."

From this, the commission estimates the slot machine racketeers are spending 400 million dollars annually for bribery and corruption of public executive officers, and additional large amounts are being spent on a corps of lobbyists and a legal and public relations staff.

Boasted of Influence

The report says commission investigators were present when the Chicago organization held its convention banquet in January, at which time a member of the delegation from California asked for political retaliation by the organization against Governor Warren and Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles.

The delegate declared, the report says, that the first task for the organization and the slot machine men in California was to "remove persons such as the State's Governor and the Los Angeles Mayor from public life."

The commission says that later, in a private conversation with one of the commission investigators, the legal counsel of the organization boasted of "a pipeline into every State Capitol as well as the National Capitol."

The evidence makes it clear, says the commission, the organization is engaged in "the furtherance of a criminal conspiracy on a grand scale. The organization and its members are engaged in a planned assault on all branches of Government—executive, legislative and judicial alike."

The organization's plan and its technique of buying and selling executive, legislative and judicial officers "is the perfect blueprint for plutocratic gangster government," the commission says.

The California commission reports it is opposed to licensed, legalized slot machines, pointing out that the slot machine racket has been "a principal factor in political corruption and gang warfare" and "has trained children and juveniles in the ways of the gambler."

To suppress the slot-machine racket in California, the commission recommends:

1. Amendment of the State penal code to make unlawful the possession of a slot machine, or other mechanical gambling device with automatic payoff, without the necessity for evidence showing that the machine involved was used for gambling in any particular instance.

2. An amendment to the penal code to outlaw slot machines awarding free games.

3. Enactment of a new statute which would permit revocation of the license of any licensed business if slot machines or other gambling devices were allowed to operate on the premises.

Seek Suitland Building

Congress was asked yesterday to authorize a $5,125,000 group of buildings at Suitland, Md., to store some 250 million feet of Government film records. The legislation was asked by Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

Administration Backs Increased Benefits for U. S. Workers Injured

The Administration has given its approval to a bill that would increase the benefits for the thousands of Federal workers who are injured each year on the job. The families of employes who are killed on the job also would receive more nearly adequate compensation under the legislation. The bill provides:

That an employe who is totally disabled would be paid compensation up to 66 2/3 of his salary at the time of his injury. If he had one or more dependants, he'd get a maximum of 75 per cent. The bill fixes a percentage maximum instead of a dollar maximum of $116.66 a month as the present law provides.

That a childless widow would get 45 per cent of the salary of her husband who is killed on his job. If there are children, the widow would get 40 per cent, plus 15 per cent for each child up to a maximum of 75 per cent;

That the minimum for total disability be raised from $58.33 to $112.50 a month; that an additional allowance to pay an attendant for a totally disabled person be raised from $50 to $75 a month. And an additional allowance of $50 a month could be given a totally disabled person for undergoing a course in vocational rehabilitation. The allowance for funeral expenses would be raised from $200 to $400, and besides, the Government would be required to pay costs to transport the body to its place of burial.

A flat rate would be paid the employe for the loss of limbs as follows: arm, 312 weeks' compensation; leg, 288 weeks; hand, 244 weeks; foot, 205 weeks; eye, 160 weeks; thumb, 75 weeks; first finger, 46 weeks; great toe, 38 weeks; second finger, 30 weeks; third finger, 25 weeks; little toe, 16 weeks; fourth finger, 15 weeks; loss of hearing, 5 weeks for one ear, and 200 weeks for both ears, and a payment up to $3500 shall be made in addition to other compensation for serious disfigurement of the face, head, or neck if it's likely to handicap the employe in obtaining or maintaining employment.

The bill covers officers of the Government as well as employes. The present law, for example, doesn't cover Foreign Service officers, postmasters, United States marshals, top officials and other who are rated as officers.

STARTLING: In a recent letter to the Federal Safety Council, President Truman emphasized that the cost of accidents in Government was too high. Last year alone, he said, accidents on Federal jobs had killed 208 employes; injured 68,174 others, and had cost the Government at least 40 million dollars. The President also brought out that the Government auto accident rate was 27 per cent higher than the national average. New officers of the Safety Council are: Charles A. Peters of Public Buildings, chairman; Dr. John W. Cronin of the Public Health Service, vice chairman, and Lois E. Ellenbecker, secretary.

LABOR: It will centralize its personnel operations in the Secretary's office. The various bureau personnel offices will be abolished. The Budget Bureau wiped out 29 personnel jobs at Labor, which forces the recentralization of personnel work.

HEARING EXAMINERS: Civil Service has rated eligible for permanent appointment 106 of the 148 hearing examiners with competitive status. In addition, 52 non-status examiners passed the test along with 80 persons in other Federal jobs, and another 80 persons not now in the Government. The jobs pay from $7400 to $10,300.

WORKING GIRLS: Is it proper and right for a married woman who has a husband and a good position to occupy a job that some single girl should have?

That question was asked of Frieda S. Miller, director of Labor's Women's Bureau, the other day by a member of Congress. Since this question frequently comes up in Government, this is Miss Miller's answer to it:

"When it comes to a choice of that kind, I think obviously the need of the single woman with no support is the most urgent. I wish I could tell you that I thought that was the only problem involved.

"A good many—I believe about 17 per cent—of the women in employment are widows or divorced. Very often they have children and other dependents. It is a striking fact that among the married women who live with their husbands and who work there are six times as many working in the lowest income groups as there are when the husband's income comes up to the minimum figure of $3000. There is no question that the economic motive is a very strong one."

City Manager's Appointment Termed Illegal

Alexandria Mayor Calls Councilmen To Act on Charge Statute Is Violated

The appointment of Robert S. Marshall, jr., as city manager of Alexandria was challenged as illegal yesterday by three city council supporters of ousted Nicholas A. Colasanto.

The council minority of John W. Tulloch, Leroy S. Bendheim and Roy C. Bragg—who voted against Marshall—cited Ordinance No. 480 as the basis for their charge. This statute, they said, requires two weeks' public notice and written applications from candidates before appointing a city manager.

Mayor Wiliam T. Wilkins, one of the four-man majority which threw Colasanto out Tuesday and brought Marshall in Thursday, imediately called a special session of the council today at 2:30 p. m. In his call, he said the purpose of the meeting is to "consider repeal" of the ordinance and to give "further consideration" to Marshall's appointment.

May Change Ordinance

City Attorney Joseph M. Pancoast declined to comment on the validity of Marshall's appointment. He did say that if it were illegal the council could rectify the situation by repealing the ordinance and reappointing Marshall.

Listing by the mayor of the two matters to be discussed at the special meeting indicated the council will pobably follow this course. It can be accomplished by the simple majority of four that has controlled the situation thus far, according to Pancoast.

Marshall, a local housing administrator, was appointed with the understanding that an experienced city manager would replace him after the spring council election.

"Political Move" Charged

Tempers have flared on both sides in the dispute.

Leroy S. Benheim, minority member who quizzed Mayor Wilkins sharply on Thursday on Marshall's qualifications, called the whole business a "political move."

Mayor Wilkins observed yesterday that if the council minority is looking for a fight "either private or public," he was ready to oblige.

All seven council seats come up for election in the April 5 primary and the June 6 general election. With all incumbents except minority member John W. Tulloch running, the Colasanto affair seems certain to be a major issue in the campaign.

Senators Scan District Code Revision Bills

District Bar Association bills for revising the legal code here were reviewed yesterday by the Senate District Judiciary Subcommittee in a hearing at the Capitol.

Chairman Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.), said the bills would be taken under advisement. The subcommittee heard Lowry N. Coe, president of the District Bar Association, outline the measures.

Among the bills are measures to tighten the code for financial support of illegitimate children, to pay court-assigned lawyers up to $25 a day for defending indigent persons; to strengthen enforcement of court orders for paying temporary and permanent maintenance, and to increase from $600 to $1000 the amount the court can allow from an estate to pay funeral expenses.

Chairman Neely and Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), joined in serving notice that jury trials should be guaranteed under another bill calling for court-appointed "committees" to supervise property of persons unable to handle their own affairs.

The bill was introduced by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.).

Silver Spring Schools to Be Reshuffled

Proposed reshuffling of pupils and classes in several Silver Spring schools, affecting about 300 students, was announced yesterday by the Montgomery County Board of Education.

Under the plan, to go into effect in September, sixth-grade classes will be added to two elementary schools, East Silver Spring and Oakview. The former will also acquire a fifth grade.

Junior high grades will be dropped from Silver Spring Intermediate and all seventh, eighth and ninth-grade pupils in the Takoma Park-Silver Spring area will attend either Takoma Park or Montgomery Hills Junior High Schools.

New school districts also will be set up, officials said. They pointed out the new policy will enable more children of the same family to attend the same school and others to attend classes nearer their homes.

Chief Congratulates Bandits' Captors

THEIR HUNCH PAID OFF—Police Chief Robert Barrett (center) clasps the hands of his two men who captured the B. & O. train robbers. They are Pvts. James Kennedy (left) and Pvt. Elwood Lomax. It was Kennedy's hunch which led them into the Pennsylvania ave. pawnbrokers exchange, where Lomax dropped one bandit with a bullet from his service revolver. Wounded Train Bandit's Chances Improved by 1½-Hour Operation

The youth who was shot by a policeman after holding up a train Wednesday was given a good chance of living last night.

He and his companion were arrested in a pawnbroker's exchange at Pennsylvania ave. near 22d st. nw. after they staged a Wild-West-style train robbery near Martinsburg, W. Va.

The wounded man, Luman Ramsdell, 23, however, was still in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital.

But doctors said a 90-minute operation to repair injuries to his stomach and liver improved his chances of living.

The bullet penetrated his stomach, ripped through his liver, and came out of his back, just opposite the space between eleventh and twelfth ribs. The bullet missed his heart by only 2 inches.

Some infection has set in, doctors said, but it was minimized because Ramsdell ate little the day he was shot. Considerable stomach contents, spilling into the abdominal cavity, would have increased the infection, they said.

Meanwhile, Ramsdell's crime partner, George Llewellyn Ashton, 21, remained coolly resigned in District Jail, officials said. Ashton is being held under $50,000 bond on train robbery charges preferred by the FBI.

Both men, former convicts from Youngstown, Ohio, have admitted they yanked the Baltimore & Ohio's crack Ambassador Express to a stop by pulling an emergency cord—robbed passengers and crew members at gunpoint—and later held up a nearby tavern.

LUMAN RAMSDELL
Recovering from wound

Both zoot-suited youths are products of broken homes; both got into scrapes during military service.

Ramsdell, nicknamed "Skip," has a steady income from a trust fund "well into the thousands," left by his father who died when "Skip" was a child, relatives in Youngstown said.

He was "just a wild kid, that's all—thought he was better than everyone else," relatives said.

Married to an attractive blonde Ramsdell maintained an expensive, modernistic apartment and drove the latest model convertible car. He formerly attended Randolph Macon Academy in Virginia, in Virginia.

Sent to the Ohio State Reformatory three times after brushes with police involving auto thefts and armed robbery, Ramsdell was pronounced a "constitutional psychopath" by doctors at the Youngstown Receiving Hospital.

Ashton "nicknamed Duke" is a poor youth, reared by an uncle in a rooming house on "the wrong side of the tracks," influenced by "bad companions."

He too, has done time in the State reformatory.

His father divorced his mother in 1940 and his mother later remarried.

"Duke has had a tough life since he was three months old," his mother said yesterday.

Ashton said the Jesse James-style robbery was unplanned.

Planned or not, the holdup was spectacular.

The arrest here in the pawnbroker's exchange was equally dramatic. Pvts. Elwood G. Lomax and James D. Kennedy entered the shop and asked the two men for identification.

When Ramsdell tried to draw from the hip, Kennedy shoved Ashton against him and shouted to Lomax: "Let him have it Woody."

Minority Blasts D. C. Sales Tax as House Gets Bill

Reports in Sharp Conflict on Step Proposed to Meet 'Austerity Budget'

The District sales tax bill was presented to the House yesterday with two reports in sharp conflict on the merits of the plan now slated for House action Monday.

A report representing the majority views of the House District Committee called for passage of the proposed 2 per cent sales tax to handle a city deficit for next year that may exceed 18 million dollars.

The majority report was filed by Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), chairman of the subcommittee that drafted the sales tax bill and won 16-to-7 District committee backing for it.

A minority report filed by Representative George P. Miller (D., Calif.) denounced the sales tax plan as an "inadequate, unfair, and discriminatory" solution to the District revenue problem. He said new revenue should be sought by broadening the coverage and increasing the rate of the District personal income tax law.

Both reports cited the seriousness of the District's needs for new revenues.

'Austerity Budget'

Smith's report pointed out that the city budget proposed for the year beginning July 1 was an austerity budget.

"There was no provision for additional school buildings for the expanding and shifting school population, or to expand necessary services, or adequately care for the indigent," the report said. "Increases were confined to mandatory requirements of law, increased cost of supplies, materials and equipment, and to new personnel to assure additional revenues, staff new buildings, and to protect life and property.

"Nothing was requested to replace the rapidly deteriorating buildings at some of the District institutions."

The minority report represented the views of six of the seven District committee members who voted against the sales tax bill. The seventh member was against the bill because it did not tax food for home consumption.

Teaming with Representative Miller in opposition to the sales tax are Representatives Arthur G. Klein (D., N. Y.), John F. Kennedy (D., Mass.), Walter K. Granger (D., Utah), James H. Morrison (D., Ala.), and Frank Buchanan (D., Pa.).

Their report said that the Commissioners' demand for a sales tax was "an act of desperation."

Living Costs Cited

"The sales tax is one of the most regressive of taxes even if food and medical prescriptions are exempted. It is more burdensome on the poor than on the rich. To add such a burden on low-income families is particularly unfair under present circumstances, since high prices have raised the cost of minimum maintenance to unprecedented levels."

The minority group called for increasing revenue from the personal income tax in the District by keeping present exemptions, applying the tax to all District residents regardless of domicile, and hiking rates. This is along the line proposed in the bill sponsored by Representative Klein. The group estimated the Klein bill would increase revenue by 15 million, and another five million could be raised by boosting the top income tax rates.

The report also called for reexamination of District property taxes to bring in more revenue, for authority for District borrowing for public improvements, and for an increase in the Federal payment to the District.

Two Seized On Lottery Law Charges

Vice Squad policemen yesterday arrested a liquor store owner and a man riding in a taxicab for alleged lottery law violations.

Jacob Rubin, 53, of 4901 Fifth st. nw., was arrested at his Embassy Liquor Store, 3125 Mount Pleasant st. nw., and charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Undercover men made a numbers play just before the raid. Lieut. Roy E. Blick, vice squad chief, said. Marked money and a slip were recovered in the raid, according to the police, who were armed with a warrant from the U. S. Commissioner's office.

The other man arrested was Dwight L. Floyd, 41, 748 Columbia rd. nw., who faces the same charges. Detectives arrested him as he was riding in a cab in the 2800 block of Rhode Island ave. ne.

He had been observed by vice squad men for several days and had a quantity of used numbers slips and $190 in cash when arrested, Blick said.

Rubin was released on $1500 bond for appearance before the U. S. Commissioner today. Floyd was released in the same amount of bond for a Police Court hearing today.

Bet Defendant Admits D. C. Gambler Link

Connections with a Washington gambler who was reported to have "left town" since were admitted yesterday by a Silver Spring man convicted of accepting a horse race bet.

During a Montgomery County Circuit Court jury trial, the defendant, Wyndol O. Colie, 54, of 806 Silver Spring ave., admitted transmitting the $5 horse race bet of a plainclothesman to a Washington bookie identified only as Tony Lombardi. He said Lombardi has left Washington.

Colie denied he was a runner for a betting establishment. The jury that convicted him disregarded his assertion that he transmitted the bet only "as a personal favor" to a policeman.

He was one of 14 persons seized in raids on five alleged gambling establishments last November 6. Eight of the suspects have since been convicted, charges against two were dropped, three were found innocent, and one case is still pending.

Police Seek Two on Tip, Arrest Four

A tipster's information yesterday netted Prince Georges County police two men they sought on suspicion of store thefts and—unexpectedly—another pair wanted on other charges.

One of the latter, Arthur "Boots" Green, 43, 1108 64th st., Cedar Heights, also was held for Internal Revenue agents when Detective Earl J. Huber and Deputy Sheriff Ernest H. Mulligan, found him in possession of 6 gallons of moonshine whisky.

Huber and Mulligan visited Green's house, they said, to pick up Gilbert O. McCloud, 31, 6700 Sheriff rd., and Arthur Owens, 40, 6300 Sheriff rd. Both were charged with two counts each of looting Dyke's Cafeteria, 6700 Sheriff rd., of cigarettes, cash, and a large quantity of food on March 5 and 10.

Green, in addition to being held for the Government agents, also faces a charge of assault with intent to kill on a warrant sworn out by a Fairmont Heights woman.

The fourth man, Willie Ragin, 25, 1002 66th ave., Cedar Heights, was arrested at Green's home on another assault warrant sworn out by the same woman.

Watchman Held By Faulty Lift Sounds Fire Alarm

A 63-year-old night watchman who was imprisoned on the upper floors of a storage building last night because of a faulty elevator and a barricaded stairway was promptly rescued by firemen when he turned in the building's fire alarm.

Walter J. Carroll, who lives at 1207 N st. nw., was making his 6 o'clock rounds at the Merchants Transfer and Storage Co., at 920 E st. nw., when his elevator became stuck on the sixth floor.

Carroll promptly started down the stairs but one flight below he found himself trapped by a barricade built by workers who are fireproofing the building. He returned to the sixth floor and spent an hour yelling fruitlessly out of the window to passers-by. As the time passed when he should have been checking other parts of the building, he became desperate and pulled the alarm.

3 Sentenced For Abduction And Holdup

Two young men and a teen-age girl were ordered yesterday to be imprisoned in Federal reformatories for the abduction-holdup of Columbus W. Henry, proprietor of the Congress Heights Pharmacy.

Judge Richmond B. Keech of District Court said he was imposing imprisonment of the youths for the benefit of society and in the hope the defendants will learn honest trades.

The trio are Mrs. Nadine Van Gorder, 19-year-old babyfaced blonde, of 904 Alabama ave. se., given 1 to 3 years; Corpl. Eugene E. Kniskern, 23, of Bolling Air Base, given 1 to 5 years, and Jan C. Gibbs, 18, of 3717 Randall pl. se., given 1 to 5 years.

A carton of cigarettes and $250 were taken from Henry in a wild night ride in the Southeast section and into Maryland.

James A. Hicks, 23, of 1329 6th st. nw., was given 5 to 15 years imprisonment for robberies of three servicemen. According to the charges, Hicks pretended to procure girls for the men, then lured them into alleys and robbed them.

Andrew Upshaw, 36, of 1533 8th nw., who last year was released from jail after a Supreme Court decision declaring that he had been arrested illegally in another case, was given one to three years prison for the larceny December 17 of $303 in household goods here. His codefendant, Wallace Brown, 24, 447 R st. nw., was found innocent.

Two men who shot and wounded a 74-year-old Government building guard in a holdup attempt were given two to six years in prison. They are Thomas Johnson, jr., 19, 1417 6th st. nw., and Joseph Hamilton, 24, 934 New Hampshire ave. nw. The guard is James M. Williams, 1631 S st. nw.

In a sex case, Earl H. Newton, 28, of 943 G st. sw., was given three years probation after he was convicted of violating the District sex laws by suggesting in words to a seven-year-old girl that she commit indecent acts on herself after she came to him to borrow comic books.

2-Alarm Fire In Attic Routs 6 From Home

A two-alarm fire routed six persons from their home yesterday at 2448 Ontario rd. nw.

Second Battalion Chief Clarence Quick said the fire broke out in the attic of the two-story brick house and completely destroyed that part of the dwelling. Other rooms were damaged extensively by water and smoke.

Quick said 8-year-old Douglas Grisby, an adopted child of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Brown, owners of the house, apparently saw the flames first, then dashed terrified into the street without saying anything about it at the time.

Mrs. Brown said she was working in the kitchen about 3:20 p. m. when someone rushed in shouting: "Your house in on fire! Get your children out." She did not know Douglas had already fled. She said she roused a sleeping roomer, Mrs. Elizabeth Scott, and two basement tenants, Mr. and Mrs. Carol Washington, and took her 5-year-old daughter, Bobby Jean, out.

Six engine and two truck companies had the flames out in 10 minutes. Mrs. Brown's husband, called home from his janitor's job at Cardozo High School, said the house was insured.

Brass Is Red When Major Meets Colonel

A few sharp words about Sunday driving had a red-faced sequel in Arlington County Court yesterday when the drivers confronted each other in their regular clothes.

Motorist No. 1 had sworn out a reckless driving warrant against motorist No. 2, who he charged had cut him off so sharply Sunday that he was forced to apply his brakes abruptly. More than that, No. 2 also said some unkind words about No. 1's driving when No. 1 caught up with No. 2 later.

Reddest face belonged to motorist No. 2, Maj. Norvel H. Barnhart, 2806 S. Abdingdon st., Arlington, when he saw that his accuser was Col. Marshall G. Lassek, 3819 S. Buchanan st., Arlington. Both officers wore civilian clothes Sunday.

Major Barnhart was permitted by Associate Judge Harry Thomas to forfeit his $13.25 collateral, which fell short by several dollars of the minimum fine plus court costs, after testimony was heard.

Both officers, incidentally, work at the Pentagon.

Hearing Order Denied 3 Safe Theft Suspects

Judge David A. Pine ruled yesterday that three suspects in a $60,000 safe theft were not entitled to an immediate preliminary hearing to determine the sufficiency of grounds of their arrests.

The defendants are, Stance W. James, 29, of 1332 9th st. nw.; Oliver W. James, 35, 1600 A st. ne., and Louis H. Singleton, 910 Westminster st. nw.

They were charged before United States Commissioner Cyril S Lawrence with housebreaking and grand larceny. The property stolen belonged to Richard T. Beckley, a former police sergeant residing at 1800 New Jersey ave. nw.

Arrested February 20, the three men were arraigned that day before the commissioner but the preliminary hearing to determine whether they should be held for grand jury action has been twice continued. It is now scheduled for March 17.

The defendants asked Judge Pine for a writ of mandamus to compel Lawrence to hold an immediate hearing.

However, Pine ruled that the commissioner acted within his rights in granting the continuances at the Government's request. Police investigating the case asked the time to obtain additional witnesses.

Defense counsel argued that the Government sought the continuance with the hidden purpose of concealing their evidence from the defendants.

Police Boys Club Goes $5000 Over Goal of $250,000

The annual Police Boys Club campaign was oversubscribed by $5000, General Chairman Wash B. Williams announced last night to the club's board of directors at the Ambassador Hotel.

This year's quota of $250,000 was twice what the youth organization had ever sought previously.

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett termed the news of the oversubscription "the happiest news since we rounded up the train robbers Thursday." He praised Williams for the work of the campaigners in going over the top in a year "when all campaigns are failing."

Get D. C. Poll On Home Rule, Citizens Ask

The Washingtonians last night asked Congress to shelve all home-rule legislation until it takes an official poll on the kind of suffrage preferred by District residents.

The citizens group of 50 members meeting at the home of their president, Etta L. Taggart, 1914 Connecticut ave. nw., also recommended that the attorney general consult with the District Bar Association on all future appointments to the District courts.

The motion stated, however, that is was not intended to reflect on the recent appointment of Milton S. Kronheim, jr., as Municipal Court judge.

Other motions passed included one favoring the appointment of three more judges to District Court, another indorsing the District Commissioners' proposal to license hospitals, and a recommendation that the Engineer Commissioner be a native Washingtonian.

R. I. Ave. Citizens

The Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association last night threatened to take a 1½-year-old traffic problem to the Commissioners if it doesn't get some action from Traffic Director George E. Keneipp within 48 hours.

An association spokesman said a traffic light at Eastern and Rhode Island aves. had been promised in November, 1947. Two letters to Keneipp asking for explanation have gone unanswered.

A third letter, ordered at last night's meeting, will be followed by a call on the District Commissioners unless Keneipp responds within 48 hours, the association decided.

Hillsdale Civic

The Hillsdale Civic Association voted last night to ask District heads for adequate storm drainage in its neighborhood.

Meeting at the Birney School, Nichols ave. se., between Talbert and Howard sts., members called attention to conditions at Wade and Sumner rds. and Firth Sterling ave., where it was said water rises to a height of several inches after heavy rainfall.

Commendation was voted to the Interior Department for its recent stand in opening up several tennis courts for use by all races.

Gas Firm Holds Dance

The Washington Gas Light Co. Employes Band will hold its seventeenth annual St. Patrick's dance tonight from 10 to 1 a. m. in the Continental Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. There will be dancing and a floor show to Toby Tyler's music.

F. D. R. His Personal Letters
Volume II—1905-1928

Appearing Tomorrow—March 13

Here—in the final group of letters in this dramatic series—you meet Franklin D. Roosevelt during the vital years from 1916 to 1928. Brought out in bold relief are his reactions to such historic milestones as Wilson's reelection in 1916, America's part in World War I, the League of Nations controversy and the Cox-Harding campaign of 1920, when FDR ran for vice president. Also mirrored in this installment are his feelings on being crippled for life, his struggle for recovery, and his reentry into politics as campaigner for Alfred E. Smith.

Area News in Brief

Society Sent Ash From 1912 Volcano

The National Geographic Society has just received a reply to a letter written 21 years ago about the explosion of a volcano 36 years ago.

With the letter came a sealed bottle of stratified volcanic ash, gathered soon after the eruption of the volcano: Mount Katmai, Alaska, in June 1912.

The correspondence began in 1928 when Mrs. H. W. Jack of Seattle, Wash., wrote that she had collected the ash while on a visit to Kodiak not long after the explosion, and would like to present it to the society.

Receipt of the bottle Friday was the long-delayed answer to the society's original letter of acceptance to Mrs. Jack.

In the letter accompanying the bottle, Mrs. Jack's daughter, Mrs. Lan Ketcham of Seattle, found the ash in the effects of her parents, now both deceased. She said that a long series of illnesses had begun in the family about the time the society's letter had arrived, which was probably why the bottle was not sent then, but she was now making good her mother's promise.

Seeks $6 Rent Hike

The Hygee Development Co., Inc., 2824 Buena Vista ter. se., filed a request yesterday with the District Rent Control Administration for a $6 a month increase on the rents of 155 units located in four-family structures in Southwest Washington.

The buildings are on the 2700 and 2800 blocks of Naylor rd., 2800 block of Buena Vista ter., 2800 block of 28th st., 2900 block of 30th st and the 2800 block of Gainesville rd.

Gets Year in Stabbing

Partly as a warning to other knife wielders, he gave a year's jail sentence to Martin A. Etheridge, 45, of 1324 Emerson st. ne., who had stabbed an erstwhile fellow occupant in a rooming house with a butcher knife.

Woman Fined $300

Mrs. Lula Sumner, 38-year-old housewife, was fined $300 and given a 30-day suspended jail sentence yesterday in Alexandria Police Court for operating a numbers game. Arrested at her home, 925 N. Alfred st., March 2, she pleaded guilty to the charge.

Held in $10,000 Bond

Charles W. Thompkins, 30, of 1218 9th st. nw., was ordered held yesterday under $10,000 bond for slugging Robert A. Lilly, 41, with a hammer.

The high bond was imposed by Judge Armond W. Scott of Municipal Court after he was told that Lilly who resides at 1223 N st. nw., is in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital. The court was informed that a charge that Thompkins also raped Lilly's wife will be presented directly to the District grand jury.

228 Jews From China Reach West Coast

San Francisco, March 11 (AP).—Bound for new homes after years of wandering, 228 Jewish refugees from China arrived here today aboard the American President Line's S. S. Gen. M. C. Meigs.

In all, some 800 passengers were aboard the ship when she docked from the Far East via Honolulu. The refugees will go to Isreal, with the exception of 32 who are going to Austria, one to Germany and three to Turkey.

Pvt. Burkett Cited by Police For Capture New Year's Day

The Washington Post

Sergt. Frank Barnard (left) of First Precinct, commended for his work in the capture of three armed robbers, and Pvt. William Burkett of the Traffic Division, winner of the Policeman-of-the-Month medal, congratulate each other.

A motorcycle private who abandoned his two wheels for his two feet to capture an armed robber New Year's Day was named policeman-of-the-month yesterday.

He is Pvt. William C. Burkett, 30, of the Traffic Division and a veteran of seven years' service with the Police Department.

In ceremonies in the office of Superintendent Robert J. Barrett, he was cited for capturing one of two bandits who gagged two persons and robbed them of $326 in the basement of 683 Kenyon st. nw.

The citation said his act in overtaking one of the men as they fled through an alley was "over and above the routine traffic duty to which he was assigned."

Burkett had given chase with one of the victims in an automobile when he saw the bandits leap from a taxicab and dart into an alley, the citation read. He left the car, ran after them and fired his pistol, whereupon one of the men surrendered.

Bernard and two privates were looking for two missing girls at the Alton Hotel, 1007 E st. nw., on the night of January 30. As they ascended the stairs, one of three armed men finishing a holdup threatened the officer.

He talked with the bandit until other policemen arrived to force his surrender and the capture of his two accomplices.

New Cancer Treatment Is Described

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

A new technique for radium treatment of cancer of the bladder was described here yesterday at the opening session of the two-day Eastern Radiological Conference.

Prof. Lewis

Devised and perfected jointly by Dr. Milton Friedman, New York, radiologist and Dr. Lloyd G. Lewis, urologist here, the new method shows promise of preventing recurrence of bladder tumors, they reported.

Although bladder cancer is far down the cancer incidence list it still accounts for some 5500 deaths a year in the United States, according to statistics compiled for the National Cancer Institute.

Method Described

Dr. Lewis, professor of urology at Georgetown University School of Medicine, outlined the new method of treatment to several hundred radiologists meeting at the Hotel Statler. First used in 1945, it has since been employed on 20 patients, he said.

Reporting on the first 13 cases, he said all but one have been free of cancer for from 6 to 40 months. The one exception developed a tumor in the upper neck of the bladder beyond the effective radiation limits.

The technique consists of introducing a rubber catheter into the bladder, with the radium capsule already fixed in center position. A portion of the outer catheter is expandable and is filled to slightly larger than pingpong ball size with a measured quantity of water.

An inner tube of the catheter functions as a drainage canal for urine elimination during the two four-day treatment periods required. Methylene blue coloring is added to the balloon liquid to signal any leak.

The method, its designers said, is superior to current measures of treating bladder cancers with radium "seeds," which, although they may destroy the original tumor, are too local in effect to prevent the possibility of regrowth elsewhere in the bladder.

Dr. Friedman is consultant in radiation therapy at Walter Reed General Hospital.

Report on Isotopes

M. Keene M. Wallace, chief of the radiation therapy section at Walter Reed, another speaker, reported that supervoltage (one million volt) X-ray radiation has not materially changed the survival rate in treatment of brain tumor in comparison with conventional low-voltage (200,000-volt) therapy.

In the annual banquet session last night, the radiologists were told by Lewis L. Strauss, atomic energy commissioner, of shipment volumes of radioisotopes from Oak Ridge, Tenn. Since 1947, Strauss said, 5334 shipments have been made.

He illustrated expansion rate of the shipments by pointing out that in 1947 they totaled 1641; in 1948 they came to 2980, and for the first two months of this year some 683 shipments were made. Such expansion, he said, is evidence of the great number of research and therapy projects now under way.

"One might begin to look for significant reports in the not distant future," he declared.

Giraud, French Hero Who Fled German Prisons 6 Times, Dies

Paris, March 11 (AP).—Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, 70, French hero of two world wars, died tonight at a military hospital in Dijon. He had been stricken by food poisoning.

[The United Press said his doctors reported he had cancer.]

Earlier today the general, who had been retired since the end of World War II, received the last rites of the Roman Catholic Church.

During the two wars Giraud escaped six times from German prisons. He received the Medaille Militaire (military medal) yesterday. This is France's highest decoration and is generally given only to enlisted men. It is an unusual distinction for an officer to receive it.

Giraud commanded the French forces in North Africa in the 1942-43 Allied invasion and campaign. He resigned in April, 1944, after a quarrel with Gen. Charles de Gaulle, commander of Free French forces in exile.

In the battle of France in 1940, Giraud commanded groups of armies in northern France. He was cited for holding back the Germans until his forces were crushed and he was captured May 21, 1940.

Taken as a prisoner to Germany, he was placed in Koenigstein Fortress, in Saxony, from which he escaped in April, 1942.

Reports were that Giraud spent eight months painstakingly weaving together a 65-foot rope from small strands of thread sent to him in letters by his wife. The night he slipped down the wall at Koenigstein, he encountered a German sentry. In perfect German, Giraud remarked, "pretty cold tonight, isn't my boy?" and strolled on his way whistling.

Giraud spent some 30 years of his military career with professional troops in North Africa.

Soldiers' Home Construction Work Asked

A proposed $16,990,000 construction program should be started at the Soldiers' Home "without delay in order to eradicate the unhealthy and unsafe accommodations" and speed up the waiting list, the Army deputy inspector warned yesterday.

In an annual report, Brig. Gen. F. B. Prickett declared that "available dormitories have been filled beyond desired capacity."

General Prickett said the home is being run efficiently and stated that its permanent fund balance of $29,345,232.42 is sufficient to finance the construction program.

To eliminate overcrowding and cut the three to six month waiting period for admission, the construction program would provide for: New 850-capacity dormitory building; new 400-capacity hospital; new quarters for Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul; remodeling of the present isolation ward; duplex family quarters for resident officers, and a 56-capacity farm dormitory.

Women Soon May Live At Soldiers' Home

Women warriors may soon become residents of the Soldiers' Home.

Aged or disabled Wacs may apply for admittance to the institution under existing rules and regulations, it has been ruled.

The ruling was by the Office of the Judge Advocate General. It was revealed yesterday in a report by Brig. Gen. F. B. Prickett, deputy inspector general.

Symphony Drive Total $134,582, 71 Pct. of Goal

Contributions to date to the National Symphony Sustaining Fund drive total $134,582, 71 per cent of the 190,000 goal, it was announced yesterday.

Emerson Meyers, drive chairman, said at a report meeting in the Mayflower that collections to date exceed by $23,984 contributions made for the same period in last year's campaign.

"A significant part" of the contributions this year has come in small amounts mailed by citizens to campaign headquarters, 1727 K st. nw., Mrs. Hans Klagsbrunn, vice chairman of the drive, reported.

The public is invited to a fund drive benefit at 8:30 p. m. Tuesday by the Music Section of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase at its clubhouse, 7431 Connecticut ave. Norah Drewitt, pianist, and Geza de Kresz, violinist, will be presented in a recital.

Campaigners Get $366,990 For Red Cross

Red Cross campaigners have collected 39.72 per cent or $366,990 of the 1949 Red Cross goal of $924,000 in the Washington area, yesterday's report luncheon disclosed.

Six groups in the Government Unit have filled 100 per cent or more of their quotas, including the Navy and Agriculture Departments, the Register's Office in the Treasury Department, the District Budget Office, and the United States Court of Customs and Patent Appeals.

Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, USN, retired, head of the Red Cross National Blood Program, told the campaigners that 22 regional blood centers now operating throughout the Nation will be increased to 33 by July 1.

Army Reveals Soldier's Escape From Ft. Meade

They gave his home address as 1402 Fairmont ave., Baltimore. He was last seen working on a fill-in project at the southern end of the post.

Authorities said he began a five-year sentence after being tried by a general court-martial at Camp Bowie, Texas, in 1945. After four months he escaped. He later served a term in the Maryland House of Correction on a burglary charge, and was then turned over to the Army.

Since March 1 he had been held here to await transfer to a disciplinary barracks. Officials here said they did not know for what Harris had been tried and sentenced, since all his records have not yet arrived from Texas.

Miss Helen Bowdoin Engaged To Josiah A. Spaulding

THE Under Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Edward H. Foley announce the engagement of Mrs. Foley's daughter, Miss Helen Hamilton Bowdoin, to Josiah Augustus Spaulding, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Spaulding of Enchanta, Paxton, Mass.

Miss Bowdoin is the daughter of George Temple Bowdoin of New York. She attended the Chapin School and was graduated from Foxcroft in Middleburg, Va., in 1946. She is a graduate of Holton-Arms Junior College in the 1948 class.

The bride-elect made her debut in Washington and New York. The granddaughter of Mrs. Robert Fulwood Ligon of Montgomery, Ala., and the late General Ligon, Miss Bowdoin is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Temple Bowdoin of New York.

She is a direct descendant of Alexander Means, president of Emory College of Oxford, Ga.; Alexander Hamilton, Gen. Philip Schuyler and James Bowdoin, second Governor of Massachusetts. She is also the great-great niece of Washington Irving.

She is a member of the Colony Club of New York and a provisional member of the Junior League of Washington. Her sisters are Mrs. Edward S. Travers of New York and Miss Julia Irving Bowdoin.

Mr. Spaulding is a graduate of Hotchkiss School and Yale University, class of 1947. He is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon and Skull and Bones. He is a member of the Yale Club of New York and is now in his senior year at Columbia Law School. Mr. Spaulding was a pilot in the Marine Air Corps for three years and was discharged as a first lieutenant in 1945.

The wedding will take place June 29.

Tennessee Group Joins Prefestival Party Rush

By Nicha Soure

ALTHOUGH the annual Cherry Blossom Festival is three weeks away, State societies have already begun their prefestival celebrations, with Tennessee being the latest to jump on the bandwagon.

Not content with planning a Cherry Blossom Ball for Saturday, March 19, the Tennesseans have gone one better before the dancing begins. Members and their guests will be served in the Palm Room of the Hotel 2400 before 7:30 and 9 p. m. The Volunteer State's princess and her ladies-in-waiting will be presented to the society members at 9 p. m.

The Tennessee princess, Miss Frances Elizabeth Bodley, is the daughter of Mrs. James Wiley Bodley and the late Dr. Bodley of Memphis. The ladies-in-waiting, who were chosen from Tennessee girls at leading junior colleges in Washington, are Miss Mary Catherine Woolwine, Nashville; Miss Hardwick Newton, Lookout Mountain; Miss Emeline Hedges, Chattanooga; Miss Ruth Ellen Speck, Cleveland; Miss Dorothy Coolidge, Nashville; Miss Irene Connally, Chattanooga; Miss Shirley Copenhaver, Bristol; Miss Patricia Trotter, Chattanooga; Miss Mary Vincent Taylor, Memphis; Miss Dorris Chapin, Chattanooga; Miss Janis Roberts, Tracy City; Miss Gloria Bean, Chattanooga, and Miss Jane McSpadden, Memphis.

Dancing will be in the main ballroom at 10 p. m. with music furnished by Dave McWilliams orchestra. For tickets to the buffet and ball, call Mrs. Griffith Foskett at Michigan 5009.

Escorting Miss Bodley to the ball will be Malcolm Crisler McCormack, son of Mrs. Edward J. McCormack and the late Colonel McCormack, former president of the society. The president of the society, Mrs. McCormack, has asked Mrs. Adrian Fisher to be general chairman of the buffet and ball. Mrs. McCormack will be at her country home in Forest Hill, Tenn., for the month of March.

Assisting Mrs. Fisher with the arrangements will be Hurd Hudson, Mrs. Eurns Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Neece, Mr. and Mrs. Griffith Foskett, John Ewing Harris, Miss Bessie Thrasher, Miss Elizabeth Looney, Mrs. Mary James Cottrell, Lyle Brookover, Robert E. McCormick, Kit Haynes, Carl Lemser, and Comdr. and Mrs. Charles Manning.

Miss Looney entertained Miss Bodley and her ladies-in-waiting with a buffet supper at her home last Saturday. Assisting Miss Looney were Mr. and Mrs. John Ewing Harris, Mrs. George William Beatty and Lyle Brookover.

ON TONIGHT'S dance list is the Missouri Society celebration in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. The Missouri representative to the annual spring blossom festival, Miss Leslie Ontrich, will be presented to the society at the dance.

A PLEA was sent to all Wisconsins, via the United States mails, to help "rejuvenate" the State Society in the Capital City.

The rebirth will take place on Wednesday, March 16, in the Sheraton Hotel, 15th and L sts. nw., when a gala party is planned between the hours of 8 and 11 p. m.

Two added inducements were given for attending; one, famous Wisconsin beer and cheese will be "on the cuff" and, the card says, "don't be surprised if Milwaukee's famous Carson (screen and radio star) joins the party."

Lavvie Dilweg is president of the Wisconsin State Society.

THE Kentucky Society of Washington will have its annual St. Patrick's Day ball in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel on March 18 from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

Miss Betsy Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Porter, who has been selected as Kentucky's Cherry Blossom princess, will be hostess to the other State Society princesses invited to attend.

AN ELECTION of officers at the March meeting will wind up a successful season for the Vermont Association. The meeting will be held in the Washington Club, 17th and K sts., at 8 p. m. on Friday, March 18.

The nomination committee, composed of Col. Paul E. Holbrook, Mrs. Frederick I. Swift and Mrs. Margery Rose, will submit a slate of officers for 1949-1950.

Mrs. Frank E. Hickey will show some Vermont movies, which will be followed with refreshments and dancing.

THE Massachusetts Society's St. Patrick's dance will be held Thursday in the west ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m. to the music of Dave McWilliams Orchestra.

To those from Massachusetts, this occasion will also be a celebration of the anniversary of Evacuation Day, the day in the Revolutionary War when the British were driven out of Boston.

Miss Claire M. Lynch of Lawrence, Mass., who has been selected to represent the State of Massachusetts in the annual Cherry Blossom Festival, will be present and introduced to the society.

Michael C. Sullivan is general chairman for the dance assisted by Mrs. Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Wallin and John McGill. Members of the society, their friends and all friends of St. Patrick are invited to attend. For further information contact Mr. Sullivan at Hobart 1900.

APPROXIMATELY 600 persons interested in the State of Maine turned out for a get-together Thursday night in the House caucus room.

Everett Graton of the Maine Development Commission was there with technicolor movies of Maine, after which real Maine MacIntosh apples and Maine recipes were distributed to the guests.

The Maine congressional delegation was present, and Congressmen from other States, as well as Miss Katherine Briggs, the Maine Potato Queen, and Miss Patricia Sterling, Maine's Cherry Blossom princess.

Maine will hold its annual meeting to elect officers on April 4.

On the Capital Club Front

Alexandria Junior Woman's Club second annual banquet will be held in the Penn Daw Hotel in Alexandria today. Miss Stella Scurlock, director of youth conservation for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, will speak of her work in the youth conservation program.

The newly elected officers who will be installed at the banquet are Miss Edna Harvey Barr, president; Mrs. Thomas Moncure, first vice president; Mrs. Edward E. Tate, second vice president; Mrs. George E. Schelhorn, jr., recording secretary; Miss Wilna C. Blackwell, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Lawrence E. Callahn, treasurer.

Among the guests who have been invited to the banquet are Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck.

On the committee to assist the general chairman of the arrangements are Mrs. Edward E. Tate, Miss Wilna Blackwell, Mrs. John Kirk, jr., Mrs. Dana King Law, Miss Constance Small and Mrs. George E. Schelhorn.

Senator Smith to Address AAUW Luncheon

Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine will be the guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Washington branch of the American Association of University Women in the Sheraton Hotel at 1 p. m. today.

Senator Smith's topic is "Important Measures Before the Eighty-first Congress."

In recognition of sincere and commendable work, all students who participated in Scholastic Art Awards will receive handsome certificates of merit as soon as they can be properly inscribed and distributed.

Entries exceeded all expectations . . . Not only did they fill the lobby of the Commerce Building, but inroads had to be made upon corridors and extra screens and tables were needed for display. Truly, students and teachers deserve a hearty round of applause for their performance in the Scholastic Art Awards of 1949!

Our sincere thanks to the distinguished Board of Judges:

Capital Area Girl Scouts Mark 11th Anniversary Today

International friendship, one of the Girl Scouting ideals, will be the keynote of the celebration of the thirteenth anniversary of Girls Scouts of America this afternoon at the Pan American Union.

In his welcoming address Dr. Alberto Lleras, director general of the Pan American Union, will commend the scouts on their progress since Juliette Gordon Low formed a troup of a dozen girls in Savannah, Ga. Now 1,072,495 girls scouts are organized into 61,727 troops throughout this country, Hawaii, Guam, Alaska, Puerto Rico, Panama, the Philippine Islands and the Virgin Islands.

Mrs. Charles Fenwick, honorary president of the Girls Scouts of Brazil, will give a report on the Twelfth World Conference of Girls Scouts in Cooperstown, N. Y., last August, and will show a movie, "World Friendship," that was made at the conference.

Washington scouts will contribute to the World Friendship Fund for a permanent memorial to the founder of the scouts.

Ambassadors from several foreign countries have been invited to attend as well as Mrs. E. Swift Newton, first American women to be chairman of the World Committee of Girl Scouts and Girls Guides.

Mrs. Marcy Sperry, vice president of the D. C. Scout Board and chairman of the celebration, will preside, assisted by Mrs. Norman Gerstenfeld, Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Mrs. William W. Mackall, Mrs. Blaise de Sibour, Mrs. John W. Stenhouse, Mrs. Hobart Corning, Mrs. Edward Sturdevant and Miss Elisabeth Houghton.

First Lady's Recipe for Favorite Dessert Tested by Experts at Congressional Club

No matter how you mix it, Mrs. Truman's "Ozark Pudding" recipe makes a grand dessert.

That's the last word on this controversial matter, straight from food specialists at the Department of Agriculture via the Congressional Club Cookbook Tea and Food Fair held yesterday.

Because so many people have questioned the amount of flour in the recipe in the new Congressional Club Cookbook or reported that their Ozark puddings fell flat, the Food Fair Committee planned to demonstrate the proper way of making them at yesterday's fair at the club. Experts at The Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics (of the Department of Agriculture) cooperated by testing the recipe, with an eye to presenting "right" and "wrong" displays. But after a long spell of baking, they decided that whether you whip up the pudding with the latest electric mixer, a fork, or an old beat-up wire whisk, it's bound to be good.

Mrs. Truman didn't attend yesterday's tea, having gone to New York to spend the week-end. However, she autographed 100 copies of the new cookbook for sale at the fair.

Tempting Display

A pan of Ozark Pudding—as made by Miss Edith Young, resident manager for the club—was "exhibit A" at the Fair, though it wasn't served, sold, or demonstrated. On sale at the tables surrounding it were all sorts of other good things that proved Congressmen's wives weren't just theorizing when they published that cookbook. The dishes looked so tempting, in fact, that they were almost all sold out within half an hour.

Orange doughnuts, made by Mrs. Karl Mundt of South Dakota, sand tarts, baked by Mrs. Charles Dewey, wife of the former Illinois Representative; and Russian tea cakes, made by Mrs. Karl T. Curtis of Nebraska were among the mouth-watering offerings on the baked goods table. Nut brown Hebrew cookies, made by Mrs. William Whittington, former club president, were the first plate of cakes to sell.

Mrs. John McMillan of South Carolina baked a handsome lemon pie piled high with meringue. Mexican macaroons were brought by Mrs. Dean Taylor of New York. Mrs. Clifford Davis of Tennessee made White House dressing, and Mrs. Walter Horan of Washington turned out a beautiful avocado salad. Mrs. Clinton Anderson of New Mexico made orange bread and Mrs. Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa baked a sugar-covered coffee cake. All the foods were made by the recipes that the congressional wives contributed to the cookbook.

"A lot of members made their dishes over several times before they decided they had them good eough for the fair," laughed Mrs. Curtis, who cheerfully admitted that she had to make several batches of her own "Never Fail" bread.

"The first was too salty, then I had some poor yeast," she said, "but the recipe really is 'never fail' if you have good ingredients and measure them right." Mrs. Curtis bakes beautiful loaves weekly for her own family and for friends.

'The Test of the Pudding . . .'

Interesting sidelight on the Ozark Pudding excitement — and its brought many letters to the White House, newspapers, radio stations, and the Congressional Club—is that almost exactly the same recipe under another name appeared on another page in the same cookbook all the tme without causing a single ruffled feather.

Submitted by Mrs. Wayne Morse of Oregon, who called it "Mildred's Pudding," it duplicates "Ozark Pudding" except that Oregon filberts are prescribed as an ingredient. Mrs. Morse added this appropriate warning, "Sometimes falls but this does not hurt the pudding." She also suggested substituting your own name for "Mildred" if you passed the recipe along to a friend.

Miss Beatrice Mountjoy, Esther Batchelder and Pelagia Schultz, food specialists at the Department of Agriculture, gave a demonstration of many different ways of preparing plentiful potatoes at the Food Fair. Movies of the scientific "step-saving" kitchen as designed by Beltsville experts were also shown.

Where to Take Vocational Test

Can you tell me where in Washington I can take a vocational aptitude test (preferably free of charge)? F. G. S.

The United States Employment Service gives vocational aptitude tests which cover about 20 fields. Not included in the tests given are those for musical, art, legal, bench craft and some other aptitudes. To find out whether the tests they give cover a field in which you are interested, I suggest you have a discussion with a counselor at the Employment Service. These tests are given without charge.

The Washington Counseling Center of George Washington University gives aptitude tests in all fields. For this service, they charge $20 for tests given to non-veterans or persons outside of the University. For veterans or university students, the fee is $10. This charge includes as many tests and interviews as are needed now or in the future.

Due to crowded quarters it was necessary to keep baby preparations on my dresser for a time I had them on a heavy sheet of plastic but the baby oil apparently seeped through and has made a dark stain. The dresser is a seven ply veneer of acacia wood. Can you tell of any way of removing or even lightening this oily stain? H. G. S.

Since the oil has left a dark stain, it has probably soaked through the finish into the wood. To completely remove it it will be necessary to refinish the dresser, or just the top if you work carefully. Start by removing the finish by using a good commercial varnish or remover and then sand the surface until the oil stain is removed. Or, wipe the surface with a cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride. If this makes no improvement, place a poultice of carbon tetrachloride mixed with cornmeal over the stained area and leave for an hour or so. This should draw the oil out of the wood. If it doesn't do it completely with the first application, repeat. When the oil has been completely drawn from the wood, refinish to match the rest of the piece

Will you give me a list of what a bride should have? I am going to live on a boat so there won't be much space for nonessentials. G. E. L.

You haven't given me enough information for me to be of help to you. Are you interested in suggestions for small kitchen, large equipment, linens or furniture. If you care to be more specific, I'll be glad to try to help you.

To R. E. F.: Sorry we do not answer questions of this sort in our column.

Could you give me the phone number of the store where pyrethrum powder can be purchased? Does one sprinkle this powder over clothes in storage just once, or should this be done every few months? Should the box that I place it in be sealed air tight?

Pyrethrum powder has not returned to the market in quantites sufficient for all stores to have it since the war. Instead of this powder you could use napthalene flakes as a preventative. These flakes are inclined to be oily and so it is suggested that you do not sprinkle them directly on the fabric, but wrap the fabric being stored securely in cellophane or any other moisture resistant paper and sprinkle the flakes over the paper. Use one cupful of flakes to an average sized suit box. When the box is closed, spray the outside with 5 per cent DDT. These flakes and DDT will keep the stored fabric safe against silverfish a year if the box is not opened. Wrapping the box in heavy paper and tying it securely is all that is necessary.

The mirror to my bedroom suit (which is not a cheap mirror) has become streaked. It is only noticeable looking across it, not directly into it. Someone said it was because it hangs to an outside wall. Is there any way to remove this, washing doesn't help. It is well made and has a wooden back. M. K.

The only way to correct this trouble is to have the mirror resilvered. For the firm to do the work look under "Mirrors" in the yellow pages of the telephone book.

Could you tell me if it is possible to have leather bags (pocketbooks) relined? I have two good leather bags in which the linings are torn so badly that it is impossible to use them, but hate to discard them because the leather is good. P. B. C.

There is a leather repair shop on 14th st. which does this work. They can be reached by calling Executive 0961.

Inquiries and contributions to the "Ask Anne" column must be in written form. We regret that time does not permit handling them by telephone. Address letters or cards to Anne, Room 403, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Selecting Vegetables

Take care that the vegetable has not been washed to give it a fresh appearance. Avoid dampness around it. Beets should be caked a bit with dirt, showing they have not been handled a great deal. We also expect spinach to be a bit sandy. Carrots should be firm and small. Onions should be hard and devoid of brown spots. Squash and cabbage should be hard, firm and white. Cauliflower should be perfectly white, without any rubbed-off brown spots.

PETUNIA!

Lovely silver bracelets
Are things I can't resist . . .
The trouble is, they tarnish,
And they tarnish on my wrist.

Let No Theft, However Petty, Go Unpunished

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Natural behavior is not always exemplary behavior for when the child acts as he wants to act, he brings pleasure to himself, though what he does may not be approved by society.

Children steal because they have a blunted sense of property values and a keen sense of acquisitiveness. They want something badly and they take it, the value of the object to the other person being of small consequence to them.

At 6 to 7 years of age there is much pilfering because children have this desire to possess which cannot always be satisfied by what they can buy or the parents can buy for them.

It is the parental reaction to this behavior which advertises to the child that this is conduct the parents will not countenance. Parents dare not take this pilfering lightly, no matter how inconsequential the value of the object that is taken. They have to be serious about it in order to impress the child with society's attitude toward stealing.

Recently a teen-ager had a new coat taken at a teen-age dance attended by children from the various high schools of the city. His parents were sure that as soon as the parents recognized that the boy had a coat which did not belong to him, it would be returned.

A month has passed and nothing has been heard from the coat, the bereft boy being compelled to wear the worn coat left in its place.

This sort of behavior on the part of parents is incomprehensible and inexcusable. Do they want their boy to be a thief? However innocent his behavior in exchanging the coat, he has compounded the misbehavior by refusing to rectify his mistake. The parents are his models of ethical conduct and the child imitates them.

If these parents chortle at having received a coat better than the boy possessed, they have established his attitude toward stealing. It's all right if he can get away with it!

Every child who takes something that does not belong to him should be made to take it back and apologize. No one should do this for him. If he suffers embarrassment and humiliation these are wholesome emotions which will prevent him from becoming involved in so unpleasant a ceremony again.

All children will make these mistakes sometime. It remains for the parents to dramatize them by their disapproval and by the reparation they must make, so that they will not be repeated.

Your Exercises Set to Music Are Effective and More Fun

By Ida Jean Kain

Exercising to music can be as scientific as stretching and bending to count . . . and a lot more fun. Not only does music give a lift, but it takes the stiffness and the work out of calisthenics.

All dancers have the most elegantly slim waistlines because they sway and twist and turn and bend. That's scientific waist whittling, as proved by kinesiology. Any movement that makes for side flexibility streamlines the midsection, and any exercise set to music can be streamlining provided the movement is directed through the part that needs slimming.

Turn on the music and try it . . .

Arch arms overhead, ballerina style, let the upstretch be through the middle muscles, and center the turns at the waistline. Sway at the waist — sideward, around to the other side, up, around . . . second verse same as the first. Do it to any tune you like—suit your mood. Always make the movements a part of the music.

Now let's apply our musical kinesiology to hip slimming. To reach that big muscle padding the back of the hip, the hip must be flexed to past a 45 degree angle. Just dancing around, bending and swaying, won't budge the hips. So swing . . .

Grab onto a chair back and swing the right leg up in front, then out and up in back. To really go to town on hip slimming, make the action vigorous. Back and forth through half the record, then change over and swing with the other leg. Just swinging to the beat of the music is exhilarating.

For shapely thighs, change the swing technique. Make it a side swing—chorus-girl fashion if you like. Here's a step that is fun set to music . . .

Another excellent thigh toner-upper is to hop up and down on one foot as you swing the other leg directly out to the side and return. It's fun . . . it's freeing . . . it's slimming.

Dance through a couple of records—you'll feel all aglow.

Color of the Shell Is No Indication Of Egg Quality

The color of the shell is no clew to quality in an egg, poultry marketing specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture again remind thrifty housewives.

In some markets, like New York, white eggs may cost as much as 5 to 10 cents more a dozen than brown eggs. In Boston and other parts of New England the reverse often is true. Those local preferences are a carryover from the days when farms nearest New York were raising Leghorn chickens which lay white eggs, while those in New England raised Rhode Island Reds or other breeds which lay brown eggs. People believed that eggs from nearby were likely to be of better quality than those from more distant points, and thus established those local preferences.

The Long and Short

By Betty Clarke

DO YOU favor your favorite movie star in her new short hairdo? Or did you like her better before in her glamour coiffure—usually a long casual bob?

So much controversy has raged on this subject that we wondered how many people really remember how these stars looked before their locks were cut.

Compare their pictures, before and after, and what do you see? Most of the girls look entirely different with shorter hair. Some look more youthful and less sophisticated, others seem older and more sophisticated. Most of them seemed to have lost that glamorous movie-star look as we remember it.

They resemble Mary, the girl next door. Or Helen, the boss' secretary. Or Jeanie, the sweet girl graduate. One or two even look like successful career women in other fields.

Is it just a matter of time before the "short look" instead of the "long look" becomes the "glamour look?" Or will the glamour look be replaced by some other look in movieland?

At one studio (RKO) every star except Maureen O'Hara agreed to a new coiffure. The lone holdout, Maureen still wears her hair in a long wavy bob. Those who succumbed to the shears include: Virginia Valli, Gail Russell, Ingrid Bergman, Teresa Wright, Jane Greer, Lucille Ball, Barbara Bel Geddes, Cathy O'Donnell, Rosalind Russell and Barbara Hale.

In some studios indications are that stars already are letting their locks grow back to their former lustrous length. Rita Hayworth is one example.

Are Women Tightwads?

The average woman is closer with a dollar of her own than 99⅞ is to 100, claims Herb Graffis in the March Esquire. The money women spend belongs to men, not to themselves.

In his article, "Mammon and the Lady," Mr. Graffis gives his reasons why women simply don't go broke. It's only when a woman is spending someone else's money that she develops a generous streak.

One of the great American love stories, according to this Esquire article, is that of Hetty Green and her heart's own mate—the green, folding stuff. Miss Green, who lived like a pauper all her life, died one of the wealthiest women of all time. "Her intense femininity in giving birth to about 100 million dollars is something the world will long remember," declares Graffis.

Why Argue?

To disagree on things in life
. . . Is good to some extent . . .
But why should people argue for . . . The sake of argument?
. . . A difference of opinion is . . . A common bit to hold . . .
But there is no excuse at all
. . . To bicker or to scold . . .
We ought to talk and arbitrate
. . . And try to compromise . . .
Until our problems are reduced
. . . To their intrinsic size . . .
We should resort to reason and
. . . The understanding way . . .
Of being more receptive to . . .
What other people say . . . Because unless our motives and . . . Our words are understood
. . . There is no disagreement that . . . Can do the slightest good.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

'Good Neighbor Policy' Is Busting Out All Over the Place

This is one of those days when everybody has a good word to speak for his neighbor. Spring must be in the air.

Mrs. Archie C. Haley of 1111 North Kentucky st., Arlington, Va., starts us off by saying that her carrier boy, Lurty Houff, must be added to the list of carriers who give excellent service.

Mrs. E. B. Gladding of 6000 Benalder dr., Fairway Hills, Md., comes to the defense of the carrier who serves her area, who was criticized by another District Liner.

Mrs. Gladding says they always get fine service, and she can't understand why the other subscriber was displeased. (That's what makes the world go 'round—difference of opinion; if everybody felt the same way about everything, there wouldn't be any letters-to-the-editor department.)

Mrs. Anne F. Desind of 7418 Georgia ave. nw. has some kind words to say about policemen—particularly "Officer Murphy and Officer McPhaul."

It seems that Mrs. Desind's 4-year-old son wandered off the other night, and the whole family scoured the neighborhood for him—in vain.

Finally, in desperation, they called the police. The man at the precinct said: "We'll send a car over in a couple of minutes to get right to work on it."

In 10 minutes a cruiser pulled up, and out stepped two policemen—and the missing boy. They'd spotted him on the way over, and took the lad home in style.

Credit for that bit of work goes to Pvts. Joseph Patrick Murphy of 813 Philadelphia ave., Silver Spring, Md., and Jim (Mr. Printer: If you make it "James" he won't like you) A. McPhaul of 77 Hawaii ave. ne.

Mrs. Florence Lipsky of 1669 Columbia rd. nw. also tosses her bouquets at policemen instead of carriers. Her gang had a cabin reserved for a party at Sligo Creek the other night, but through a mixup in permits, somebody else also had the same cabin. She writes:

"But Montgomery County Policemen Hurd and Crown steered us over to Meadowbrooke, where we had an even nicer cabin, and the party was a big success. We invited them to join us in refreshments, but they declined, because they were too busy.

"Incidentally, they were the best looking cops I ever did see; even the men in the party agreed to that."

If Pvt. Palmer Hurd of Sandy Spring, Md., and Pvt. Jesse Crown of Rockville, Md., bust any (brass) buttons, you'll know why.

Finally, there's Wilbur Marks of 707 D st. ne., who works for Capital Transit, and who won't know until he reads this that he's being singled out as an example of the transit company's better type of driver. On a recent trip on the Mount Pleasant line, Operator Marks:

Helped a blind passenger board the car, and took him to a seat;

Helped a woman burdened with packages and a child board the car;

Stopped his car and waited while an old woman mustered up enough courage to hustle to the far curb from her precarious position in the center of the street;

Helped the blind man get off the car, and safely to the curb.

What a welcome relief it is to write an item like this one, and realize that at least a few people in this turbulent world aren't feuding with each other.

GIVE-AWAYS

"We're leaving town, must find homes for 8-month-old white, male cat and 2-year-old Belgian Shepherd dog." (Emerson 5304.)

"Three-month-old affectionate fox terrier pup." (Union 1910.)

GOT YOUR TAGS YET?

If you've moved in the past 12 months, don't expect the Department of Vehicles and Traffic to forward an auto license application to your new address.

All applications have now been mailed out, and if you haven't received one, you'd better start finding out why.

PERSONAL NOTES:

John Georgiades, 1310 14th st. nw.: All complaints regarding my French grammar, or lack of it, should be directed to our theater critic, Dick Coe, who serves as my expert in these matters.

BLUE MONDAY

I sure wish that somebody would mail me a letter some Sunday. On Monday mornings my "In" box looks like Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

VAGRANT THOUGHT

I wonder what's to become of Sally.

OVERHEARD

"Pay no attention to him—he's under the alfluence of incohol."

ALSO THE BUMS

Up in Brooklyn you'd think
All they grew was that tree.
Don't be silly, my friend,
'Cause they also grew me.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK—Bernard M. Baruch reminisced one day of the medical achievements of his father, who was a surgeon with the Confederate Army, and of the accomplishments of his brothers. "Will you write a book about your family's history?" Baruch was asked. He shook his head and replied: "I have no time to look at the past. The future is much more interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. William S. Paley were entertaining some friends at their Long Island home. Because of the unusual warm weather they had cocktails on the terrace, where they lingered long. Mrs. Paley, ever the perfect hostess, walked from guest to guest to make sure each was comfortable, and then, at dusk, asked: "Would anyone like a fur coat?"

Leland Hayward, co-producer of the new musical, "South Pacific"—the adaptation of James Michener's "Tales of the South Pacific"—said Michener hadn't been attending rehearsals . . . "You'd think he'd come to every rehearsal, to see about his story," said Arthur Schwartz, producer of "Inside USA." "John Gunther was around at all our rehearsals, to see about his title."

Representative Sol Bloom of New York, who died this week, was the one responsible for George M. Cohan's Congressional Medal. After the medal was awarded, Bloom, for almost a year, couldn't get Cohan to accept it . . . "I'm not that good," Cohan insisted . . . "President Roosevelt thinks you are," Bloom finally persuaded him. "And besides, the President says he has to have some excuse to get you to have lunch with him."

Meyer Weisgal, the producer, returned from Israel this week, after attending the inaugural ceremonies of President Chain Weizmann. During the ceremonies Weisgal stood next to an officer who was wearing a full-dress uniform, complete with sword. "Where'd you get the sword?" asked the producer . . . "I borrowed it," explained the resplendant officer, "from the Habimah Players."

MARY WORTH

GOSH! I WISH I'D STUDIED ENGLISH INSTEAD OF ENGINEERING!.. SO I COULD TOSS OFF THE PRETTY SPEECH THE SCRIPT CALLS FOR AT THIS POINT!
I..I BELIEVE YOU AND MY SISTER HAVE MET, MR. THOMAS?
YES..WHY ISN'T SHE GOING WITH US?
I HAVE A HEADACHE..AND SOME SKETCHES TO MAKE FOR A HOUSE I'M DOING OVER..AND I'M NOT HUNGRY..REALLY! I'LL JUST RINSE OUT A TEA BAG AND NIBBLE A RYE BISCUIT..BETTER FOR MY FIGURE THAN THE DELICIOUS CARGO OF CALORIES I'M SURE YOU'LL FORCE ON NANCY!
...FURTHERMORE, YOU HANDSOME DREAM THEME, SHE SAW YOU FIRST AND SHE'S MY SISTER!... DARN IT!

STEVE CANYON

THERE YOU ARE AT LAST, KIMBERLY— HOW DO WE STAND WITH THE CRAG HAG?
IS THERE DANGER OF OUR BEING THROWN OUT BEFORE WE'VE MINED THE ORE FOR OUR ATOMIC STOCKPILE?
SHE SAID SHE WANTS TO HEAR ABOUT RECORDS, WHAT IS COMMERCIAL, STOCK ARRANGEMENTS AND SUCH THINGS... WHEN I GO THERE AGAIN, MISS CALHOON!
ALL OUR RECORDS ARE AVAILABLE FOR AUDIT! OUR COMMERCIAL SALES FOR THE YEAR ARE LISTED... STOCK HOLDINGS ARE SHOWN ON THE ANNUAL REPORT AND...
OH, SHE AND I WERE TALKING ABOUT POPULAR MUSIC — PHONOGRAPH RECORDS, COMMERCIAL BANDS AND STOCK ORCHESTRA ARRANGEMENTS!

JOE PALOOKA

AND TO THINK WE DIDN'T KNOW WHO THE FAMOUS MR. HUMPHREY PENNYWORTH AND MR. LEEMY WERE. IT'S LUCKY MR. PATRIDGE, THE BARBER, TOLD US. YOU PEDAL NOW, ELLIE.
ASK SOMEBODY WHERE THE FIGHT IS. THERE'S A POLICEMAN.
WHERE IS THE BIG FISTICUFF MATCH?
? WHAT'S THAT, MA'M? SAY THAT'S HUMPHREY'S MACHINE!
YES! HUMPHREY! MR. PENNYWORTH! WHERE WILL WE FIND HIM?
WELL, HE LICKED BROOKS T'NITE, MA'M... BUT HE MUST OF LEFT THE GARDEN BY NOW... IT'S DOWN THAT WAY... STRAIGHT AHEAD.

MICKEY FINN

YOU HAVEN'T GOT A CHANCE, PLOTZ! WHAT DO YOU SAY?
GO AHEAD!
IT'S THE ONLY WAY TO BEAT HIM, HOOZISS!
OKAY- BUT GET THE FLOOR-QUICK! THE NOMINATIONS WILL BE CLOSED IN A SECOND!
MR. CHAIRMAN! I RISE TO NOMINATE FOR RE-ELECTION —COMMANDER PHILIP FINN!
YEAH!
YIPEE!

PENNY

LOIS SAID YOU WERE OUT WITH HER LAST NIGHT!
SURE! WHAT'S WRONG WITH THAT?
WELL, I THINK A BOY FRIEND SHOULD BE LOYAL TO ME....
....AND NOT DATE ANY OTHER GIRLS.

DOTTY

HEY, DOTTY! MY POCKETS ARE FULL OF HOLES--AND I'M LOSING ALL OF MY CHANGE!
WELL, LET ME HAVE YOUR PANTS AND I'LL MEND THEM!
BUT, THERE ISN'T TIME! I'LL BE LATE FOR WORK!
MEN ARE SO HELPLESS!
IF YOU HAD BEEN A LITTLE GIRL YOU'D KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH YOUR LOOSE CHANGE!
WHAT DO LITTLE GIRLS DO WITH IT?
THEY TIE IT UP IN A HANKY!

THE SAINT

REX MORGAN, M. D.

PERHAPS YOU'D BETTER GET INTO BED, SO I CAN EXAMINE YOU, MR. RENSALEER!
A HUNDRED DOCTORS HAVE EXAMINED ME! I JUST WANT YOU TO PRESCRIBE MEDICINE FOR ME!
I'M AFRAID I COULDN'T DO THAT WITHOUT EXAMINING YOU FIRST!
THEN GET OUT OF HERE! YOU'RE NO BETTER THAN THE REST!
BUT HE IS, DADDY DARLING! I CAN SEE THAT FROM HERE!

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

SPRAY AND I WILL DELIVER THE REST OF THE SUPPLIES TO HER HOSPITAL... CALL US WHEN YOU'VE FIGURED AN ANGLE TO COMB THAT SHE-WOLF OUT OF TERRY'S HAIR.
LATER
HMMM, LEMME SEE... A SLIGHT CASE OF KIDNAPING MIGHT... THEN, THERE'S ALWAYS THE GOOD OL' POISON TEAPOT ROUTINE...
SOFTENING UP, EH, BLUBBER-BUMPER? YOU USED TO BE MORE OF A SPORTY TARGET.
GEORGE WUNDER

STEVE ROPER

WIRE THE WEIGHTS ON ROPER'S FEET! IT'S GETTING LATE!
CRUNCH!... I'VE GOT BAD NEWS!
THERE'S A BOAT CRUISING AROUND THE BAY! LOOKS LIKE A REVENUE CUTTER OR A COAST GUARD CRAFT!
FOUL BREAK! --CAN'T RISK HAVING THEM CATCH US HAULING A BODY OUT FOR BURIAL AT SEA!
...AND IT'LL BE DAYLIGHT SOON!... TRUSS ROPER UP AND GAG HIM!... ....WE'LL HAVE TO FILE HIM UNDER UNFINISHED BUSINESS!

DIXIE DUGAN

IF I COULD ENGAGE THAT MAN IN A CONVERSATION WHEN I'M GETTING OFF THE TRAIN, MAYBE YOU CAN SNEAK OFF WITHOUT HIS SEEING YOU!
GOSH THANKS, HONEY - I - I HOPE I DON'T HAVE TO DO THE SAME FOR YOU SOME DAY
SO DIXIE DOES JUST THAT—MISTER - WOULD YOU MIND GIVING ME THE TIME?
? NOT AT ALL—
IN FACT, I'LL GIVE YOU ALL THE TIME YOU WANT - ARE YOU TRAVELING ALONE--??
YOUR TIME IS A LITTLE TOO FAST, FELLA— ADIOS
HEY!—THERE GOES THE GIRL YOU'RE AFTER—HUH?
'BOARD

IT'S TWENTY TO NINE... GET MY DIME READY!
WELL DONE, SON?

WINNIE WINKLE

SO, JERRY'S GONE - AREN'T YOU GLAD TO BE RID OF HER, AT LAST?
WELL - YES AND NO! WHERE DOES THAT BRAT GET OFF TO CALL ME AN OLD MAN?
ME ... AN OLD MAN!!
WELL, DIDN'T YOU DO EVERYTHING TO MAKE HER THINK YOU WERE TOO OLD FOR HER RIGHT! LET'S CELEBRATE! WILL YOU GO TO A MOVIE WITH YOUR "OLD MAN"?
BUT WE'LL HAVE TO GET A BABY-SITTER!
WELL, WE CAN ALWAYS GET GERALDINE SWOO-- HEY, PUT THAT DOWN-- I'M ONLY KIDDING!
BARNABY
It seems they enjoy a little relaxation after a hard day of work here at the museum.
Thank you, Mr. Discobolus. I'll just be a minute now.
Take your time, ma'm.
"... so I let him have a slug of lead right in the kisser."
But I say, old chap, just WHAT is a "private eye"?
I'm just an Abstraction. Nobody understands me!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Barkley Called Balance Wheel

By Drew Pearson

[Ed. Note—The brass ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, today goes to the Vice President of the United States, Alben Barkley.]

Vice President Barkley is a kindly, much-loved Kentucky gentleman, not given to feuds. However, he is having a slight altercation with Capitol Architect David Lynn. Lynn wants Barkley to move out of the traditional Vice President's office into more modern quarters, but the Vice President refuses to budge. He is in love with the ancient but historical room for one quite special reason.

Barkley

Hanging in the Vice President's room are two magnificent chandeliers, made of highly polished glass prisms and brought to this country by Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson acquired them when serving as Ambassador to France, later presented them to the U. S. Government, and for many years they hung in the White House. Then Teddy Roosevelt objected.

The Rough Rider President couldn't stand the chandeliers because they were so delicately balanced that they tinkled when anyone walked across the floor. So they were banished to the Vice President's office on Capitol Hill, where sentimental Alben Barkley likes them and wants to keep them in his office.

Barkley is also having another minor row with the President of the United States, the Secretary of the Treasury and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover. They are determined that the Vice President have either a Secret Service man or an FBI man to protect him on his many trips around the USA.

But Barkley says no.

"It isn't that I'm going to do anything I'm ashamed of," he explains, a little plaintively, "but I value my freedom more than anything else in the world. I don't think anyone is going to attack me. Besides, if anyone really wanted to get me, one Secret Service man wouldn't be much good anyhow."

Today Alben Barkley is the most important balance wheel in the Government and the most effective modifying influence on his chief in the White House. If Barkley had had an opportunity to be with the President before or during his unfortunate remark about a majority vote on stopping filibusters, the Senate would not have snarled itself up in Southern oratory. Nothing could have infuriated Southern Senators more than Truman's intemperate remark, and Barkley, knowing this, would have given his eyeteeth to have sidetracked it.

No matter what Mr. Truman does, however, his Vice President remains 100 per cent loyal. Barkley has even explained away Truman's reported snub to Governors Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Herman Talmadge of Georgia when scores of newsmen witnessed the fact that Truman did not raise his hat to salute these two Dixiecrats.

Barkley loyally maintains that Truman did lift his hat to Governor Thurmond, while in the case of Governor Talmadge, Barkley points out that the Navy had asked the President to pass judgment on the different groups of naval cadets as they marched by, and the President had turned to a naval officer to give his appraisal of the cadets just as Governor Talmade passed by.

"Later that day," Barkley defends his chief, "the President and I went down to the National Gallery of Art, where both Governor and Mrs. Thurmond and Governor and Mrs. Talmadge were greeted cordially by both the President and me, and they stopped and chatted with us for a moment in a very pleasant way. If either had felt they had been deliberately slighted during the parade, I am quit sure they would have shown some sign of it."

It is rare that Vice Presidents are related. However, Barkley was a second cousin of Vice President Adlai Stevenson, who served under Grover Cleveland, which also makes Barkley the third cousin of Illinois' new Governor, Adlai Stevenson.

Barkley has been getting around the country quite a bit lately—though Senate leaders wish he would spend more time acting as balance wheel at the President's elbow.

The reason for Barkley's trips is that he has become the Democratic Party's favorite speaker at Jefferson-Jackson Day dinners.

This also is close to Barkley's heart, for he is a walking encyclopedia on Jefferson, having studied his life intently while a student at the University of Virginia. When the Vice President speaks on Jefferson, he seldom reads a manuscript, partly because his eyes are not good, but also because it is relatively easy for him to draw from his bottomless vat of knowledge on Jefferson.
